P R E F A C E.

THE following work has been compiled with a view to enable every one proceeding to India to acquire a fair knowledge of the most useful and most extensively spoken language of that country. Of late years, a new æra may be said to have commenced with regard to the study of the Hindústání language; it being now imperative on every junior officer in the Company's service to pass an examination in that language before he can be deemed qualified to command a troop, or to hold any staff appointment. Such being the case, it is desirable that every facility should be afforded to young men destined for India to acquire at least an elementary knowledge of Hindústání in this country, so as to be able to prosecute the study during the voyage.

A large impression of this work having been exhausted, I have availed myself of the opportunity, in this new Edition, of adopting such improvements as have been naturally suggested by several years' experience in teaching. The plan and arrangement of the work remain the same as before; and so do the numbers of the sections and the paragraphs. The first section treats very fully of the Persi-Arabic alphabet, and of the elementary sounds of the language. In this section I have been enabled to introduce several improvements, and, if I mistake not, the subject is now so simplified that a learner of ordinary capacity will have no difficulty in making some progress in this elementary part, even if he should not have the aid of a teacher. The next three sections treat of the parts of speech, to the defining and explaining of which I have strictly confined myself. I have carefully avoided mixing up the syntax of the language with that part of the work which is and ought to be purely etymological. The mode of confounding the syntax with the etymology, which prevails in most grammars, I have always looked upon as highly preposterous. It is utterly absurd to embarrass the student with a rule of syntax, at a stage of his progress where he probably does not know a dozen words of the language.

In the first four sections (up to p. 91), I have generally accompanied every Hindústání word and phrase with the pronunciation in Roman characters, in order that the learner might not be delayed too long in acquiring the essential rudiments of the grammar, and also to guard against his contracting a vicious mode of pronunciation. When he has made himself acquainted with what is technically called the accidence—that is, the declension of the nouns and pronouns, and the conjugation of the verbs—he may, after a few verbal instructions respecting the arrangement of words, proceed to read and translate a few pages of the Selections, by the aid of the Vocabulary. This done, he may read over the Grammar carefully from the beginning; for, in fact, the Grammar and Selections mutually assist each other.

Section V. (from p. 92 to 135) treats of the Syntax of the language. This is a portion of the work, in which, if I do not greatly mistake, I have made many improvements. I have been particularly careful in explaining those peculiarities of the language in the use of which I have observed learners most apt to err, when trying to translate English into Hindústání. I have also, in several instances, ventured to differ from all my predecessors on certain important points, which of course I have justified by an appeal to the language itself.

In the sixth and last section, I have given a concise account of the Devanágari alphabet, together with the mode of transferring the same into the corresponding Persian character, and vice versa. To this I have added an explanation of the various plates accompanying the work, together with a brief account of the Musalmán and Hindú calendars. The perusal of the plates will initiate the student into the mysteries of the manuscript character, which is much used in India, both in lithographed and printed works, to say nothing of numerous productions which still remain in manuscript. When the learner is well grounded in the Naskhí, or printed character, he should, as an exercise, endeavour to write out the same in the Ta'lik, or written character. When he has attained some facility in writing the latter, he will find it a very profitable exercise to transcribe the various phrases, etc., in my Hindústání Manual, from the Roman character into the Ta'lik, and at the same time commit them to memory, as directed in the preface to that small work.

An elementary grammar of a language is incomplete without a certain portion of easy extracts, accompanied by a suitable vocabulary, and occasional notes explanatory of any obscure or idiomatic phrases that may occur in the text. This is the more essential in a grammar of the Hindústání, or of any other Asiatic language, because the characters and words, being totally different from our own, it is necessary, though it may sound strange, to learn the language to a certain extent, before the grammar can be perused to any advantage. As to the use of translations and other fallacious aids, such as giving the English of each word as it occurs at the bottom of the page or elsewhere, it is a method deservedly scouted by all good teachers. On the other hand, to put a large dictionary in the hands of a beginner is equally useless; it is asking of him to perform a difficult work, with an instrument so unwieldy as to be beyond his strength. In order, therefore, to render this work as complete as possible, I have appended to the Grammar a selection of easy compositions for reading, commencing with short and simple sentences. All the words occurring in the extracts will be found in the Vocabulary, at the end of which I have added a few notes explanatory of difficult passages or peculiarities of the language, with references to the page and paragraph of the Grammar where further information may be obtained.

In the extracts from the 'Khirad Afroz,' a work which is considered to be the easiest and most graceful specimen of the Jrdú dialect, I have left off the use of the jazm —, except in very rare instances, in order that the student may gradually learn to read without it. In like manner the viráma ऋ is omitted in the last five or six stories of the Hindí extracts. I have been careful, throughout, to give the essential short vowels, convinced that without them the most attentive learner will be apt to commit mistakes in pronunciation. I have also adopted a rigid system of punctuation, the same as I should have done in the editing of a Latin Classic. There may be a few individuals so thoroughly wedded to what is foolish or defective, merely because it is old, as to feel shocked at this innovation. They will complacently ask, What is the use of punctuation, when the natives have none in their manuscripts? I answer—The use is simply to facilitate, for beginners, the acquisition of a knowledge of the language. When that is once attained, they will find no difficulty in reading native works, though utterly void, not only of punctuation but of vowel-points and other diacritical marks. The use of stops is merely a question of time; four hundred years ago we had no such things for our books in Europe, and the excellent monks who had the management of these matters went on comfortably enough without them. But, after all, it was found that stops were an improvement; and so they are admitted to be even in the East. Almost all the books printed in India since the beginning of the present century have punctuation; and those who would make beginners attempt to translate from a strange language, in a strange character, without the least clue to the beginning or end of the sentences, seem to have a marvellous love for the absurd. All Oriental as well as European books ought to have stops; the omission is a sure indication either of extreme idleness or culpable apathy on the part of the editor.

In conclusion, I may safely say that I have spared no pains to render this edition worthy of the extensive patronage which the work has hitherto attained.

HINDÚSTÁNÍ GRAMMAR.

SECTION I.

ON THE LETTERS AND SYMBOLS USED IN WRITING.

1. THE Hindústání language may be printed and written in two distinct alphabets, totally different from each other, viz., the Persi-Arabic, and the Devanágari. We shall at present confine ourselves to the former, and devote a section to the latter towards the end of the volume. The Persi-Arabic alphabet consists of thirty-two letters, to which three more are added to express sounds peculiar to the Hindústání. These letters, then, thirty-five in number, are written and read from right to left; and, consequently, Hindústání books and manuscripts begin at what we should call the end of the volume. Several of the letters assume different shapes, according to their position in the formation of a word, or of a combined group; as may be seen in the following table, column V. Thus, in a combination of three or more letters, the first of the group, on the right-hand side, will have the form marked Initial; the letter or letters between the first and last will have the form marked Medial; and the last, on the left, will have the Final form. Observe, also, that in this table, column I. contains the names of the letters in the Persian character;

II. the same in Roman characters; III. the detached form of the letters, which should be learned first; and IV. the corresponding English letters.

The alphabet here described is used, more or less modified, by all those nations who have adopted the religion of Muḥammad; viz., along the north and east of Africa, in Turkey, Arabia, and Persia, and by the Musalmán portion of the people of India and Malacca.

In pronouncing the names of the letters (column II.) let it be remembered that the vowels are to be uniformly sounded as follows:—The unmarked a is always short, as a in woman, adrift, etc.; á is always long, as a in war or art; i is short, as in pin; í is long, as in police; u is short, as u in bull, pull, etc.; ú is the same sound lengthened, and pronounced as u in rule, etc.; e is sounded as ea in bear; o is always long, as in no; ai is pronounced as ai in aisle; and au is sounded as in German and Italian, or very nearly like our ou in sound, or ow in cow.

2. Perhaps the best mode of learning the alphabet is, First, to write out several times the detached or full forms of the letters in column III. Secondly, to observe what changes (if any) these undergo, when combined in the formation of words, as exhibited in column V. Lastly, to endeavour to transfer, into their corresponding English letters, the words given as exemplifications in column VI.

a. It may be here observed that the letters ز زة ر رة د دة and , do not alter in shape, whether initial, medial, or final. Another peculiarity which they have is, that they never unite with the letter following, to the left; hence, when the last letter of a word is preceded by any one of these, it must have the detached form, column III. The letters ط and ظ, in like manner, do not alter, though they always unite with the letter following on the left hand.

3. In the foregoing table, most of the characters are sufficiently represented by the corresponding English letters: it will therefore be necessary to notice only those whose sounds differ more or less from our own.

ت The sound of this letter is softer and more dental than that of the English t; it corresponds with the t of the Gaelic dialects, or that of the Italian in the word sotto. It represents the Sanskrit त.

ث This letter represents the Sanskrit ट; its sound is much nearer that of the English t than the preceding. In pronouncing it, the tongue should be well turned up towards the roof of the mouth, as in the words tip, top.

س is sounded by the Arabs like our th hard, in the words thick, thin; but by the Persians and Indians it is pronounced like our s in the words sick, sin.

چ This letter has uniformly the sound of our ch in the word church.

ح is a very strong aspirate, somewhat like our h in the word haul, but uttered by compressing the lower muscles of the throat.

خ has a sound like the ch in the word loch, as pronounced by the Scotch and Irish, or the final ch in the German words schach and buch. This letter will be represented in Roman characters by kh, with a stroke underneath (kh̲).

د is much softer and more dental than the English d; it represents the Sanskrit ढ, and corresponds with the d of the Celtic dialects, and that of the Italian and Spanish.

ذ This letter represents the Sanskrit ढ, and is very nearly the same as our own d. The tongue, in pronouncing it, should be well turned up towards the roof of the mouth.

ذ is properly sounded (by the Arabs) like our z soft, in the words thy and thine; but in Persian and Hindústání it is generally pronounced like our z in zeal.

ز is always sounded very distinctly, as the French and Germans pronounce it.

ژ This letter is sounded like the preceding, only the tip of the tongue must be turned up towards the roof of the mouth. It is very much akin to ذ, with which it often interchanges; or, more strictly speaking, in the Devanágari the same letter serves for both; as will be seen in the section on the Devanágari alphabet.

ا is pronounced like the j of the French, in the word jour, or our j in the word azure. It is of rare occurrence.

ص In Arabic this letter has a stronger or more hissing sound than our s. In Hindústání, however, there is little or no distinction between it and س, which is like our own s.

ض is pronounced by the Arabs like a hard d or dh; but in Hindústání it is sounded like z.

ط and ظ These letters are sounded in Hindústání like ت and ز, or very nearly so. The anomalous letter ع will be noticed hereafter.

ع has a sound somewhat like g in the German word sagen. About the banks of the Tweed, the natives sound what they fancy to be the letter r, very like the Eastern غ. This sound will be represented in English letters by gh, with a stroke underneath (gh).

ق bears some resemblance to our c hard, in the words calm, cup; with this difference, that the ق is uttered from the lower muscles of the throat.

گ is sounded like our g hard, in give, go; never like our g in gem, gentle.

ن at the beginning of a word or syllable is sounded like our n in the word now; at the end of a word, when preceded by a long vowel, it generally has a nasal sound, like the French n, in such words as mon and son, where the sound of the n is scarcely heard, its effect being to make the preceding vowel come through the nose. The same sound may also occur in the middle of a word, as in the French sans. In the Roman character, the nasal sound of ن will be indicated by n, with a dot over it (ṅ).

ا is an aspirate, like our h in hand, heart; but at the end of a word, if preceded by the short vowel a (Fatha § 4), the ا has no sensible sound, as in دانة dána, a grain; in which case it is called هاي مُحْتَفِي hái-mukhtafi, i.e., the 'obscure or imperceptible h.' As this final h, then, is not sounded in such cases, we shall omit it entirely in the Roman character whenever we have occasion to write such words as دانة dána, etc.

a. At the end of words derived from Arabic roots, the final s is sometimes marked with two dots thus, ṣ; and, in such cases, sounded like the letter ت t. The Persians generally convert the ṣ into ت; but sometimes they leave it unaltered, and frequently they omit the two dots, in which case the letter is sounded according to the general rule. Lastly, the Hindústání usually receives such words in whatever form they may happen to be used in Persian.

b. The letter ه or ه is frequently employed as a mere aspirate in combination with the letters $\text{ك} \text{ژ} \text{د} \text{چ} \text{ج} \text{ت} \text{پ} \text{ب}$ and گ ; as in the words پها , pha; تھا , tha, etc. In such cases the learner must be careful not to sound the ph and th as in English; the h is to be sounded separately, immediately after its preceding letter, as in the compound words up-hill, hot-house. In most printed books the round form of the h (ه and ه) is employed to denote the aspirate of the preceding letter, otherwise the form ه is used; but this rule does not apply to manuscripts, particularly those written before the days of Dr. Gilchrist, under whose auspices the distinction was first adopted.

c. Much might have been said in describing the sounds of several of the letters; but we question whether the learner would be greatly benefited by a more detailed description. It is difficult, if not impossible, to give in writing a correct idea of the mere sound of a letter, unless we have one that corresponds with it in our own language. When this is not the case, we can only have recourse to such languages as happen to possess the requisite sound. It is possible, however, that the student may be as ignorant of these languages as of Hindústání. It clearly follows, then, as a general rule, that the correct sounds of such letters as differ from our own must be learned by the ear—we may say, by a good ear; and, consequently, a long description is needless. This remark applies in particular to the letters $\text{ص} \text{ذ} \text{خ} \text{ح} \text{ت}$ and $\text{غ} \text{ض}$ and the nasal ن .

OF THE PRIMITIVE VOWELS.

4. In Hindústání, as in many of the Oriental languages, the primitive vowels are three in number. They are represented by three small marks or symbols, two of which are placed above and one beneath the letter after which they are sounded, as in the following syllables, $\text{دُ} \text{du}$, $\text{دِ} \text{di}$, and $\text{دُو} \text{du}$; or $\text{سَر} \text{sar}$, $\text{سِر} \text{sir}$, and $\text{سُ} \text{sur}$.

a. The first is called fatha (by the Persians zabar), and is written thus, ـَ over the consonant to which it belongs. Its sound is that of a short a, such as we have it in the word calamus, which is of Eastern origin, and of which the first two syllables or root, calam or kalam, are thus written, قَلَمَ. In such Oriental words as we may have occasion to write in Roman characters, the a, unmarked, is understood always to represent the vowel fatha, and to have no other sound than that of a in calamus or calendar.

b. The second is called by the Arabs kasra (by the Persians zer), and is thus ـِ written under the consonant to which it belongs. Its sound is that of our short i in the word sip and fin, which in Hindústání would be written سپ and فن. The unmarked i, therefore, in the course of this work, is understood to have the sound of i in sip and fin, in all Oriental words written in the Roman character.

c. The third is called by the Arabs zamma (or dhamma) (by the Persians, pesh), which is thus ـُ written over its consonant. Its sound is like that of our short u in the words pull and push, which in Hindústání would be written پُل and پُش: we have also its true sound in the English words foot and hood, which would be written فُت and هُد. We shall accordingly, in the following passages, represent the zamma by the unmarked u, which in all Oriental words in the Roman character, is understood to have the sound of u in pull and push; but never that of our u in such words as use and perfume, or such as u in sun and fun.

OF THE LETTERS ا, و, ع, AND ي, VIEWED AS CONSONANTS.

5. At the beginning of a word or syllable, the letter ا, like any other consonant, depends for its sound on the accompanying vowel; of itself, it is a very weak aspirate, like our h in the words herb, honour, and hour. It is still more closely identified with the spiritus lenis of the Greek, in such words as ἀπὸ, ἐπὶ, ὀρθρός, where the mark ['] represents the alif, and the a, e, and o.

the accompanying vowel. In fact, when we utter the syllables ab, iḅ, and ub, there is a slight movement of the muscles of the throat at the commencement of utterance; and that movement the Oriental grammarians consider to be the مَكْرَج makhraj, or 'place of utterance' of the consonant ا, as in ا a; ا i; and ا u; just the same as the lips form the مَكْرَج of b, in the syllables ب ba, ب bi, and ب bu. Finally, the ا may be considered as the spiritus lenis, or weak aspirate of the consonant س.

a. The consonant ع has the same relation to the strong aspirate ح that ا has to س; that is, the ع, like the ا, is a spiritus lenis or weak aspirate; but the مَكْرَج, or 'place of utterance' of ع, is in the lower muscles of the throat. Hence the sound of the letter ع, like that of the letter ا, depends on the accompanying vowel; as ع 'ab, ع 'iḅ, ع 'ub, which in the mouth of an Arab, are very different sounds from ا ab, ا iḅ, and ا ub. At the same time, it is impossible to explain in writing the true sound of this letter; as it is not to be found in any European language, so far as we know. The student who has not the advantage of a competent teacher may treat the ع as he does the ا until he has the opportunity of learning its true sound by the ear. In representing Oriental words in the Roman character, the place of the ع will be indicated by an apostrophe, thus, عَسَل 'asal.

b. Of the consonants و and ي very little description is necessary. The letter و has generally the sound of our w in we, went; but occasionally in words from the Sanskrit it has the sound of our v, which must be determined by practice. The sound of the consonant ي is our own y in you, yet, or the German j in jener.

c. It appears, then, that the thirty-five letters constituting the Hindústání alphabet are all to be considered as consonants, each of which may be uttered with any of the three primitive vowels, as ا a, ا i, and ا u; ب ba, ب bi, and ب bu, etc.: hence the elementary sounds of the language amount to one hundred and five in number, each consonant forming three distinct syllables.

6. When a consonant is accompanied by one of the three primitive vowels, it is said to be مُتَحَرِّكٌ mutaharrik, that is, 'moving or moveable,' by that vowel. Oriental grammarians consider a syllable as a step or move in the formation of a word or sentence. When, in the middle or at the end of a word, a consonant is not accompanied by a vowel, it is said to be سَاكِنٌ sákin, 'resting or inert,' and then it is marked with the symbol ˘ or ˙ called جَزْمٌ jazm, which signifies 'amputation or cutting short.' Thus in the word مَرْدُمْ mardum, the mím is moveable by fatha; the re is inert,¹ having no vowel; the dál is moveable by ẓamma; and, finally, the ním is inert. As a general rule, the last letter of a word is inert, and in that case the mark jazm ˘ is unnecessary.

7. When a letter is doubled, the mark ˉ, called تَشْدِيدٌ tashdíd, is placed over it. Thus, in the word شَدَّدَتْ shid-dat, where the first syllable ends with د (d) and the next begins with د (d), instead of the usual mode شَدَدَتْ the two dáls are thrown into one, and the mark tashdíd ˉ indicates this coalition. The student must be careful to utter each of the letters thus doubled, distinctly—the first letter ends the preceding syllable, and the second begins the following; they must not be slurred over as we do it, in such words as mummy, summer. The meaning of the term tashdíd, is, 'strengthening or corroboration.'

¹ The term inert is here employed for want of a better. In most Arabic, Persian, and Hindústání Grammars, a letter not followed by a vowel is called quiescent, which is objectionable, as it is apt to mislead the beginner, the term quiescent being already applied in the English Grammar in the sense of not sounded. For instance, the letter g is quiescent in the word phlegm; we cannot, however, say that m is quiescent in the same word, though we may say that it is inert. The student will be pleased to bear in mind, then, that a letter is said to be inert when it is not followed by a vowel.

OF THE LETTERS ا , و , AND ي VIEWED AS VOWELS OR LETTERS OF PROLONGATION.

8. The letters ا , و , and ي when inert, serve to prolong the preceding vowel, as follows. When ا inert is preceded by a letter moveable by fatha, the fatha and alif together form a long sound like our a in war, or au in haul, which in Hindústání might be written وَار and حَال. Now it so happens that the ا inert is always preceded by fatha: hence, as a general and practical rule, alif not beginning a word or syllable forms a sound like our a in war, or au in haul. In the Roman character, the sound of long ا will be represented by á, whilst the unmarked a is always understood to represent the short primitive vowel fatha.

9. When the letter و inert is preceded by a consonant moveable by the vowel zamma, the zamma and و together form a sound like our oo in tool; which in Hindústání might be written تُوْل, or, which is the same thing, like our u in rule, which might be written رُوْل. The same combination forms also another sound, like our o in mole, which would in the same manner be written مُوْل, or, perhaps still nearer, like our oa in coat, which might be written كُوْت. In the Arabic language, the latter sound of و, viz. that of o in mole, is unknown; hence Arabian grammarians call it Majhûl, or 'Ajamî, i.e. the Unknown or Persian و; whereas the former sound, that of u in rule, is called Ma'rûf, the Known or Familiar و. If the letter , be preceded by a consonant moveable by fatha, the fatha and , united will form a diphthong, nearly like our ou in sound, or ow in town, but more exactly like the au in the German word kaum, which in Hindústání might be written قَوْم. In the following pages the Ma'rúf sound will be represented by û; the Majhûl by o, and the diphthong by au. If the , be preceded by the vowel kasra, no union takes place, and the , preserves its natural sound as a consonant, as in the word سِوَا siwá.

b. When the letter و in words purely Persian is preceded by خ (moveable by fatha), and followed by ا; the sound of و is scarcely perceptible; as in the word خَوَاد pronounced kháh, not khawáh. When we have occasion to write any such words in the Roman character the w will be written with a dot under; thus, خَوَاد khwáh.

10. When the letter ي inert is preceded by a consonant moveable by kasra, the kasra and the ي unite, and form a long vowel like our ee in feel, which in Hindústání might be written فَيْل; or, which is the same thing, like our i in machine, which might be written مَشِين. The same combination may also form a sound like our ea in bear, which would be written بَيْر or like the French ê in the words prê, donnê, but longer; or the German e followed by h in the words sehr, gelehrt. In the Arabic language, the latter sound of ي is unknown: hence, when the ي forms the sound of ea in bear, etc., it is called Yâe Majhûl, or Yâe 'Ajamî, that is, the Unknown or Persian ي; whilst the former sound—that of ee in feel, or i in machine—is called Yâe Ma'rúf, the Known or Familiar ي. When the letter ي inert is preceded by a consonant, moveable by fatha, the fatha and the ي unite, and form a diphthong, like ai in the German word Kaiser, which in Arabic, Persian, and Hindústání, is written قَيْسَر. This sound is really that of our own i in wise, size, which we are pleased to call a vowel, but which, in reality, is a genuine diphthong. When the letter ي is preceded by zamma, no union takes place, and the ي retains its usual sound as a consonant, as in the word مَيْسَر muyassar. Lastly, if the letter ي be followed by a vowel, the above rules do not hold; and the ي is to be sounded as a consonant, as in the words بَيَان bayán, and زَيَان ziyán, not bai-án and zí-án, to represent which latter sounds the mark hamza (No. 15) would be requisite. A similar rule applies to the و.

a. It must be observed, that there are very few Hindústání works, printed or manuscript, in which all the vowels are marked as we have just described; the primitive short vowels being almost always omitted, as well as the marks ـَ jazm and ـُ tashdid. This omission occasions no serious inconvenience to the natives, or to those who know the language. To the young beginner, however, in this country, it is essential to commence with books having the vowels carefully marked; otherwise he will contract a vicious mode of pronunciation, which he will find it difficult afterwards to unlearn. At the same time, it is no easy matter in printing to insert all the vowel-marks, etc. in a proper and accurate manner. In the present work, a medium will be observed, which, without over-crowding the text with symbols, will suffice to enable the learner to read without any error, provided he will attend to the following rules.

11. The short vowel fatha ـَ is of more frequent occurrence than the other two; hence it is omitted in the printing; and the learner is to supply it for every consonant except the last, provided he see no other vowel, nor the mark jazm, nor the ء (butterfly) form of the letter he (par. 3, b) accompanying any of the consonants aforesaid.

a. The letter و at the beginning of a word or syllable is a consonant, and generally sounded like our w, as in the words وس wis, وطن watān. When و follows a consonant, that has no vowel-mark or jazm accompanying it, the و has the sound of o long, as in the words سو so, کو ko. When the consonant preceding the و has the mark ẓamma َ over it, the و has the sound of u in rule, or oo in fool, as in the words سُو sū or soo, and كُو kū or koo; and if the preceding consonant has the vowel mark fatha َ over it, the و forms the diphthong au, as سَو sau or sow, كَو kau or cow.

b. The letter ي at the beginning of a word or syllable is a consonant like our letter y, as in يِه yih, يَاد yād. When the letter ي is medial or final, if the consonant preceding it has no vowel-mark or jazm, the ي is sounded like ea in bear, or ai in fail, as in the words بِير ber, and سِير ser. If the consonant preceding the ي has the mark kasra ِ under it, the ي has the sound of i in machine, or ee in feel, as بِير bir or beer, and سِير sir or seer; and if the preceding consonant has the mark fatha َ over it, the ي forms the diphthong ai as بَيْر bair or byre, and سَيْر sair or sire.

c. There are a few instances in which the letters و and ي unite with the preceding consonant, as in the words سَوَامِي swāmī, and كَيَا kyā; but such combinations being of comparatively rare occurrence, they may safely be left to the student's own practice. Lastly, in a few Arabic words the final ي occurs with an ʾ alif written over it, in which case the ʾ only is sounded, as in the words عَبَّالِي ʾabbā; تَعَالِي ʾalā.

12. We shall now at one view exhibit the practical application of the principles treated of in the preceding paragraphs. The vowels in Hindústání, as the student may have ere now perceived, are ten in number, the manner of representing which may be seen in the following ten words. The upper line (1) contains ten English words in common use, in each of which occurs the corresponding sound of the Hindústání word beneath. The lower line (3) shews the mode in which the Oriental vowels will be uniformly represented in Roman characters in the course of this work.

1.	fun	fin	foot	fall	foal	fool	fowl	fail	feel	file
2	فُن	فِن	فُت	فَال	فُول	فُول	فُول	فِيل	فِيل	فِيل
3.	fan	fin	fut	fāl	fol	fūl	faul	fel	fīl	jail

13. We have now, we trust, fully explained how the vowels are to be represented when they follow an audible consonant, such as the letter ف f in the foregoing list of words. In order to represent the vowels as initial or commencing a word, it will at once occur to the student that we have merely to annihilate or withdraw the letter ف from the above words, leaving everything else as it stands, and the object is effected. This is precisely what we do in reality, though not in appearance. The Arabian grammarians have taken into their heads a most subtle crotchet on this point, which is, that no word or syllable can begin with a vowel. Therefore, to represent what we call an initial vowel, that is, a vowel commencing a word or syllable, they employ the letter ʾ alif as a fulcrum for the vowel. We have already stated (No. 5) that they consider the ʾ as a very weak aspirate or spiritus lenis; hence its presence supports the theory, at least to the eye, if not to the ear. In order, then, to exhibit the vowels in the preceding paragraph as initial, we must, after taking away the letter ف substitute ʾ in its place, which ʾ being nothing, or very nearly so, the process amounts in reality to the withdrawal of the letter ف f, and the substitution of what may be considered as mere nothing, thus—

1.	un	in	ōt	all	ól	óol	owl	aīl	eel	aisle
2.	اُن	اِن	اُت	اَل	اُول	اُول	اُول	اِيل	اِيل	اِيل
3	an	in	ut	āl	ol	ūl	aul	el	īl	ail

Instead of writing two alifs at the beginning of a word, as in آل ál, it is usual (except in Dictionaries) to write one alif with the other curved over it; thus آل. This symbol ـَـ is called مد, madda, 'extension,' and denotes that the alif is sounded long, like our a in water. M. de Sacy (v. Grammaire Arabe, p. 72) considers the mark madda ـَـ to be nothing else than a م mím, the initial of the word madda; but our business is simply with its practical use, and the reader if he pleases may view it as a contraction of our letter m, meaning 'Make it long.'

14. If, instead of ا in the above series, we substitute the letter ع, we shall have virtually the same sounds, only that they must be uttered from the lower muscles of the throat, thus—

عن	عن	عُت	عال	عول	عُول	عَوْل	عيل	عيل	عِيل
'an	'in	'ut	'ál	'ol	'úl	'aul	'el	'íl	'ail

a. It appears, then, that when in Hindústání, a word or syllable begins with what we consider to be a vowel, such word or syllable must have the letter ا or ع to start with. Throughout this work, when we have occasion to write such words in the Roman character, the corresponding place of the ع will be indicated by an apostrophe or spiritus lenis; thus, عسل 'dsal, عابد 'ábid, بعْد ba'd, to distinguish the same from اسل asul, آبد ábid, بد bad, or باد bád. In other respects the reader may view the ا and ع in any of the three following lights. 1st. He may consider them of the same value as the spiritus lenis (') in such Greek words as áv, év, etc. 2ndly. He may consider them as equivalent to the letter h in the English words hour, herb, honour, etc. Lastly. He may consider them as mere blocks, whereupon to place the vowels requisite to the formation of the syllable. Practically speaking, then, ا and ع when initial, and the و and ي when not initial, require the beginner's strictest attention, as they all contribute in such cases to the formation of several sounds.

15. We have stated that, according to the notions of the Arabian grammarians, no syllable can begin with a vowel. In practice, however, nothing is more common, at least according to our ideas of such matters, than to meet with one syllable ending with a vowel, and the next beginning with one also. When this happens in Persian and Hindústání, the mark ـ called hamza is inserted between the two vowels a little above the body of the word, as in the words جَاوَن já,úin, پَاي pá,e; and sometimes there is a vacant space left for the hamza, like the initial or medial form of the ye without the dots below, thus [ن] or [ـ] as in the words فَايْد fá,ida; كَيْجِي kíji-e. The hamza, then, is merely a substitute employed in the middle of words for the letter ا , to serve as a commencement (or as the Orientals will have it, consonant) to the latter of two consecutive vowels. Practically speaking, it may be considered as our hyphen which serves to separate two vowels, as in the words co-ordinate, re-iterate. It serves another practical purpose in Persian, in the formation of the genitive case, when the governing word ends with the imperceptible ه , or with the letter ي as in the words دِيدَد دَانِش dida-i-dánish, ‘the eye of intelligence,’ where the hamza alone has the sound of the short i or e.

a. The sound of the mark hamza, according to the Arabian grammarians, differs in some degree from the letter ا , being somewhat akin to the letter ع , which its shape ـ would seem to warrant; but in Hindústání this distinction is overlooked. We have here confined ourselves solely to the practical use of this symbol as applied in Persian and Hindústání; for further information on the subject, the reader may consult De Sacy’s Arabic Grammar.

16. Before we conclude the discussion of the alphabet, it may be proper to inform the student that the eight letters ع ظ ط ض ص ح ث and ق are peculiar to the Arabic; hence, as a general rule, a word containing any one of these letters may be considered as borrowed from the Arabic. Words containing any of the letters ز ذ ن or غ may be Persian or Arabic, but are not of Indian origin. The few words which contain the letter ژ are purely Persian. Words containing any of the letters چ or گ may be Persian or Indian, but not Arabic. Lastly, words containing any of the four-dotted letters ڑ ڈ ٲ ٴ are purely Indian. The rest of the letters are common to the Arabic, Persian, and Hindústání languages.

17. As words and phrases from the Arabic language enter very freely into the Hindústání, we cannot well omit the following remarks. Arabic nouns have frequently the definite article ال 'the' of the language prefixed to them; and if the noun happens to begin with any of the thirteen letters ظ ط ض ص ش س ز ر ذ د ت or ن, the ل of the article assumes the sound of the initial letter of the noun, which is then marked with tashdíd; thus النور 'the light,' pronounced an-núr, not al-núr. But in these instances, though the ل has lost its sound, it must always be written in its own form. Of course, when the noun begins with the ل, the ل of the article coincides with it in like manner, as in the words الليلة al-lailat, 'the night;' and in this case the ل of the article is sometimes omitted, and the initial lám of the noun marked with tashdíd, thus, اليلة al-lailat.

a. The thirteen letters (ت etc.) above mentioned, together with the letter ل, are, by the Arabian grammarians, called solar or sunny letters, because the word شمس shams, 'the sun,' happens to begin with one of them. The other letters of the Arabic alphabet are called lunar, because, we presume, the word قمر kamar, 'the moon,' begins with one of the number, or simply because they are not solar. Of course, the captious critic might find a thousand equally valid reasons for calling them by any other term, such as gold and silver, black and blue, etc.; but we merely state the fact as we find it.

18. In general, the Arabic nouns of the above description, when introduced into the Persian and Hindústání languages, are in a state of construction with another substantive or preposition which precedes them; like the Latin terms jus gentium, vis inertiae, ex officio, etc. In such cases, the last letter of the first or governing word, if a substantive, is moveable by the vowel zamma, which serves for the enunciation of the l of the article prefixed to the second word; and, at the same time, the l is marked with the symbol وَصَلَة, called waṣla, which denotes 'union;' as in the words امير المؤمنين Anír - ul - mûminîn, 'Commander of the Faithful;' اقبال الدوله Ikbál-ul-daula, 'The dignity of the state.'

a. Arabic nouns sometimes occur having their final letters marked with the symbol called tanwîn, which signifies the using of the letter ن. The tanwîn, which in Arabic grammars serves to mark the inflexions of a noun, is formed by doubling the vowel-point of the last letter, which indicates at once its presence and its sound; thus, باب bâbun, باب bâbin, بابا bâban. The last form requires the letter l, which does not, however, prolong the sound of the final syllable. The l is not required when the noun ends with a hamza, or with the letter é, as شاي shai-an, حكمة hikmatan; or when the word ends in ye, surmounted by ي [ي] (in which case the l only is pronounced), هدى hudan. In Hindústání the occurrence of such words is not common, being limited to a few adverbial expressions, such as قصدا kaṣḍan, 'purposely,' اتفاقا ittifákan, 'by chance.' In the Roman character the letter n, with a stroke underneath [n̄], will be used for the 'núnation.'

19. We may here mention, that the twenty-eight letters of the Arabic language are also used (chiefly in recording the tārīkh, or date of historical events, etc.), for the purpose of numerical computation. The numerical order of the letters differs from that given in pages 2 and 3, being, in fact, the identical arrangement of the Hebrew alphabet, so far as the latter extends, viz., to the letter ת 400. The following is the order of the numerical alphabet with the corresponding number placed above each letter; the whole being grouped into eight unmeaning words, to serve as a 'Memoria technica.'

1000	900	800	700	600	500	400	300	200	100	90	80	70	60	50	40	30	20	10
ا	ب	ج	د	هـ	و	ز	ح	ط	ي	ك	ل	م	ن	س	ع	ف	ق	ش

where ا denotes one, ب two, ج three, د four: etc.

a. In reckoning by the preceding system, the seven letters peculiarly Persian or Indian, viz. گ, ژ, ژد, چ, ت, پ, have the same value as their cognate Arabic letters of which they are modifications, that is, of ک, ز, د, چ, ت, ب, respectively. The mode of recording any event is, to form a brief sentence, such that the numerical values of all the letters, when added together, amount to the year (of the Hijra) in which the event took place. Thus, the death of Ahlí of Shíráz, who may be considered as the last of the classic poets of Persia, happened in A.H. 942 (A.D. 1535). This date is recorded in the sentence بادشاد شعرا بود اهلي 'Ahli was the king of poets;' where the sum of all the letters be, alif, dál, etc., when added together, will be found to amount to 942. The following date, on the death of the renowned Haidar 'Alí of Maisúr (A.H. 1196), is equally elegant, and much more appropriate: جان بالاگيات برفت 'The spirit of Bálághát is gone.'

b. Sometimes the title of a book is so cunningly contrived as to express the date of its completion. Thus, several letters written on various occasions by Abu-l-Fazl, surnamed 'Allámí, when secretary to the Emperor Akbar, were afterwards collected in one volume by 'Abdu-ṣ-ṣamad, the secretary's nephew, and the work was entitled مُكَاتَبَاتِ عَلَامِي mukátabát-i 'allámí, 'The letters of 'Allámí,' which at the same time gives the date of publication, A.H. 1015. We may also mention that the best prose work in Hindústání—the باغ و بهار 'Bágh o Bahár,' by Mír Amman, of Delhi, was so called merely because the name includes the date; the discovery of which we leave as an exercise to the student.

c. It is needless to add that the marks for the short vowels count as nothing; also a letter marked with tashdíd, though double, is to be reckoned but once only, as in the word 'allámí, where the lám though double counts only 30. The Latin writers of the middle ages sometimes amused themselves by making verses of a similar kind, although they had only seven numerical letters to work with, viz., I, V, X, L, C, D, and M. This they called carmen eteostichon or chronostichon, out of which the following effusion on the Restoration of Charles II., 1660, will serve as a specimen :

Cedant arma oleæ, pax regna serenat et agros.

Here the numerical letters are C D M L X = 1660.

d. In Arabia, Persia and India, the art of printing has been, till recently, very little used; hence their books, as was once the case in Europe, are written in a variety of different hands. Of these, the most common are, 1st, the Naskhí نَسْخِي, of which the type employed in this work is a very good imitation. Most Arabic Manuscripts, and particularly those of the Kūr'án, are in this hand; and from its compact form, it is generally used in Europe for printing books in the Arabic, Persian, Turkish, and Hindústání languages. 2ndly. The Ta'lik تَعْلِيْق, a beautiful hand, used chiefly by the Persians and Indians in disseminating copies of their more-esteemed authors. In India, the Ta'lik has been extensively employed for printing, both Persian and Hindústání works; and within the last twenty years, a few Persian books, in the same hand, have issued from the Páshá of Egypt's press at Búlák. 3rdly. The Shikasta شَكْسْتَة, or 'broken' hand, which is used in correspondence. It is quite irregular, and unadapted for printing; but not inelegant in appearance, when properly written.

SECTION II.

OF THE NAMES (أَسْمَاءُ asmá) INCLUDING SUBSTANTIVES, ADJECTIVES, AND PRONOUNS.

20. Oriental grammarians, both Hindú and Musalmán, reckon only three parts of speech, viz. the noun or name (إِسْم ism), the verb (فِعْل fi'l), and the particle (حَرْف harf). Under the term noun, they include substantives, adjectives, pronouns, infinitives of verbs, and participles. This verb agrees with our part of speech so named; and under the general term of 'particle' are comprised adverbs, prepositions, conjunctions, and interjections. The student will find it necessary to bear this in mind when he comes to read or converse with native teachers; in the meanwhile we shall here treat of the parts of speech according to the classification observed in the best Latin and English grammars, with which the reader is supposed to be familiar.

OF THE ARTICLE.

21. The Hindústání—and all the other languages of India, so far as we know—have no word corresponding exactly with our articles the, a, or an; these being really inherent in the noun, as in Latin and Sanskrit. Hence, as a general rule, the context alone can determine whether, for example, the expression راجا کا بیٹا, rājā kā betā, 'regis filius,' signifies 'a son of a king,' 'the son of a king,' 'a son of the king,' or 'the son of the king.' When, however, great precision is required, we often meet with the demonstrative pronouns یہ yih, 'this,' and وہ wuh, 'that,' together with their plurals, employed in the same sense as our definite article. Our indefinite article is expressed in many instances by the numeral ایک ek, 'one;' or by the indefinite pronoun کَوئی ko,î, 'some,' 'a certain one'; as ایک مَرْد اور ایک شیر ek mard aur ek sher, 'a man and a tiger'; کَوئی شخص ko,î shakhṣ, 'some person'; but of this we shall treat more fully in the Syntax.

OF SUBSTANTIVES.

22. Substantives in Hindústání have two genders only, the masculine and the feminine; two numbers, the singular and plural; and eight cases (as in Sanskrit), viz. nominative, genitive, dative, accusative, ablative, locative, instrumental or agent, and vocative. The ablative, locative, and instrumental, correspond with the Latin ablative. It has been deemed proper here to retain the Sanskrit classification of the cases, in accordance with the grammars of the Maráthí, Bengálí, and other cognate Indian dialects.

23. Gender.—To the mere Hindústání reader, it is difficult, if not impossible, to lay down any rules by which the gender of a lifeless noun, or the name of a thing without sex, may be at once ascertained. With regard to substantives that have a sexual distinction, the matter is easy enough, and is pithily expressed in the two first lines of our old school acquaintance, Ruddiman.

1. Quæ maribus solùm tribuuntur, mascula sunt.
2. Esto femineum, quod femina sola reposit.

This means, in plain English, that 'All animate beings of the male kind, and all names applicable to males only, are masculine. Females, and all names applicable to females only, are feminine.'

a. To the foregoing general rules, there is one (and perhaps but one) exception. The word قبيله kabila, which literally means tribe or family, also denotes a wife, and is used, even in this last sense, as a masculine noun. Thus in the 'Bágh o Bahár,' p. 27, we have the expression قبيلي کو بہ سبب محبت کی ساتھ لیا kabile ko ba sabab muhabbat ke sath liya, 'Out of affection I brought my wife with me,' where kabila is inflected like a masculine noun. This, however, is merely an Oriental mode of expression, it being usual with the people to employ the terms 'house' or 'family,' when alluding to their wives. Our neighbours, the Germans, without any such excuse, have been pleased to decide that the word weib, 'wife,' should be of the neuter gender.

24. With regard to nouns denoting inanimate objects, the practical rule is, that those ending in ت, ی, ی, ی, and ش sh, are generally feminine. Those ending in any other letter; are, for the most part, masculine; but as the exceptions are numerous, the student must trust greatly to practice; and when, in speaking, he has any doubts respecting the gender of a word, it is preferable to use the masculine.

a. It is said that there is no general rule without an exception, and some have even gone so far as to assert that the exception absolutely proves the rule. If this latter maxim were sound, nothing could be better established than the general rule above stated respecting the gender of inanimate nouns. We have given it, in substance, as laid down by Dr. Gilechrist, succeeding grammarians having added nothing thereto, (if we except the Rev. Mr. Yates, who in his Grammar has appended, as an amendment, a list of some twelve or fifteen hundred exceptions.) This we have always looked upon as a mere waste of paper, believing as we do that no memory can possibly retain such a dry mass of unconnected words. The fact is, that the rule or rather the labyrinth, may be considerably restricted by the application of a few general principles which we shall here state.

Principle 1st.—Most words purely Sanskrit, which of course abound in Hindústání, and more particularly in Hindí works, such as the 'Prem Ságar,' etc., retain the gender which they may have had in the mother-tongue. Thus, words which in Sanskrit are masculine or neuter, are masculine in Hindí; and those which in Sanskrit are feminine, are feminine in Hindí. This rule absolutely does away with several exceptions which follow one of the favourite maxims of preceding grammarians, viz., 'that names of lifeless things ending in ي $\text{—} i$, are feminine,' but pání, 'water,' motí, 'a pearl,' ghí, 'clarified butter' (and they might have added many more, such as maní, 'a gem,' etc.), are masculine: and why? because they are either masculine or neuter in Sanskrit. It is but fair to state, however, that this principle does not in every instance apply to such words of Sanskrit origin as have been greatly mutilated or corrupted in the vulgar tongue.

In the French and Italian languages which, like the Hindústání, have only two genders, it will be found that a similar principle prevails with regard to words from the Latin. The classical scholar will find this hint to be of great service in acquiring a knowledge of the genders of such French words as end in e mute, the most troublesome part of that troublesome subject.

Principle 2nd.—Arabic nouns derived from verbal roots by the addition of the servile ت t , are feminine, such as khilkat, 'creation, people,' etc., from khalaka, 'he created.' These in Hindústání are very numerous, and it is to such only that the general rule respecting nouns in ت t , rigidly applies. Arabic roots ending in ت t , are not necessarily feminine; neither are words ending in ت t derived from Persian and Sanskrit, those of the latter class being regulated by Principle 1st. Arabic nouns of the form تَفْعِيل are feminine, probably from the attraction of the i in the second syllable; the letter i being upon the whole the characteristic feminine termination of the Hindústání language. To this general principle the exceptions are very few, among which we must reckon شَرِبَت sharbat, 'sherbet,' and تَوَيْذ ta'wiz, 'an amulet,' which are masculine.

Principle 3rd.—Persian nouns derived from verbal roots by the addition of the termination یش ish, are feminine. These are not few in Hindústání, and it is to such only that the rule strictly applies. Nouns from the Persian, or from the Arabic through the Persian, ending in the weak or imperceptible s h, such as نامه náma, ‘a letter,’ قلعه kil’a, ‘a fortress,’ are generally masculine. This again may be accounted for by the affinity of the final a to the long á, which is a general masculine termination in Hindústání.

Principle 4th.—Pure Indian words, that is, such as are not traceable to the Arabic, Persian, or Sanskrit, are generally masculine if they terminate in á. Arabic roots ending in á, are for the most part feminine; nouns purely Sanskrit ending in á, are regulated by Principle 1st, but we may add, that the long á being a feminine termination in that language, such words are generally feminine in Hindústání. Words purely Persian when introduced into Hindústání, with the exception of those ending in یش ish and د already mentioned, are not reducible to any rule; the Persian language having no gender of its own in the grammatical sense of the term.

Principle 5th.—Compound words, in which the first member merely qualifies or defines the last, follow the gender of the last member, as شکارگاہ shikár-gáh, ‘hunting-ground,’ which is feminine; the word gáh being feminine, and the first word shikár qualifying it like an adjective.

b. It must be confessed, in conclusion, that, even after the application of the foregoing principles, there must still remain a considerable number of words reducible to no sort of rule. This is the inevitable fate of all such languages as have only two genders. Another natural consequence is, that many words occur sometimes masculine and sometimes feminine, depending on the caprice or indifference of the writer or speaker. We have also good grounds to believe that a word which is used in the masculine in one district may be feminine in another, as we know from experience to be the case in Gaelic, which, like the Hindústání, has only two genders.

25. Number and Case.—The mode in which the plural number is formed from the singular, will be best learned by inspection from the examples which we here subjoin. The language has virtually but one declension, and the various oblique cases, singular and plural, are regularly formed by the addition of certain particles or post-positions, etc., to the nominative singular. All the substantives of the language may be very conveniently reduced to three classes, as follows :—

Class I.—Including all substantives of the feminine gender.

Singular.

Oblique cases.	Nominative	رات rát,	the night
	Genitive	رات کا -کی rát-ká, -ka, -ki,	of the night
	Dative	رات کو rát-ko,	to the night
	Accusative	{ رات rát, رات کو rát-ko, }	the night
	Ablative	رات سے rát-se,	from the night
	Locative	رات میں -پر rát-men, -par,	in, on, the night
	Agent	رات نے rát-ne,	by the night
	Vocative	ای رات ai rát,	O night!

Plural.

Oblique cases.	Nominative	راتیں rátēn,	the nights
	Genitive	راتوں کا -کی rátōn ká, -ke, -ki,	of the nights
	Dative	راتوں کو rátōn-ko,	to the nights
	Accusative	{ راتیں rátēn, راتوں کو rátōn-ko, }	the nights
	Ablative	راتوں سے rátōn-se,	from the nights
	Locative	راتوں میں -پر rátōn-men, -par,	in, on, the nights
	Agent	راتوں نے rátōn-ne,	by the nights
	Vocative	ای راتو ai ráto,	O nights!

Feminine nouns ending in ی ī, add ان -án in the nominative plural; thus روتی rotī, 'bread,' 'a loaf,' nom. plur. روتیان rotiyán. In the oblique cases plural, they add وں -ōn as above.

In like manner a few words in و ú, add ان -án, as جورو jorú, 'a wife,' nom. plur. jorucán or jorú,án.

a. We may now take a brief view of the formation of the cases.

It will be seen that in the singular, the oblique cases are formed directly from the nominative, which remains unchanged. by the addition of the various post-positions. The genitive case has three forms of the post-position, all of them, however, having the same signification, the choice to be determined by a very simple rule which belongs to the Syntax. The accusative is either like the nominative or like the dative; the choice, in many instances, depending on circumstances which will be mentioned hereafter. The nominative plural adds en to the singular (án if the singular be in i). The oblique cases plural in the first place add on to the singular, and to that they affix the various post-positions; it will be observed that the accusative plural is either like the nominative or dative plural. The vocative plural is always formed by dropping the final n of the oblique cases. Let it also be remembered that the final ن added in the formation of the cases of the plural number is always nasal. Vide letter ن, page 6.

Class II.—Including all Masculine Nouns, with the exception of such as end in ا (purely Indian), ان án, and ه h.

Example, مرد mard, 'man.'

	Singular.	Plural.
N.	مرد mard , man.	مردن mard , men.
G.	مرد کا۔ کی۔ مارد mard-ká , etc., of man.	مردون کا۔ کی۔ ماردون mardon-ká , etc., of men.
D.	مرد کو mard-ko , to man.	مردون کو mardon-ko , to men.
Ac.	{ مرد mard , مرد کو mard-ko , } man.	{ مرد mard , مردون کو mardon-ko , } men.
Ab.	مرد سے mard-se , from man.	مردون سے mardon-se , from men.
L.	مرد میں۔ پر۔ mard-meñ , - par , in, on, man.	مردون میں۔ پر۔ mardon-meñ , - par , in, on, men.
Ag.	مرد نی mard-ne , by man.	مردون نی mardon-ne , by men.
V.	ای مرد ai mard , O man!	ای مردو ai mardo , O men!

This class, throughout the singular, is exactly like class I., and in the plural the only difference consists in the absence of any termination added to the nominative, and consequently to the first form of the accusative, which is the same.

All the other cases in the plural are formed precisely as before. It must be admitted that the want of a distinct termination to distinguish the nominative plural from the singular, however, in Class II. is a defect in the language. This, however, seldom occasions any ambiguity, the sense being quite obvious from the context. The German is liable to a similar charge, and sometimes even the English, in the use of such words as 'deer,' 'sheep,' 'swine,' and a few others.

Class III.—Including Masculine Nouns purely Indian ending in اُ á, a few ending in اُن án, and several words, chiefly from the Persian, ending in the imperceptible s or short a.

Example, كُتّا kuttá, 'a dog.'

	Singular.		Plural.
N.	كُتّا kuttá , a dog.		كُتّي kutte , dogs.
G.	كُتّي كا-كِي kutte-ká , etc., of a dog.		كُتون كا-كِي kutton-ká , etc., of dogs.
D.	كُتّي كو kutte-ko , to a dog.		كُتون كو kutton-ko , to dogs.
Ac.	{ كُتّا kuttá , كُتّي كو kutte-ko , } a dog		{ كُتّي kutte , كُتون كو kutton-ko , } dogs.
Ab.	كُتّي سي kutte-se , from a dog.		كُتون سي kutton-se , from dogs.
Loc.	كُتّي مين-پر kutte-men , - par , in, on, a dog.		كُتون مين-پر kutton-men , - par , in, on, dogs.
Ag.	كُتّي ني kutte-ne , by a dog.		كُتون ني kutton - ne , by dogs.
Voc.	اَي كُتّي ai kutte , O dog!		اَي كُتون ai kutto , O dogs!

a. In like manner may be declined many words ending in s, as بَند banda, 'a slave,' gen. bande-ká, etc., nom. plur. bande, 'slaves,' gen. bandon-ká, etc. Nouns in án are not very numerous, and as the final n is very little, if at all, sounded; it is often omitted in writing; thus بنيان baniyán or بنيا baniyá, 'a trader,' gen. baniyen-ká or baniye-ká, which last is the more common. In the ordinal numbers, such as دَسَوَان daswán, 'the tenth,' etc., the nasal n generally remains in the inflection, as دَسَوِيَن daswen-ká, etc., 'of the tenth.' In the oblique cases plural, the an ان is changed into on ون. With regard to this third class of words, we have one remark to add; which is, that the vocative singular is often to be met with uninflected, like the nominative as ai betá آي بيتا for ai آي بيتي, 'O son!'

b. The peculiarity of Class III. is, that the terminations á ا and a ا, of the nominative singular, are entirely displaced in the oblique cases singular and nominative plural by e ي, and in the oblique cases plural by on ون. This change or displacement of termination is called 'inflection,' and it is limited to masculine nouns only with the above terminations; for feminines ending in an ان or s س, are never inflected, nor are all masculines ending in the same, subject to it. A considerable number of masculine nouns ending in á ا, purely Arabic, Persian, or Sauskrit, are not inflected, and consequently belong to Class II. On the other hand, masculine nouns purely Indian, such for example as the infinitives and participles of verbs used substantively or adjectively, are uniformly subject to inflection. In like manner, several masculine nouns ending in the imperceptible s are not subject to inflection, and as these are not reducible to any rule, the student must be guided by practice.

c. Masculines in s from the Persian often change the s into á ا in Hindústání; thus darja درجه, 'grade,' 'rank,' becomes darjá درجا; so maza مزه, 'taste,' becomes mazá مزه. All such words are subject to inflection, for by this change they become as it were 'Indianized.' The final s is not inflected if in a state of construction (agreeably to the rules of Persian grammar) with another word, as didá-i kosh men دیده هوش مین, 'in the eye of prudence;' zabán-i rekhta men زبان ریخته مین, 'in the Rekhta or mixed dialect.'

26. General rules for the Declension of Nouns. —

1. In classes I. and II. the nominative singular remains unaltered throughout, the plural terminations being superadded. 2. In class III. the nominative singular is changed or inflected into e ي, for the oblique singular and nominative plural, and the terminations of the oblique cases plural are substituted for, not added to, the termination of the singular. 3. All plurals end in ون on in the oblique cases, that is, whenever a post-position is added or understood. 4. The vocative plural always ends in و o, having dropped the final ن n of the oblique. 5. Words of the first and second classes, consisting of two short syllables, the last of which being fatha, drop the fatha on receiving a plural termination; thus طرف taraf, 'aside,' nom. plur. طرفين tarfen, gen. طرفون tarfon-ká, etc., not tarafen, etc.

a. A few words are subject to slight deviations from the strict rule, among which we may mention the following. 1. Words ending ن nw, preceded by a long vowel, as نانو nánw, 'a name,' پانو pánw, 'the foot,' and گانو gánw, 'a village,' reject the نو nw, and substitute the mark hamza on receiving a plural termination: thus, پاؤن pá,on ká, etc. 'of the feet.' 2. The word گای gá,e, 'a cow,' makes in the nominative plural گاین gá,en, and in the oblique plural گاؤن gá,on, thus resembling the oblique plural of گانو gánw, 'a village.' 3. A few feminine diminutives in یا iyá, like راندی randiyá, chiriyá, etc. form the nominative plural by merely adding a nasal n, as چتریان chiriyán, which is evidently a contraction for chiriyá,en, the regular form. 4. Masculines of the third class ending in ی ya, may follow the general rule, or change the ی y into a hamza before the inflection; thus سایه sáya, 'a shade (of a tree),' gen. سایہ کا sáye-ká, or سائی کا sá,e-ká. 5. The word روپیہ rúpiya, 'a rupee,' has generally روپی rúpi, for the nominative plural.

27. Post-position.—In this work, to avoid confusion, we apply the term post-position only to those inseparable particles or terminations which invariably follow the nouns to which they belong. They may be united with their substantives so as to appear like the case terminations in Latin, Greek, and Sanskrit, or they may be written separately, as we have given them in the examples for declension. The most useful and important of them are the following, viz.: کا ká, کی ke, کی ki,

'of,' the sign of the genitive case; کو ko 'to,' the sign of the dative, and sometimes of the accusative or objective case; سی se 'from,' or 'with,' (also سون son, سین sen, سیتی siti, are occasionally met with), the sign of the ablative and instrumental; پر par (sometimes in poetry پہ pa), 'upon,' 'on,' 'at,' مین men, 'in,' 'into,' تک tak, تلک talak, لگ lag, 'up to,' 'as far as,' 'till,' one of the signs of the locative case; and, lastly, نی ne, 'by,' the sign of the agent.

a. The post-positions require the words to which they are affixed to be in the inflected form, if they belong to Class III.; and they are generally united with the oblique form in ون on of all plurals. On the other hand, an inflected form in the singular can only occur in combination with a post-position, expressed or understood; and the same rule applies to all bonâ fide oblique forms in ون on of the plural. There are a few expressions in which the oblique form in ون on is used for the nominative plural; and when a numeral precedes, the nominative form may be used for the oblique, as will be noticed more fully in the Syntax.

OF ADJECTIVES.

28. Adjectives in Hindústání generally precede their substantives, and with the exception of those which are purely Indian words and ending in ۱ á, together with a few from the Persian ending in s or short a, they are, as in English, indeclinable. Words purely Indian, ending in ۱ á, change the final ۱ á into ی e, when they qualify or agree with a masculine noun in any case except the nominative singular (or the first form of the accusative, which is the same); and the ۱ á is changed into ی i with feminine nouns. Thus, the adjective خوب khúb, 'good,' 'fair,' is the same before nouns of either gender or number in all cases, as khúb jánwar, 'a fine animal; khúb larí, 'a fair girl'; khúb randiyán, 'fine women,' khúb ghore, 'beautiful horses.' Again the adjective كالا kálá, 'black,' is used in that form only before masculine nouns, in the nominative or the first form of the accusative singular; it will become كالي káli, before masculine nouns in the oblique cases singular and throughout the plural, as kálá mard, 'a black man,' kále mard-ká, 'of a black man,' kále mard, 'black men,' kále mardon-se, 'from black men.' Lastly, before feminine nouns, kálá becomes كالي káli for both numbers and in all cases, as káli rát, 'the dark night,' káli rát-se, 'from the dark night,' káli ráton-ká, 'of the dark nights,' etc.

a. Hence it appears, as a general rule:—1. That adjectives, before feminine nouns, have no variation on account of case or number. 2. That adjectives terminating like nouns of the first and second classes are indeclinable; and lastly, that adjectives, terminating like nouns of the third class, are subject to a slight inflection like the oblique singular of the substantives of that class.

b. The cardinal numbers, ek, 'one,' do, 'two,' etc., are all indeclinable when used adjectively. The ordinals above pánchwán, 'the fifth,' inclusive, follow the general rule, that is, pánchwán is inflected into pánchwen before the oblique cases of masculines, and it becomes pánchwín before feminine nouns.

c. Adjectives ending in s or short a, which are principally borrowed from the Persian; are, for the most part, indeclinable. There are some, however, which are inflected into ي e for the masculine, and ی i for the feminine, like those ending in ا á; among these may be reckoned راندند ránda, 'rejected,' سادہ sáda, 'plain,' عُمدد 'amadd, 'exalted,' گندہ ganda, 'fetid,' مَاندَد mánda, 'tired,' خُرندہ khurinda, 'gluttonous,' شَرَمندد sharminda, 'ashamed,' کَمینہ kamina, 'mean,' بیچارہ bechára, 'helpless,' ناکارہ nákára, 'useless,' نَایدَد nádidá, 'unseen,' حرامزادہ harám-záda 'base-born, یک ساله yak-sálah, 'annual,' 'one year old,' دو ساله do sálah, 'biennial,' and perhaps a few more.

d. The majority of adjectives purely Indian, together with all present and past participles of verbs, end in á (subject to inflection) for the masculine, and ی i for the feminine. All adjectives in á, purely Persian or Arabic, are indeclinable, with perhaps the sole exception of جدا judá, 'separate,' 'distinct,' and a few that may have become naturalized in Hindústání by changing the final s of the Persian into á, like فلانا fulána, 'such a one,' or 'so and so.'

29. Degrees of Comparison. — The adjectives in Hindústání have no regular degrees of comparison, and the manner in which this defect is supplied will be fully explained in the Syntax. Suffice it here to say that when two objects are compared, that with which the comparison is made is put in the ablative case, like the Latin. Thus, for example, 'this house is high,' یہ گھر بلند ہے yih ghar buland hai; 'this house is higher than the tree,' یہ گھر درخت سے بلند ہے yih ghar darakht-se buland hai, literally 'this house (compared) with the tree is high.' The superlative degree is merely an extreme comparison formed by reference to the word سب sab, 'all,' as یہ گھر سب سے بلند ہے yih ghar sab-se buland hai, 'this house (compared) with all is high,' or 'this is the highest house of all.'

OF PRONOUNS.

Personal Pronouns

30. The pronouns differ more or less from the substantives in their mode of inflection. Those of the first and second persons form the genitive in را rá, ری re, and ی rí, instead of کا ká, etc. They have a distinct dative and accusative form in ي e (singular), and ين en (plural), besides that made by the sign كو ko. They also form the oblique in a manner peculiar to themselves, and admit generally of the elision of the termination ون on, in the oblique plural. They have the dative and accusative cases in both numbers the same; and lastly, the cases of the agent are never inflected in the singular, these being always main-ne and tú-ne or tain-ne; never mujh-ne, or tujh-ne.

The first personal pronoun is thus declined:—

مَیْن main, 'I.'
Singular.	Plural.
N. مَیْن main, I.	ہم ham, We.
G. { میرا merá, mere } my, میری merí, f. } of me	ہمارا hamárá, hamáre } our. ہماری hamárí, f. }
D. & { مجھے mujhe, } me, or Ac. { مجھ کو mujh-ko, } to me.	ہمیں hamén, } us, or ہم کو ham-ko, } ہمون کو hamon-ko, } to us.
A. مجھ سے mujh-se, from me.	ہم سے ham se, } from us. ہمون سے hamon se, }
L. مجھ میں mujh-men, in me.	ہم میں ham-men, } in us. ہمون میں hamon men, }
Ag. مَیْن نی main-ne, by me.	ہم نی ham-ne, } by us. ہمون نی hamon ne, }

In this example we have three forms essentially distinct from each other, viz., the nominative, genitive, and oblique modification in the singular, as مَیْن main, میرا merá, مجھے mujh; and in the plural ہم ham, ہمارا hamárá, and ہم ham or ہمون hamon. From the oblique modifications,—مجھ mujh, and ہم ham or ہمون hamon,—the other oblique cases are formed by adding the requisite post-positions, except that the case denoting the agent is in the singular مَیں main ne.

The second personal pronoun تُو tú or تَیں tain is declined in a similar manner.

Singular.	Plural.
N. تَیں or تُو tú or tain , Thou.	تُمْ tum , You.
G. تیرا terá , etc., thy.	تُمہارا tumhárá , etc., your.
D. & { تُجھی tujhe , } to thee,	{ تُمہیں tumheñ , to you.
Ac. { تُجھ کو tujh-ko , } or thee.	{ تُم کو tum-ko , or tumhoñ-ko , you.
A. تُجھ سے tujh-se , from thee.	تُم سے tum-se , or tumhoñ-se , from you.
L. تُجھ میں tujh meñ , in thee.	تُم میں tum-meñ , or tumhoñ-meñ , in you.
Ag. تُو نے tú-ne , by thee.	تُم نے tum-ne , or tumhoñ-ne , by you.
V. اے تُو ai tú , O thou!	اے تُم ai tum , O ye!

Demonstrative Pronouns.

31. In Hindústání the demonstrative pronouns, 'this,' 'that,' 'these,' and 'those,' at the same time supply the place of our third person 'he,' 'she,' 'it,' and 'they.' They are the same for both genders, and the context alone determines how they are to be rendered into English. The word یہ yih, 'this,' 'he,' 'she,' or 'it,' is used when reference is made to a person or object that is near; and وہ wuh, 'that,' 'he,' 'she,' or 'it,' when we refer to that which is more remote. The proximate demonstrative yih, 'he,' 'she,' 'it,' 'this,' is declined as follows:—

Singular.	Plural.
N. yih , this, he, etc.	ye , these, they.
G. is-ká , - ke , - kí , of this, him, etc.	in-ká , - ke , kí , of these, of them.
D. is-ko or ise , to this, to him, etc.	in-ko or inheñ , or inhonko , to these, or to them.
Ac. yih , is-ko , ise , this, him, etc.	ye , in-ko , or inheñ , these, them.
Ab. is-se , from this, him, etc.	in-se , from these, from them.
L. is-men , in this, or in him, etc.	in men , in these, in them.
Ag. is-ne , by this, or by him, etc.	in-ne , by these, by them.

In this example we see that the nominative yih is changed into is for the oblique cases singular, and the nominative plural ye becomes in for the oblique plural, just as in the English 'he' becomes 'him,' and 'they' 'them.' In the oblique cases plural, it may be mentioned that besides the form in, we sometimes meet with inh and inhon, though not so commonly. The dative singular has two forms, one by adding ko, like the substantives, and another by adding e, as is-ko or is-e; in the plural we have in-ko and in-heñ. The accusative is generally like the dative, but often the same as the nominative, as in the declension of substantives.

32. The demonstrative ú, 'that,' 'he,' 'she,' 'it' the interrogative kaun, 'who?' 'what?' the relative

جو jo, 'he who,' 'she who,' etc., and the correlative سو so, 'that same,' are precisely similar in termination to یہ ye in the foregoing example; hence it will suffice to give the nominatives, and one or two oblique cases of each, thus:—

Remote Demonstrative.

	Singular.		Plural.
N.	وہ wuh , he, she, it, or that.		وہی we , they, those.
G.	اُس کا us-ká , etc.		اُن کا un-ká , or unhon-ká .
D.	اُس کو us-ko , or use .		اُن کو un-ko , or unhen .

Interrogative (applied to persons or individuals).

N.	کون kaun , who, which.		کون kaun , who, which.
G.	کس کا kis-ká , etc.		کُن کا kin-ká , or kinhon-ká , etc.

Interrogative (applied to matter or quantity).

N.	کیا kyá , what.		Same as the singular.
G.	کاہی káhe-ká , etc.

Relative.

	Singular.		Plural.
N.	جو jo or جون jaun , He who, she who, that which.		جو jo or jaun , They who, those who, or which.
G.	جس کا jis-ká , etc.		جِن کا jín-ká , jinhon-ká , etc.
D.	جس کو jis-ko , etc.		جِن کو jín-ko , or jinhén .

Correlative.

N.	سو so or تون taun , That same .		سو so or تون taun , These same .
G.	تس کا tis-ká , etc.		تِن کا tín-ká or tinhon-ká , etc.
D.	تس کو tis-ko , tise .		تِن کو tín-ko , tinhén .

¹ Sometimes وِس wis ká, etc.; and in the plur. وِن win or وِنِه winh, or وِنِهون winhon-, ká, etc.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

33. The genitives singular and plural of the personal and demonstrative pronouns are used adjectively as possessives, like the meus, tuus, noster, vester, etc., of the Latin, and in construction they follow the rule given respecting adjectives in § 1. There is, however, in addition to these, another possessive of frequent occurrence, viz. اَپْنا apná, اَپْني apne, اَپْني apní, 'own,' or 'belonging to self; which, under certain circumstances, supplies the place of any of the rest, as will be fully explained in the Syntax. The word اَپْ áp, 'self,' is used with or without the personal pronouns; thus, مَينَ اَپْ main áp, 'I myself,' which meaning may be conveyed by employing اَپْ áp alone. But the most frequent use of اَپْ áp is as a substitute for the second person, to express respect, when it may be translated, 'you,' 'sir,' 'your honour,' 'your worship,' etc. When used in this sense, اَپْ áp is declined like a word of the second class of substantives under the singular form, thus:—

N.	اَپْ	áp , your honour.
G.	اَپْ كَا - كِي - كِي	áp-ká, -ke, -kí , of your honour.
D. & Ac.	اَپْ كُو	áp-ko , to your honour, your honour.
A.	اَپْ سِي	áp-se , from your honour.
L.	اَپْ مَينَ	áp-men , in your honour.
Agt.	اَپْ نِي	áp-ne , by your honour.

When the word اَپْ áp denotes 'self,' it is declined as follows:—

N.	اَپْ	áp , self, myself, etc.
G.	اَپْنا اَپْني اَپْني	apná, apne, apní , own, of self, etc.

D. & A. { آپ کو اپنی تو } ap-ko or apne-ko, } to-self, self.
 اپنی تمہیں } or apne ta, in,

The phrase آپس میں apas-mein denotes 'among ourselves,' 'yourselves,' or 'themselves,' according to the nominative of the sentence.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

34. Under this head we class all those words which have more or less of a pronominal signification. The following are of frequent occurrence:—ایک ek, 'one'; دوسرا dusrā, 'another'; دونو dono, or دونوں donon, 'both'; اور aur, 'other (more)'; غیر ghair, 'other, (different)'; بعضی ba'ze, 'certain'; بہت bahut, 'many,' 'much'; سب sab, 'all,' 'every'; ہر har, 'each'; فلاں fulāna or فلاں fulānā, 'a certain one'; کوئی ko'i, 'any one,' 'some one'; کچھ kuchh, 'any thing,' 'something'; کئی ka,i and چند chand, 'some,' 'several,' 'many'; کتنا kitnā or کتا kittā, 'how many?'; جتنا jitnā or جتا jittā, 'as many'; اتنا itnā or اتا ittā, 'so many.' They are all regular in their inflections, with the exception of کوئی ko,i, 'any,' and کچھ kuchh, 'some,' which are thus declined:—

Singular.		Plural.
N.	کوئی ko,i , Any one, some one.	کوئی ko,i or کئی ka,i , some several.
Obl.	کسی kisī-kā , etc.	کینی kinī-kā , etc.
		کچھ kuchh .
N.	کچھ kuchh , Any thing, something.	کچھ kuchh , any, some, etc.
Obl.	کسو kisū-kā , etc.	کنو kinū-kā , etc.

* We have given the oblique forms of the plural kinī and kinū on the authority of Mr. Yates; at the same time we must confess that we never met with either of them in the course of our reading.

a. The word ko, i, unaccompanied by a substantive, is generally understood to signify a person or persons, as ko, i hai? 'is there any one?' (vulgarly qui hy); and in similar circumstances kuchh refers to things in general, as kuchh nahin, 'there is nothing,' 'no matter.' When used adjectively, ko, i and kuchh may be applied to persons or things indifferently, particularly so in the oblique cases.

b. The following is a useful list of compound adjective pronouns; and as almost all of them have already been noticed in their simple forms, it has been deemed superfluous to add the pronunciation in Roman characters. They are for the most part of the indefinite kind, and follow the inflections of the simple forms of which they are composed; thus ek ko, i, 'some one,' ek kisi-ká, etc., 'of some one.' If both members be subject to inflection in the simple forms, the same is observed in the compound, as jo-ko, i, 'whosoever,' jis-kisi-ká, etc., 'of whomsoever,' so jo-kuchh, 'whatsoever,' jis-kisú-ká, etc., 'of whatsoever.'

The compound adjective pronouns of the indefinite kind are ایک کوئی, 'some one,' اور ایک, 'another,' دوسرا ایک, 'one or other,' ایک نہ ایک, 'some other,' دوسرا کچھ, 'something else,' اور کچھ, 'the rest,' بعضی اور بعضی کوئی, 'many a one,' بہت اور بہت کچھ, 'many more,' سب کوئی, 'every one,' ہر کچھ, 'every thing,' سب ایک, 'whichever,' کوئی ایک, 'some other,' جو کچھ, 'whoever,' جو کوئی, 'somewhat,' اور کچھ, 'some more,' نہ کچھ, 'something or other.' The use and application of all the pronouns will be fully explained under that head in the Syntax.

SECTION III.

OF THE VERB (فعل; F'IL).

35. All verbs in Hindústání are conjugated in exactly the same manner. So far as terminations are concerned, there is not a single irregular verb in the language. There is, strictly speaking, but one simple tense (the aorist), which is characterized by distinct personal endings; the other tenses being formed by means of the present and past participles, together with the auxiliary 'to be.' The infinitive or verbal noun, which always ends in ن ná (subject to inflection), is the form in which verbs are given in Dictionaries; hence it will be of more practical utility to consider this as the source from which all the other parts spring.

36. From the infinitive are formed, by very simple and invariable rules, the three principal parts of the verb, which are the following:—1. The second person singular of the imperative or root, by rejecting the final ن ná; as from بولنا bolná, 'to speak,' comes بول bol, 'speak thou.' 2. The present participle, which is always formed by changing the final ن ná of the infinitive into ت tá, as بولنا bolná, 'to speak,' بولتا boltá, 'speaking.' 3. The past participle is formed by leaving out the ن n of the infinitive, as بولنا bolná, 'to speak,' بولا bolá, 'spoken.' If, however, the ن ná of the infinitive be preceded by the long vowels ا á or و o, the past participle is formed by changing the ن n into ي y, in order to avoid a disagreeable hiatus; thus from لانا láná, 'to bring,' comes لای láyá (not لا lá-á) 'brought;' so رونا roná, 'to weep,' makes رويا royá in the past participle. These three parts being thus ascertained, it will be very easy to form all the various tenses, etc., as in the examples which we are about to subjoin.

37. As a preliminary step to the conjugation of all verbs, it will be necessary to learn carefully the following fragments of the auxiliary verb 'to be,' which frequently occur in the language, not only in the formation of tenses, but in the mere assertion of simple existence.

Present Tense.

Singular.	Plural.
مَينَ هُون main hún , I am.	هَمَ هَيْنَ ham haiñ , we are.
تُو هَي tú hai , thou art.	تُم هُو tum ho , you are.
وُهَ هَي wuh hai , he, she, it is.	وَيَ هَيْنَ we haiñ , they are.

Past Tense.

مَينَ ثَا main thá , I was.	هَمَ تَهَي ham the , we were.
تُو ثَا tú thá , thou wast.	تُم تَهَي tum the , you were.
وُهَ ثَا wuh thá , he or it was.	وَيَ تَهَي we the , they were.

a. The first of these tenses is a curiosity in its way, as it is the only present tense in the language characterized by different terminations, and independent of gender. Instead of the form هَي hai, in the second and third persons singular, كَيَا haigá is frequently met with in verse; and in the plural, كَيْنَا haiñge for كَيْنَ haiñ in the first and third persons. In the past tense, ثَا thá of the singular becomes تَهَي thi when the nominative is feminine, and in the plural تَهَيْنَ thin. We may here remark that throughout the conjugation of all verbs, when the singular terminates in á (masculine), the plural becomes e; and if the nominative be feminine, the á becomes i for the singular and in (contracted for iyán) for the plural. If several feminine terminations in the plural follow in succession, the in is added only to the last, but even here there are exceptions.

38. We shall now proceed to the conjugation of an intransitive or neuter verb, and with a view to assist the memory, we shall arrange the tenses in the order of their formation from the three principal parts already explained. The tenses, as will be seen, are nine in number—three tenses being formed from each of the three principal parts. A few additional tenses of comparatively rare occurrence will be detailed hereafter.

Infinitive, بولنا bolnā, To speak.

Principal parts.	Imperative and root	بول bol , speak (thou).
	Present participle	بولتا bolta , speaking.
	Past participle	بولا bolā , spoke or spoken.

1. TENSES FORMED FROM THE ROOT :

Aorist.

English—‘I may speak,’ etc.

مَين بُولُون main bolūn .	ہم بولين ham bolēn .
تُو بولي tū bole .	تُم بولو tum bolo .
وہ بولي wuh bole .	وي بولين we bolēn .

Future.

English—‘I shall or will speak,’ etc.

مَين بُولُونگ main bolūngā .	ہم بولينگي ham bolēnge .
تُو بوليگا tū bolegā .	تُم بولوگي tum bologe .
وہ بوليگا wuh bolegā .	وي بولينگي we bolēnge .
fem. bolūngī , etc.	fem. bolēngīn , etc.

Imperative.

English—‘Let me speak, speak thou,’ etc.

مَين بُولُون main bolūn .	ہم بولين ham bolēn .
تُو بول tū bōl .	تُم بولو tum bolo .
وہ بولي wuh bolē .	وي بولين we bolēn .

2. TENSES FORMED FROM THE PRESENT PARTICIPLE :

Indefinite.

English (as a present tense)—‘I speak, thou speakest,’ etc.; (conditional)—‘If I spoke, had I spoken,’ etc.; (habitual)—‘I used to speak.’

مَيْن بولتا main boltá.

تُو بولتا tú boltá.

وُه بولتا wuh boltá.

هم بولتي ham bolte.

تُم بولتي tum bolte.

وي بولتي we bolte.

Present.

English—‘I speak or am speaking,’ etc.

مَيْن بولتا هُون main boltá hún.

تُو بولتا هَي tú boltá hai.

وُه بولتا هَي wuh boltá hai.

هم بولتي هَيْن ham bolte hain.

تُم بولتي هُو tum bolte ho.

وي بولتي هَيْن we bolte hain.

Imperfect.

English—‘I was speaking, thou wast,’ etc.

مَيْن بولتا تَهَا main boltá thá.

تُو بولتا تَهَا tú boltá thá.

وُه بولتا تَهَا wuh boltá thá.

هم بولتي تَهَي ham bolte the.

تُم بولتي تَهَي tum bolte the.

وي بولتي تَهَي we bolte the.

3. TENSES FORMED FROM THE PAST PARTICIPLE :

Past.

English—‘I spoke, thou spokest,’ etc.

مَيْن بولا main bolá.

تُو بولا tú bolá.

وُه بولا wuh bolá.

هم بولي ham bole.

تُم بولي tum bole.

وي بولي we bole.

Perfect.

English—‘I have spoken, thou hast,’ etc.

مَيْن بولا هُون main bolá hún.

تُو بولا هَي tú bolá hai.

وُه بولا هَي wuh bolá hai.

هم بولي هَيْن ham bole hain.

تُم بولي هُو tum bole ho.

وي بولي هَيْن we bole hain.

Pluperfect.

English—‘I had spoken, thou hadst spoken,’ etc.

ماين بولا تھا main bolá thá.	هم بولي تهي ham bole the.
تُو بولا تھا tú bolá thá.	تُم بولي تهي tum bole the.
وُد بولا تھا wuh bolá thá.	وي بولي تهي we bole the.

4. MISCELLANEOUS VERBAL EXPRESSIONS :

Respectful Imperative or Precative.

بوليے boliye or بوليُو boliyo, ‘You, he, etc., be pleased to speak.’
 بوليگ boliyegá, ‘You, he, etc., will have the goodness to speak.’

Infinitive (used as a gerund or verbal noun).

Nom. بولنا bolná, ‘Speaking:’ gen. بولني کا bolne-ká, etc., ‘Of speaking,’ etc., like substantives of the third class.

Noun of Agency.

بولني والا bolne-walá, and sometimes بولني هارا bolne-hará, ‘A speaker,’ ‘one who is capable of speaking.’

Participles, used adjectively.

Singular.	Plural.
Pres. بولتا boltá or بولتا هُوَ boltá hú,á , fem. bolthi or bolthi hú,í.	بولتي bolte or بولتي هُوِي bolte hú,e , fem. bolthin or bolthi hú,in.
Past. بولا bolá or بولا هُوَ bolá hú,á , fem. bolí or bolí hú,í.	بولي bole or بولي هُوِي bole hú,é , fem. bolin or bolí hú,in.

Conjunctive (indeclinable). بول bol, بولي bole, بولكي bolke, بولكار bolkar, بول كر كي bol kar-ke, or بول كر كر bol karkar, ‘having spoken.’

Adverbial participle (indeclinable). بولتي هي bolte-hi, ‘On speaking, or on (the instant of) speaking.’

a. We may here briefly notice how the various portions of the verb are formed. The aorist, it will be seen, is the only part worthy of the name of tense, and it proceeds directly from the root by adding the terminations ín, e, e, for the singular, and en, o, en, for the plural. The future is formed directly from the aorist by adding ga to the singular and ge to the plural for masculines, or by adding gi and giyán (generally contracted into gín) when the nominative to the verb is feminine. The imperative differs from the aorist merely in the second person singular, by using the bare root without the addition of the termination e. Hence, the future and imperative are mere modifications of the aorist, which we have placed first, as the tense par excellence. It is needless to offer any remark on the tenses formed from the present participle, as the reader will easily learn them by inspection. The three tenses from the past participle are equally simple in all neuter or intransitive verbs; but in transitive verbs they are subject to a peculiarity of construction, which will be noticed further on. The proper use and application of the various tenses and other parts of the verb will be fully treated of in the Syntax.

b. As the aorist holds the most prominent rank in the Hindústání verb, it will be proper to notice in this place a few euphonic peculiarities to which it is subject. 1. When the root ends in d, the letter w is optionally inserted in the aorist between the root and those terminations that begin with e; thus لَانَ lána, 'to bring,' root لَ lá, Aorist, لَوِي láwé or لَئِي lá,e. 2. When the aorist ends in o, the letter w is optionally inserted, or the general rule may be observed, or the initial vowels of the termination may all vanish, as will be seen in the verb honá, which we are about to subjoin. Lastly, when the root ends in e, the letter w may be inserted between the root and those terminations which begin with e, or the w being omitted, the final e of the root is absorbed in the terminations throughout. Thus دَنَا dená, 'to give,' root دِي de, Aorist, deún, dewe, dewe; dewen de,o, dewen; or, contracted, dún, de, de; deñ, do, deñ. It is needless to add that the future and imperative of all such verbs are subject to the same modification. With regard to the respectful form of the imperative and future, we see at once that it comes from the root by adding 'iye, 'iyo, or 'iyegá; if, however, the root happens to end in the long vowels í or ú, the letter j is inserted between the root and the termination. Thus پَیْنَا píná, 'to drink,' root, pí, respectful form, p'íiye, p'íiyo, and p'íiyeqá.

39. We now come to the verb هونا honá, 'to be, or become,' which, being of frequent occurrence, is worthy of the reader's attention. It is perfectly regular in the formation of all its tenses, etc., and conjugated precisely like bolná, already given. The past participle changes the o of the root into ú, instead of retaining the o and inserting the euphonic y (No. 36), thus هُؤَا hú,á, 'been or become,' not هُؤَا hoyá; so the respectful imperative is hújye, etc.; but these slight peculiarities do not in the least affect the regularity of its conjugation, as will be seen in the paradigm.

Infinitive, هونا honá, 'To be, or become.'

Root هو ho, present participle هوتا hotá, past participle هُؤَا hú,a.

Aorist.

'I may, or shall be, or become.'

هون-	مَينَ هَوُونِ	main ho,ún, or hon.
هو-هَوِي-	تُو هَوَوِي	tú howe, ho,e or ho.
هو-هَوِي-	وُد هَوَوِي	wuh howe, ho,e, or ho.
هون-هَوِين-	هَم هَوَوِين	ham howen, ho,en, or hon.
هو-	تُم هَوُو	tum ho,o or ho.
هون-هَوِين-	وِي هَوَوِين	we howen, ho,en, or hon.

Future.

'I shall or will be, or become.'

هونگا-	مَينَ هَوُونْگَا	main ho,úngá, or húngá.
هوگا-هَوِيْگَا-	تُو هَوَوِيْگَا	tú howegá, ho,egá, or hogá.
هوگا-هَوِيْگَا-	وُد هَوَوِيْگَا	wuh howegá, ho,egá, or hogá.
هونگي-هَوِيْنْگِي-	هَم هَوَوِيْنْگِي	ham howenge, ho,enge, or hongé.
هوگي-هَوِيْگِي-	تُم هَوُوْگِي	tum ho,oge, or hoge.
هونگي-هَوِيْنْگِي-	وِي هَوَوِيْنْگِي	we howenge, ho,enge, or hunge

Imperative.

Let me be, be thou,' etc.

هون - مَينَ هُون main ho-ún or hoñ.

تُو تُو tú ho.

هُوِي - هُوِي wuh howe, ho, e, or h.

هون - هُونِ - هُونِ ham howen, ho-en, or non.

هُو تُم tum ho, o, or ho.

هون - هُونِ - هُونِ we howen, ho-en, or hoñ.

Indefinite.

'I am, I might be, I used to be, or become.'

هوتا	{	مَينَ main	{	hotá.		هوتي	{	هم ham	{	hote
		تُو tú				تُم tum
		وُه wuh				وي we

Present.

'I am, or I become,' etc.

هوتا هُون main hotá hún.		هم هوتي هِين ham hote hain.
تُو هوتا هَي tú hotá hai.		تُم هوتي هُو tum hote ho.
وُه هوتا هَي wuh hotá hai.		وي هوتي هِين we hote hain.

Imperfect.

'I was becoming,' etc.

هوتا تَه	{	مَينَ main	{	hotá thá.		هوتي تَهِي	{	هم ham	{	hote the.
		تُو tú				تُم tum

Past.

'I became,' etc.

هوا	{	مَينَ main	{	hú, á.		هوي	{	هم ham	{	hú, a.
		تُو tú				تُم tum
		وُه wuh				وي we

therefore it is but right that they should find a place here. We therefore subjoin them, together with their native appellations. reserving the account of their use and application till we come to the Syntax.

1. Hál-i mutashakkí, literally, 'present dubious.'

English—'I may or shall be speaking.'

- مَیْن بولتا هوون - هوونگا main boltá ho,ún or ho,ungá.
 تُو بولتا هووي - هوويگا tú boltú howe or howegá.
 وُد بولتا هووي - هوويگا wuh boltá howe or howegá.
 هَم بولتي هووين - هووينگا ham bolte howen or howenge.
 تَم بولتي هوو - هووگا tum bolte ho,o or ho,oge.
 وِي بولتي هووين - هووينگا we bolte howen or howenge.

2. Mází mutashakkí or Mashkúk, 'past dubious.'

English—'I may or shall have spoken.'

- مَیْن بولا هوون - هوونگا main bolá ho,ún or holungá.
 تُو بولا هووي - هوويگا tú bolá howe or howegá.
 وُد بولا هووي - هوويگا wuh bolá howe or howegá.
 هَم بولي هووين - هووينگا ham bole howen or howenge.
 تَم بولي هوو - هووگا tum bole ho,o or ho,oge.
 وِي بولي هووين - هووينگا we bole howen or howenge.

3. Mází shartíya or mází mutamanní.

Past Conditional.

English—'Had I been speaking,' or 'had I spoken.'

b. Of these three tenses, the first is of rare occurrence; the second is more common, and the future form of the auxiliary is more usual than the aorist in both tenses. The third tense, or past conditional, is of very rare occurrence under the above form, its place being generally supplied by the simpler form بولتا مین main boltá, the first of the tenses from the present participle, which on account of its various significations we have given under the appellation of the Indefinite Tense. In the 'Father of Hindústání Grammars,' that of Dr. Gilchrist, 4to. Calcutta, 1796, and also in two native treatises in our possession, the various forms 'main boltá,' 'main boltá hotá,' 'main boltá hū,á hotá,' and 'main boldá hotá,' are all included under the appellation of māzī shartī, or māzī mutamannī, that is, 'Past Conditional.' It is true, the form 'main boltá' has occasionally a present signification, but to call it a present tense, as is done in some of our grammars, is leading the student into a gross error, as we shall shew hereafter.

40. We shall now give an example of a transitive verb, which, as we have already hinted, is liable to a peculiarity in those tenses which are formed from the past participle. The full explanation of this anomaly belongs to the Syntax. Suffice it here to say that the construction resembles to a certain extent the passive voice of the corresponding tenses in Latin. Thus for example, the sentence, 'He has written one letter,' may in Latin, and in most European tongues, be expressed in two different ways, by which the assertion amounts to exactly the same thing, viz., 'Ille unam epistolam scripsit,' or 'Ab illo una epistola scripta est.' Now these two modes of expression convey the same idea to the mind, but in Hindústání the latter form only is allowed; thus 'us-ne ek chithī likhī hai,' literally, 'by him one letter has been written.' Hence, in Hindústání those tenses of a transitive verb which are formed from the past participle, will have their nominative cases changed into that form of the ablative expressive of the agent. What ought to be the accusative of the sentence will become the real nominative, with which the verb agrees accordingly, except in some instances when it is requisite that the accusative should have the particle ko affixed, in which case the verb is used in its simplest form of the masculine singular, as we have given it below.

a. It is needless to say that in all verbs the tenses from the root and present participle are formed after the same manner, and the peculiarity above alluded to is limited to transitive verbs only,—and to only four tenses of these,—which it is particularly to be wished that the student should well remember. In the following verb, مَارَنَ márná, ‘to beat or strike,’ we have given all the tenses in ordinary use, together with their various oriental appellations, as given in a treatise on Hindústání Grammar, compiled by a munshí in the service of Mr. Chicheley Plowden. It is a folio volume, written in Hindústání, but without author’s name, date, or title.

Infinitive (maṣḍar) مَارَنَ márná, ‘To beat.’

مَارَ már, ‘beat thou; مَارَتَا mártá, ‘beating’; مَارَا mára, ‘beaten.’

I. TENSES OF THE ROOT:—

Aorist (muṣḍari’).

Singular.	Plural.
مَارُونُ marūn I may beat.	هَم مَارِينِ ham mārīn we may beat.
تُو مَارِي tū māri thou mayst beat.	تُم مَارُو tum māro you may beat.
وَهُ مَارِي waḥ māri he may beat.	وِي مَارِينِ wi mārīn they may beat.

Future (mustakbil’).

مَارُونُگَ marūng I shall or will beat.	هَم مَارِينُگَ ham mārīng we shall or will beat.
تُو مَارِيگَ tū mārig thou shalt or will beat.	تُم مَارُوگَ tum māroḡ you shall or will beat.
وَهُ مَارِيگَ waḥ mārig he shall or will beat.	وِي مَارِينُگَ wi mārīng they shall or will beat.

Imperative {amr}.

Singular.	Plural.
مَارُون let me beat.	هَم مَارِين let us beat.
تَو مَار beat thou.	تَم مَارو beat ye or you.
وَد مَارِي let him beat.	وَي مَارِين let them beat

Respectful form---Máriye, máriyo, or máriyegá.

2. TENSES OF THE PRESENT PARTICIPLE :—

Indefinite, or Past Conditional (mázi shart'i or mázi mutamanni).

مَارِن I beat, etc.	هَم مَارِي we beat.
تَو مَارَتَا thou beatest.	تَم مَارِي ye beat.
وَد مَارَتَا he beats.	وَي مَارِي they beat.

Present (hál).

مَارِن I am beating.	هَم مَارِي كِين we are beating.
تَو مَارَتَا هِي thou art beating.	تَم مَارِي هُو you are beating.
وَد مَارَتَا هِي he is beating.	وَي مَارِي كِين they are beating

Imperfect (istimrari).

مَارِن I was beating.	هَم مَارِي تَبِي we were beating
تَو مَارَتَا تَبِي thou wast beating.	تَم مَارِي تَبِي you were beating
وَد مَارَتَا تَبِي he was beating.	وَي مَارِي تَبِي they were beating.

Present Dubious (hál i mutashakki).

English—‘I may, shall, or will be beating.’

مَارِن مَارَتَا هُوُونَكَا	هَم مَارِي هُوُونَكَا
نَو مَارَتَا هُوُونَكَا	تَم مَارِي هُوُونَكَا
وَد مَارَتَا هُوُونَكَا	وَي مَارِي هُوُونَكَا

3. TENSES OF THE PAST PARTICIPLE :—

Peculiarity.—All the nominatives assume the case of the agent, characterised by the post-position ni, the verb agrees with the object of the sentence in gender and number, or is used impersonally in the masculine singular form.

Past Absolute (mázi mutlak).

English—'I beat or did beat,' etc. Literally, 'It is or was beaten by me, thee, him, us, you, or them.'

Singular.		Plural.

41. We have now, we trust, thoroughly explained the mode of conjugating a Hindústání verb. There is no such thing as an irregular verb in the language; and six words only are slightly anomalous in the formation of the past participle, which last being known, the various tenses unerringly follow according to rule. We here subjoin the words to which we allude, together with their past participles.

INFINITIVES.

PAST PARTICIPLES.

	Singular.		Plural.
	Mas.	Fem.	Mas.	Fem.
جانا jána , To go	گیا gayá	گئی ga,i	گئے ga,e	گئیں ga,in
کرنا karná , to do	کیا kiyá	کی ki	کیئے ki,e	کین kin
مرنا marná , to die	مُؤا mú,a	مُؤی mú,i	مُؤے mú,e	مُؤین mú,in
ہونا honá , to be	هُوا hú,a	هُوی hú,i	هُوے hú,e	هُوین hú,in
دینا dená , to give	دیا diyá	دی di	دیئے di,e	دین din
لینا lená , to take	لیا liyá	لی li	لیئے li,e	لین lin

a. Of these, jána and marná are neuter or intransitive, and conjugated like bolná. The conjugation of honá we have already given in full, and that of karná, dená, and lená, is like márná, 'to beat.' It would be utterly ridiculous, then, to call any of these an irregular verb; for, at the very utmost, the deviation from the general rule is not so great as in the Latin verbs, do, dedi, datum; or cerno, crevi, etc., which no grammarian would on that account consider as irregular.

b. The peculiarities in the past participles of honá, dená,¹ and lená, are merely on the score of euphony. The verb jána takes its infinitive and present participle evidently from the Sanskrit root या yá, the y being convertible into j, as is well known, in the modern tongues of Sanskrit origin. Again, the past participle gayá, seems to have arisen from the root गम, which also denotes 'to go.' In the case of karná, 'to do, make,' it springs naturally enough from the modified form kar, of the root कृ kri, and at the same time there would appear to have been another infinitive, kiná, directly from the Sanskrit root, by changing the ri into i,; hence the respectful imperative of this verb has two forms, kariye and kíjiye, while the past participle kiyá comes from kiná, the same as piyá from píná, 'to drink.' Lastly, marná, mar, is from the modified form of मृ mri; at the same time the form múndá, whence mú, á, may have been in use; for we know that in the Prákrit, which is a connecting link between the Sanskrit and the present spoken tongues of Northern India, the Sanskrit vowel ri began to be generally discarded, and frequently changed into u, and the Prákrit participle is mudo, for the Sanskrit mrito; just as from the Sanskrit verbal noun prichhana, we have the Hindústání pūchhná, 'to ask,' through the Prákrit puehhana.

42. Passive Voice.—In Hindústání the use of the passive voice is not nearly so general as it is in English and other European languages. It is regularly formed by employing the past (or passive) participle of an active or transitive verb along with the neuter verb جانا jáná, 'to go,' or 'to be.' The participle thus employed is subject to the same inflection or variations as an adjective purely Indian (v. page 33), ending in á. Of the verb jáná itself, we have just shown that its past participle is gayá, which of course will run through all the tenses of the past participle, as will be seen in the following paradigm.

Infinitive, مارا جانا márá jáná, 'To be beaten.'

Imperative, مارا جا márá já, 'be thou beaten.'

Present Participle, مارا جاتا márá játá, 'being beaten.'

Past Participle, مارا گيا márá gayá, 'beaten.'

a. Muhammad Ibrahim Munshí, the author of an excellent Hindústání grammar entitled 'Tuhfae Elphinstone,' printed at Bombay, 1823, would seem to conclude that the Hindústání has no passive voice at all. He says, p. 44, "Dr. Gilchrist and Mr. Shakspear are of opinion that there is a passive voice in Hindústání, formed by compounding the past participle of active verbs with the verb جانا; but the primitive signification of this verb ('to go') seems so irreconcilable with the simple state of 'being,' as to render it improbable that it could ever be used in the same manner as the substantive verbs of other languages." Now, the fact is, that the worthy Munshí is carried too far, principally from a strong propensity to have a slap at his brother grammarians, Messrs. Gilchrist and Shakespear, whom he hits hard on every reasonable occasion; and, in addition to this, the passive voice in his native language is of rare occurrence. But there is undoubtedly such a thing as a regular passive voice occasionally to be met with, and it is formed with the verb جانا jáná, 'to go,' as an auxiliary. Nor is the connection of jáná, 'to go,' with the passive voice so very irreconcilable as the Munshí imagines. In Gaelic, the very same verb, viz., 'to go,' is used to form the passive voice, though in a different manner, the verbal noun denoting the action being used as a nominative to the verb 'to go;' thus the phrase, "he was beaten," is in Gaelic literally "the beating of him went," i. e., 'took place,' which is not very remote from the Hindústání expression. Again, in Latin, the phrase, "I know that letters will be written," is expressed by "Scio literas scriptum iri," in which the verb 'to go,' enters as an auxiliary: to say nothing of the verb veneo (ven + eo), 'to be sold.'

b. We have seen in the conjugation of márná, 'to beat,' that those tenses which spring from the past participle, have a construction similar to the Latin passive voice. This construction is always used when the agent is known and expressed; as اُس سپاهی نی ایک مرد مارا ہی us sipáhi-ne ek mard mára hai, 'that soldier has beaten a man,' or (more literally) 'by that soldier a man has been beaten.' Again, if the agent is unknown or the assertion merely made in general terms, the regular form of the passive is used; as, ek mard mára gayá, 'a man has been beaten,' and even this might be more idiomatically expressed by saying ek mard-ne mar khá,í hai, 'a man has suffered a beating.'

c. One cogent reason why the passive voice does not frequently occur in Hindústání is, that the language abounds with primitive simple verbs of a passive or neuter signification which are rendered active by certain modifications which we are about to state. Thus جلتا jalná signifies 'to burn,' or 'take fire,' in a neuter sense; and becomes an active or transitive verb by inserting the vowel ! á, between the root and the termination نَ ná of the infinitive as, جَلَانَا jaláná, 'to kindle or set on fire;' and this becomes causal or doubly transitive by assuming the form جَلَوَانَا jalwáná, 'to cause to be set on fire,' as will be more amply detailed in the next paragraph.

DERIVATIVE VERBS.

43. In Hindústání a primitive verb, if neuter, is rendered active, as we have just hinted, by certain modifications of, or additions to, its root. In like manner, an active verb may, by a process somewhat similar, be rendered causal or doubly transitive. The principal modes in which this may be effected are comprised under the following Rules.

1. By inserting the long vowel ا á between the root and the نَ ná of the infinitive of the primitive verb; thus, from پَكُنَا pakná,—a neuter verb, 'to grow ripe,' 'to be got ready' (as food),—becomes پَكَانَا pakáná (active), 'to ripen, or make ready,' 'to cook.' Again, this active verb may be rendered causal or doubly transitive by inserting the letter و w between the root and the modified termination اَنَا áná; thus, from پَكَانَا pakáná, 'to make ready,' inserting the letter و w, we get the causal form پَكُوَانَا pakwáná, 'to cause (another) to make (any thing) ready.' To show the use of the three forms of the verb, we will add a few plain examples. 1. کھانا پکتا ہے khána paktá hai, 'the dinner is getting ready, cooking, or being cooked.' 2. باورچی کھانا پکاتا ہے báwarchí khána pakátá hai, 'the cook is (himself) cooking the dinner or food;' 3. مہماندار کھانا پکواتا ہے míhmándár khána pakwátá hai, 'the host is causing dinner to be cooked.' These examples show the copiousness of the Hindústání verb as compared with the English. For whereas we are obliged to employ the same verb both as neuter and active, like the word 'cooking' in the first and second examples, the Hindústání has a distinct expression for each. And the form پَكُوَانَا pakwáná in the last example is much more neat and concise than the English 'is having,' 'is getting,' or 'is causing' the dinner (to be) 'cooked.' In like manner, the neuter جَلْنَا jalná, 'to burn,' jaláná, 'to kindle,' and jalwáná, 'to cause to be kindled;' for example, battí jaltí hai, 'the candle burns;' a man will say to his servant, battí-ko jaláo, 'light the candle (yourself),' but he may say to his munshí, battí-ko jalwáo, 'cause the candle to be lit (by others).'

2. When the root of the primitive verb is a monosyllable with any of the long vowels ا á, و o or ú, and ي e or í, the latter are shortened in the active and causal forms, that is, the ا of the root is displaced by fatha, the و by zamma, and the ي by kasra; as, جَاگْنَا jágná, 'to be awake,' جَاگْنَا jagáná, 'to awaken,' or 'rouse up,' جَاگْوَا jagwáná, 'to cause to be roused up;' بُولْنَا bolná, 'to speak,' بُولْنَا buláná, 'to call,' بُولْنَا bulwáná, 'to cause to be called, to send for;' so بُولْنَا bhúlná, 'to forget,' بُولْنَا bhuláná, 'to mislead,' بُولْنَا bhulwáná, 'to cause to be misled;' لِيٹْنَا letná, 'to lie down,' لِيٹْنَا litáná, 'to lay down,' لِيٹْوَا litwáná, 'to cause to be laid down;' بِيگْنَا bhígná, 'to be wet,' بِيگْنَا bhigáná, 'to wet,' بِيگْوَا bhigwáná, 'to cause to be made wet.' When the vowel-sound of the root consists of the strong diphthongs اَو au, and اِي ai, these undergo no change, and consequently such words fall under Rule 1; as, دَوڑْنَا daurná, 'to run,' دَوڑْنَا daurná; پِيرْنَا pairná, 'to swim,' پِيرْنَا pairáná. The verb بَيْٹْنَا baithná, 'to sit,' makes بَيْٹْنَا bitháná or بَيْٹْنَا baitháná, also بَيْٹْنَا bithláná, etc. Vide No. 4, below.

3. A numerous class of neuter verbs, having a short vowel in the last syllable of the root, form the active by changing the short vowel into its corresponding long; that is, fatha becomes ا á; as zamma becomes و *o*¹ (or ú), and kasra becomes ي e (or í): as, پَلْنَا paíná, 'to thrive, or be nourished,' پالنا pálná, 'to nourish;' کھلنا khulná, 'to open (of itself),' کھولنا kholná, 'to open (any thing).' These form their causals regularly, according to Rule 1; as, کھلوانا khulwáná, 'to cause (another) to open (any thing).'

4. A few verbs add لانا láná to the root, modified as in Rule 2: thus, سیکھنا sikhná, 'to learn,' سکھانا sikháná, and سکھلانا sikhláná, 'to teach;' کھانا kháná, 'to eat,' کھیلانا khiláná, 'to feed;' سونا soná, 'to sleep,' سُلانا suláná, 'to lull (asleep);' بیٹھنا baithná, 'to sit,' 'to be placed,' has a variety of forms, viz., bitháná, baitháná, bithláná, and baithláná; also baithálná and baithárná, 'to cause to sit,' 'to set,' or 'cause to be seated.'

5. The following are formed in a way peculiar to themselves:— بکنا bikná, 'to be sold,' بیچنا bechná, 'to sell;' رھنا rahná, 'to stay,' رکھنا rakhná, 'to keep, or place;' ٹوٹنا tútná, 'to burst,' 'to be broken,' توڑنا torná, 'to break;' چھٹنا chhutná, 'to cease,' 'to go off (as a musket, etc.),' چھوڑنا chhorná, 'to let off,' 'to let go;' پھٹنا phatná, 'to be rent,' پھاڑنا phárná, 'to rend,' پھوٹنا phútná, 'to crack, or split,' پھوڑنا phorná, 'to burst open' (actively).

6. Verbs are formed from substantives or adjectives by adding انا aná or نا ná; as from پانی pání, 'water,' پانیانا paniyáná, 'to irrigate;' so from چوڑا chaurá, 'wide,' چھوڑانا chauráná, 'to widen.' A few infinitives spring, as Hindústání verbs, regularly from Arabic and Persian roots, by merely adding نا ná. If the primitive word be a monosyllable ending with two consonants, a fatha is inserted between the latter, on adding the نا ná; as from ترس tars, 'fear, pity,' comes ترسنا taras-ná, 'to fear;' so from لرز larz, 'trembling,' لارزنا laraz-ná; and from بحث bahs, 'argument,' باھسنا bahas-ná, 'to dispute,' etc.

General Rule.—Primitive words consisting of two short syllables, the last of which is formed by the vowel fatha, on the accession of an additional syllable beginning with a vowel, whether for the purpose of declension, conjugation, or derivation, reject the fatha of the second syllable. Conversely, primitive words ending in two consecutive consonants, on adding a verbal termination beginning with a consonant, generally insert a fatha between the two consonants, as we have just seen in Rule 6.

COMPOUND VERBS.

44. The Hindústání is peculiarly rich in compound verbs, though it must be admitted that our grammarians have needlessly enlarged the number. We shall, however, enumerate them all in the following list, and, at the same time, point out those which have no title to the appellation. Compound verbs are formed in various ways, as follows:—

I. FROM THE ROOT.

1. INTENSIVES, so called from being more energetic in signification than the simple verb. Ex. مار ڈالنا már-dālná, 'to kill outright,' from مارنا márná, 'to strike,' and ڈالنا dālná, 'to throw down;' رکھ دینا rakh-dená, 'to set down,' from رکھنا rakhná, 'to place,' and دینا dená, 'to give;' کھا جانا khá-jáná, 'to eat up,' from کھانا khána, 'to eat,' and جانا jáná, 'to go,' etc. The main peculiarity of an intensive verb is, that the second member of it has, practically speaking, laid aside its own primary signification, while at the same time the sense of the first member is rendered more emphatic, as in our own verbs 'to run off,' 'to march on,' 'to rush away,' etc.; thus, wuh háthi par se gir-pará, 'he fell down from off (or, as the Hindústání has it, more logically, from upon) the elephant.'

2. PRESENTIALS, formed with سکتنا sakná, 'to be able;' as بول سکتنا bol-sakná, 'to be able to speak,' جا سکتنا já-sakná, 'to be able to go,'

etc. The using the root of a verb in composition with sakná in all its tenses may be viewed as the potential mood of such verb; thus, maiñ bol-saktá hun, 'I am able to speak,' or 'I can speak;' so maiñ bol-saká, 'I could speak.'

3. COMPLETIVES, formed with چُکنا chukná, 'to have done;' as کُپا چُکنا khá-chukná, 'to have done eating,' لکھ چُکنا likh-chukná, 'to have finished writing.' The root of a verb with the future of chukná, is considered, very properly, as the future perfect of such root; thus, jab maiñ likh-chukúngá, 'when I shall have done writing,' that is, 'when I shall have written,' 'postquam scripsero.' So, agar maiñ likh-chukún, 'if I may have written, or have done writing,' 'si scripserim.'

II. FROM THE PRESENT PARTICIPLE.

1. CONTINUATIVES, as بکتا جانا baktá jáná, or بکتا رہنا baktá rahná, 'to continue chatting.' This is not a legitimate compound verb; it is merely a sentence, the present participle always agreeing with the nominative in gender and number, as, wuh mard baktá játá hai, 'that man goes on chatting;' we mard bakte játe haiñ, 'these men go on chatting;' wuh randi bakti játi hai, 'that woman goes on chatting.'

2. STATISTICALS, آنا گاتی gáte áná, 'to come singing,' or 'in singing;' روتی دوڑنا rote daurná, 'to run crying.' Here the present participle always remains in the inflected state, like a substantive of the third class, having the post-position meñ, 'in,' understood, hence this is no compound verb properly speaking.

III. FROM THE PAST PARTICIPLE.

1. FREQUENTATIVES: مارا کرنا márá-kárná, 'to make a practice beating;' جایا کرنا jáyá-kárná, 'to make a practice of going.'

2. DESIDERATIVES, as بولا چاہنا bolá-cháhná, 'to wish, or to be about, or like to speak.'

IV. FROM SUBSTANTIVES OR ADJECTIVES, HENCE TERMED NOMINALS.

From substantives, as from جمع jam, 'collection,' جمع کرنا jam karna jam' karná, 'to collect, or bring together,' and جمع هونا jam' honá, 'to be collected, or come together;' also from غوطه ghotá, 'a plunge,' غوطہ مارنا ghotá marná, 'to dive,' غوطہ کبانا ghotá kháná, 'to be dipped.' From adjectives, as from چھوٹا chhotá, 'small,' چھوٹا کرنا chhotá karná, 'to diminish;' کالا kálá, 'black,' کالا کرنا kálá karná, 'to blacken,' such forms of expression, however, are scarcely to be considered as compound verbs.

a. There is a very doubtful kind of compound called a reïterative verb, said to be formed by using together two verbs, regularly conjugated, etc., as بولنا چالنا bolná chálná, 'to converse;' but the use of these is generally confined to tenses of the present participle, or the conjunctive participle; and they are not regularly conjugated, for the auxiliary is added to the last only, as we bolte chálte haiñ, not bolte haiñ chálte haiñ, 'they converse (chit-chat) together;' so bol-chál-kar, not bol-kar chál-kar, 'having conversed.' Those which are called Inceptives, Permissives, Acquisitives, etc., given in most grammars, are not properly compound verbs, since they consist regularly of two verbs, the one governed by the other, in the inflected form of the Infinitive, according to a special rule of Syntax; as, بولنے لگا wuh bolne lagá, 'he began to say;' دینا دیتا ہے wuh jāne detá hai, 'he gives (permission) to go;' پاتا ہے wuh jāne pátá hai, 'he gets (permission) to go;' all of which expressions are mere sentences, and not compound verbs.

b. Hence the compound verbs in the Hindústání language are really five in number, viz.: the Intensive, Potential, Completive, Frequentative and Desiderative. In these, the first part of the compound remains unchanged throughout, while the second part is always conjugated in the usual way. But among such of the nominals as are formed of an adjective with a verb, the adjective will agree in gender with the object of the verb, unless the concord be cut off by کو ko. Thus: گاری کھڑی کر gári kharí kar, or گاری کو کھڑا کر gári-ko khará kar, 'stop the carriage.' In the latter case only can the verb کھڑا کرنا khará-karná be regarded as belonging to the class of compounds.

SECTION IV.

ON THE INDECLINABLE PARTS OF SPEECH—CARDINAL AND ORDINAL NUMBERS—DERIVATION AND COMPOSITION OF WORDS.

I. ADVERBS.

45. THE adverbs in Hindústání, like the substantives, adjectives, and verbs, are to be acquired mainly by practice. Hence it would be a mere waste of space to swell our volume with a dry detached list of such words, which in all probability no learner would ever peruse. We shall therefore notice only those which have any peculiarity in their character or formation. As a general rule, most adjectives may be used adverbially when requisite, as is the case in German, and often in English. A series of pure Hindústání adverbs of frequent use is derived from five of the pronouns, bearing to each other a similar relation, as will be seen in the following table. Dr. Gilchrist's old pupils will no doubt recollect with what pains the learned Doctor used to impress upon them the necessity of learning this 'quintuple series,' or, as he called it, 'The philological harp.'

a. Adjectives and adjective pronouns, when used adverbially, remain uninflected in the simplest form, viz., that of the nominative singular masculine; as, وَد بَہُت اچھا لکھتا ہے wuh bahut achchhá likhtá hai, 'he writes very well.' This is exactly the rule in German, 'er schreibt sehr gut.' In the following series, accordingly, numbers 5, 6, and 7, are merely the adjective or indefinite pronouns, formerly enumerated, employed as adverbs.

a. From the first class we have other adverbs rendered more emphatic by the addition of هي hi, etc. Thus: اَبِي abhi, 'just now,' كَبِي kabhi, كَبُو kabhu, or كَدِي kadhi, 'ever,' etc. From the second class, by changing ان án into يْن ín; thus, يَهِيْن yahín, 'exactly here,' كَهِيْن kahín, 'whereabouts, somewhere,' etc. From the fourth, by adding هِيْن hín; يُونِهِيْن yúnhín, 'in this very way,' وُونِهِيْن wúnhín, 'thereupon, at that very time, exactly, the same as before,' etc.

b. From among these may also be formed, by means of postpositions, etc., a number of useful compounds; as اب تَك ab-tak, or اب تَلَك ab-talak, 'till now,' ك تَك kab-tak, 'till when,' etc.; كَبِي كَبِي kabhi kabhi, 'sometimes,' كَبِي نَه كَبِي kabhi na kabhi, 'some time or other,' جَهَان تَهَان jahán tahán, 'here and there,' جَهَان كَهِيْن jahán kahín, 'wherever,' اَوْر كَهِيْن aur kahín, 'somewhere else,' جَب كَبِي jab kabhi, 'whenever,' كِيُون كَر kyún kar, 'how?'

c. A few adverbs of time have a twofold signification, i.e. past or future, according to circumstances; thus, كَل kal, 'to-morrow, or yesterday,' پَرَسُون parson, 'the day after to-morrow, or the day before yesterday,' تَرَسُون tarson, 'the third day from this, past, or to come,' نَرَسُون narson, 'the fourth day from this.' The time is restricted to past or future by the tenses of the verb and by the context of the sentences in which such words are found.

d. Many adverbs occur from the Arabic and Persian languages; as قَضَارَا kazárá (or قَضَاكَار kazákár), 'by chance,' from قَضَا kazá, 'fate,' etc., and رَا rá, the sign of the objective case; چَاگوْنَه chigúna, 'how,' بَارِي báre, 'once, at last,' بَارَهَا bárhá (pl.), 'often (times),' شَايَد sháyad, 'perhaps (Hindústání هو تو هو ho to ho, it may be),' خَوَاد khwáh na khwáh, 'volens-nolens, positively, at all events,' وَاغَيْرَه wa ghaira, 'et-cetera,' etc.; فَقَطْ fakát, 'merely, finis.'

e. Adverbs purely Arabic occur chiefly as follows: 1. Simply a noun with the article; thus, اَلْقِصَّة al-kis̄sa (literally, 'the story'); and اَلْغُرُضُ al-gharaz (literally, 'the end, purport,' etc.), 'in short,' اَلْحَالُ al-hál (the present), 'at this time,' اَلْبَتَّةَ al-batta, 'certainly,' etc.

2. The Arabic noun in the accusative case, marked with the termination an (p. 20); thus, ittifākan اتِّفَاقًا, 'by chance,' (from ittifāk اتِّفَاق, 'fortune, accident,' etc.); aslan اصْلاً (or asla اصْلاً), 'by no means;'; mislan مِثْلاً, 'for example,' (from misal مِثْل, 'parable, similitude'); khususān خُصُوصاً, 'especially,' etc. Lastly, a noun with a proposition; as, bi-l-fi'l بِالْفِعْلِ, 'in fact;'; fi-l-hāl فِي الْحَالِ, 'in the present,' fi-l-faur فِي الْفَوْرِ (in the heat), all signifying 'instantly, immediately;'; fi-l-hakikat فِي الْحَقِيقَةِ (in truth), 'really;'; ya'ni يَعْني, 'that is to say, to wit, viz.'

f. Many adverbial expressions occur consisting of a pronoun and substantive governed by a simple postposition understood, as, is tarah اِس طَرَح, 'in this manner;'; kis tarah كِس طَرَح, 'how?'; etc.; kis wāste كِس واسْطِي, 'why?'; i.e. 'for what reason?'; and so on, with many other words of which the adverbial use is indicated by the inflection of the accompanying pronoun.

g. The pluperfect participle may also very often be elegantly applied adverbially; as, hanskar هَنْسَكَر, 'laughingly,' sochkar سوچَكَر, 'deliberately,' from hansná هَنْسَنَا, 'to laugh,' sochná سوچْنَا, 'to think,' us-ne hanskar kahá اُس ني هَنْسَكَر كَها, 'he laughingly (or having laughed) said.'

II. PREPOSITIONS.

46. The prepositions in Hindústání are mere substantives in the locative case, having a postposition understood and sometimes expressed. Most of them are expressive of situation with regard to place, and thence figuratively applied to time, and even to abstract ideas. Hence as substantives, they all govern the genitive case, those of them which are masculine (forming the majority) require the word which they govern to have the postposition ke كِي after it; as, mard-ke áge مَرْد كِي آگِي, 'before the man,' literally, 'in front of the man'; while those that are feminine require the word they govern to have ki كِي; as, shahr-ki taraf شَهْر كِي طَرَف,

‘towards the city,’ literally, ‘in the direction of the city.’ It is optional to put the preposition before or after the noun which it governs; thus in the foregoing example we might have said âge mard-ke, or mard-ke âge, with equal propriety.

The following is an alphabetical list of masculine prepositions requiring the nouns which they govern to have the genitive with ke, for reasons explained in the beginning of the Syntax.

آگي âge , before, in front.	درميان dar-miyân , in the midst, between, among.
اندر andar , within, inside.	ساتھ sâth , with (in company).
اوپر ûpar , above, on the top.	سامنے sâmhnê , before, in front.
باعث bâ'is , by reason of.	سبب sabab , by reason of.
باهر bâhar , or bâhîr , without (not within.)	سوا siwâ or siwâ,e , except.
بجائي ba-jâ,e , instead.	عوض 'iwaz , instead, for.
بدلي badle , or بدل badal , instead.	قبل kabl , before, (time).
بدون bidûn , without, except.	قريب karîb , near.
برابر barâbar , equal to, oppo- site to.	کني kane , near, with.
براي barâ,e , for, on account of.	گرد gird , round, around.
بعد ba'd , after (as to time).	لئے liye , for, on account of.
بغير baghair , without, except.	ماري mâre , through (in conse- quence of).
بين bin , بنا binâ , without.	مطابق mutâbiq , conformable to.
بيچ bich , in or among.	موافق mudâfiq , according to.
پار pâr , over (other side).	موجب mujib , or بموجب ba- mujib , by means of.
پاس pâs , by, near.	نزدیک nazdik , near.
پيچھے pichhe , behind, in the rear.	نيچي niche , under, beneath.
تلي tale , under, beneath.	واسطی wâste , for, on account of.
تا،ن ta,n , to, up to.	ہاتھ hâth , in the power of, by means of.
خارج khârij , without, outside.

The following prepositions being feminine, require the words they govern to have the genitive with kī.

بابت bábat, respecting, concerning.

بَدولت ba-daulat, by means of.

بمدد ba-madad, by aid of.

بجهت jihat, on account of.

خاطر khatir, for the sake of.

طرح tarah, after the manner of, like.

طرف taraf, towards.

مَعْرِفَت ma'rifat, by, or through.

نسبت nisbat, relative to.

Some of the feminine prepositions, when they come before the word they govern, require such word to have the genitive in ke, instead of kī. This is a point well worthy of examination, and we reserve the investigation of it till we come to the Syntax.

a. We have applied the term preposition to the above words with a view to define their use and meaning, not their mere situation. In most grammars they are absurdly called Compound Post-positions, on the same principle, we believe, that lucus, 'a dark grove,' is said to come from lucere, 'to shine,' or lux, 'light.' But in sober truth, what we have called prepositions here, are neither compounds, nor necessarily post-positive; and we make it a rule never to countenance a new term unless it be more explicit than those already established and familiar. In Greek, Latin, and Old English, the prepositions frequently follow the word which they govern, but this does not in the least alter their nature and use.

b. Besides the above prepositions, the following Arabic and Persian prefixes are occasionally employed with words from those languages.

از az, from, by.

إلا illá, except, besides.

بِا bá, with (possessed of).

بِ or بِا ba (or bī), in, by.

بِی be, without (deprived of).

بر bar, on, in, at.

برای bará'e, for (on account of).

بِلا bilá, without (sine).

در dar, in, within.

عَلَى 'alá, upon, above.

عن 'an, from.

عِنْد 'ind, near, with.

فِي fī, in.

كَ ka, according to, like.

لِ la or li, to, for مَعَ ma', with مِنْ min, from.

III. CONJUNCTIONS.

47. The conjunctions have no peculiarity about them ; we shall therefore add a list of the more useful of them in alphabetical order.

از بسکه az bas-ki, since, for as much as.

اگر agar, گر gar, if.

اگرچه agarchi, although.

اما ammá, but, moreover.

اور aur, and, also.

بلکه bal-ki, but, on the contrary.

بہی bhi, also, indeed.

پر par, but, yet.

پس pas, thence, therefore.

تو to, then, consequently.

جب تک jab tak, until, while

جو jo, if, when.

حال آنکہ hál-ánki, whereas, notwithstanding.

خواہ khwáh, either, or.

کہ ki, that, because, than.

تاکہ táki, that, in order that.

کیونکہ kyúnki, because.

گویا goyá, as if.

گوکہ go-ki, although.

لیکن lekín, but, however.

مگر magar, except, unless.

نہیں تو nahín-to, otherwise.

نیز níz, also, likewise.

و، و wa, and, but.

ور war, for, وگر wa-gar, and if.

ورنہ war-na, and if not, unless.

ہم ham, also, likewise.

ہر چند harehand, although.

ہنوز hanoz, yet, still.

یا yá, or, either.

IV. INTERJECTIONS.

48. These scarcely deserve the appellation of 'part of speech;' we shall therefore content ourselves by enumerating a few of common occurrence.

شبابش shábásh (i. e. شاد باش shád bášh), 'happiness or good luck to you!' آفرین áfrín 'blessings on you,' واد واد wáh wáh 'admirable!' کیا خوب kyá khúb 'how excellent!' دهن دهن dhan-dhan dhan 'how fortunate!' وَاد جِي wáh jì, کیا بات کی kyá bát hai 'what an affair!' all express joy, admiration and encouragement, like 'bravo! well done!' etc. But باپ ری báp re (lit., O father) 'astonishing! dreadful!' هائی هائی h,áe h,áe, or ہائی ہائی hai hai, وایی وایی wá,e wá,e, وایلا وایلا wá,e wailá, 'alas, alas! alackaday! woe is me!' ہت hat, چہی چہی chhi chhi, 'tush, pshaw, pish, fie fie!' دُر dur, 'avaunt!' express sorrow, contempt, and aversion. اُو ai, او o, 'Oh!' ری re or اری are, 'holla you!' are used in calling attention: the two last in a disrespectful way. ری re (m.) or ری rí (f.) agrees in gender with the object of address; as, لُونڈی ری laundé re, 'you boy!' لُونڈی ری laundí rí, 'you girl!'

NUMERALS.

49. The Hindústání numeral adjectives, 'one,' 'two,' 'three,' etc., up to a hundred, are rather irregular, at least in appearance, though it would not be very difficult to account for the seeming irregularity on sound etymological principles. This, however, would not greatly benefit the student, who must, in the meantime, learn them by heart as soon as he can.

a. The numbers above one hundred proceed somewhat like our own, only the conjunction is generally suppressed; as ایک سو پانچ ek sau pānch, 'one hundred (and) five;' دو سو دس do sau das, 'two hundred (and) ten,' etc. The present year, 1855, may be expressed as with us, ایک ہزار آٹھ سو پچیس ek hazār āṭh sau pachpan, or اتھارہ سو پچیس aṭhārah sau pachpan, that is, 'one thousand eight hundred,' etc., or 'eighteen hundred,' etc.

b. The following are used as collective numbers:

گنتا gandā , a group of four.	سیکڑا saikṛā , a hundred.
گاہی gāhī , a five.	ہزار hazār , a thousand.
کوڑی koṛī , a score.	لاکھ lākh , a hundred thousand.
چالیس chālīsā , a forty.	کڑوڑ karor , one hundred lākhs, or ten millions.

c. The Ordinals proceed as follows:

پہلا pahlā or pahlā , پہلا or pahlā , دوسرا dūsra , 2nd. تیسرا tīsra , 3rd.	} 1st.	چوتھا chauthā , 4th. پانچواں pānchvān , 5th. چھٹواں chhatvān , چھٹھا chhatṭhā .	} 6th.
---	--------	--	--------

The 'seventh' and upwards are regularly formed from the Cardinals by the addition of واں vān. The ordinals are all subject to inflection like adjectives in ا ā or ان ān, that is, ā becomes e for the oblique masculine, and ī for the feminine. In like manner, ān becomes eñ and īñ.

d. Fractional Numbers.

پاؤ pāo , چوتھ chauth , چوتھا chauthā , تہائی tihā , آدھا āḍhā .	} $\frac{1}{4}$	پون paun , پونا paunā , سوا savā , دیرد derḥ , ارہائی arḥā .	} $\frac{3}{4}$ $1\frac{1}{4}$ $1\frac{1}{2}$ $2\frac{1}{2}$.

which it will be well to notice ; thus, پونی paune, when prefixed to a number, signifies 'a quarter less' than that number ; سوا sawá, 'a quarter more ;' سارہی sárhé, 'one half more,' etc. To the collective numbers for a hundred, a thousand, etc., they are similarly applied ; thus, پونی سو paune sau = 75 ; سوا سو sawá sau = 125. The words derh and arhá, denote multiplication ; as, ہزار derh hazár = 1500, i. e. $(1000 \times 1\frac{1}{2})$; اڑھائی ہزار arhá, hazár = 2500, or $(1000 \times 2\frac{1}{2})$.

e. It will be seen then, that altogether the management of the numerals, whole and fractional, is no easy matter. The sure plan is to commit them carefully to memory up to 100. As a check upon this the learner should get the first ten, and the multiples of 10, as 20, 30, 40, etc. ; then, if he is not quite certain of any number (not an unlikely occurrence), for example 35, he may safely say تیس پر پانچ tis par pánch, 'five over thirty.' Lastly, let him get the first twenty thoroughly, and then count by scores کوری korí ; thus, 35 is ek korí pandrah ; but the more scientific mode is, of course, to carry the hundred numerals in his head, and be quite independent.

DERIVATION OF WORDS.

50. The Hindústání abounds with derivative words both of native origin and of foreign importation. Those from the Arabic are generally single words modified from a triliteral root, according to the grammatical rules of that language. From the Persian, on the other hand, not only derivative words are freely borrowed, but also a multitude of compounds, for the formation of which the Persian language has a peculiar aptitude, and to the number of which there is no limit. In like manner, compositions in the Hindí dialect abound in Sanskrit words both derivative and compounded according to the genius of that highly-cultivated language. Hence, in order to know Hindústání on sound etymological principles, a slight knowledge of Arabic, Persian, and Sanskrit is absolutely requisite. To the majority of students in this country, however, this is impracticable, their time being necessarily occupied in the acquisition of those essential branches of knowledge usually taught at schools. As a general rule, then, we may take it for granted that an acquaintance with the words of the Hindústání language, whether native or foreign, primitive or derivative, must be ultimately acquired by practice in reading, with the aid of a vocabulary or dictionary, together with exercises in composition. This being the case, it will not be necessary for us to enter deeply into the subject of derivation or composition; the reader, if inclined, may consult Dr. Gilchrist's quarto Grammar, edit. 1796, where he will find twenty-nine goodly pages devoted to this department.

NOUNS DENOTING AGENCY OR POSSESSION.

51. We have already seen that the agent of a verb is denoted by adding the termination والا wálá (sometimes دارا hárá) to the inflected form of the infinitive, as bolne-wálá or bolne-hárá, 'a speaker.' The same terminations added to a substantive denote in general the possessor of such substantive, real or temporary; as والا گھر ghar-wálá, 'the master of the house;' والا بیل bail-wálá, 'the owner of the bullock;' or, simply, 'the man with the bullock.' A noun of the third class is inflected on the addition of والا wálá, thus, والا گدھی gadhe-wálá, 'the owner of the ass;' or 'the man with the donkey.' Various nouns of agency, etc. are also formed by adding the following terminations, thus:—

بن	to	باغ	a garden,	باغبان	bágh-bán , a gardener.
باز	—	تہنبا	a jest,	تہنبي باز	thatthe-báz , a jester.

بر to	راه a road,	رادیبر râh-bar ,	a guide.
بردار —	حقه a pipe,	حقدار hukka-bardâr ,	a pipe-bearer.
بند —	نعل a horse-shoe,	نعلبند na'l-band ,	a farrier.
چی —	مشعل a torch,	مشعلچی mash'al-chî ,	a torch-bearer.
دار —	زمین land,	زمیندار zamîn-dâr ,	a landholder.
ر —	نوا iron,	لوهار lohâr ,	a blacksmith.
کار —	بد bad,	بدکار bad-kâr ,	an evil-doer.
گر —	زر gold,	زرگر zar-gar ,	a goldsmith.
گار —	گناه crime,	گناه‌دار gunâh-gâr ,	a sinner.
وار —	امید hope,	امیدوار ummed-wâr ,	an expectant.
وان —	در door,	دروان dar-wân ,	a porter.
ی —	سپاه army,	سپاهی sipâhî ,	a soldier.

NOUNS DENOTING THE MEANS OR INSTRUMENT.

52. These signify the thing by which the action may be performed, and are derived from verbal roots by affixing

ن as	بیل rolling,	بیلن belan ,	a rolling-pin.
نا —	رم playing,	رمنه ramná ,	a park.
بی —	کتر clipping,	کترنی katarnî ,	a pair of scissors.
و —	جهاز sweeping,	جهازو jhârú ,	a broom.

Others are formed from nouns, by affixing

ال as	گهی an hour,	گهیال ghar'iyâl ,	an hour-bell
آنه —	دست the hand,	دستانه dastâna ,	a glove.
ک —	چشم the eye,	چشمک chashmak ,	spectacles.
د —	دست the hand,	دسته dasta ,	a handle.

NOUNS DENOTING PLACE OR SITUATION.

53. These are formed partly by uniting two nouns together, and also by adding certain terminations ; as,

آباد a city,	حیدر Haidar,	حیدرآباد haidar-ábád , the city of Haidar.
باڑی a garden,	پھول a flower,	پھولواڑی phul-wári , a flower-garden.
پور a city,	غازی Ghází,	غازی پور Ghází-pur , the city of Ghází.
زار multitude,	لالہ a tulip,	لالہ زار lála-zár , a tulip-bed.
سال or سالا a place,	گھوڑا a horse,	گھڑسال ghur-sál , a stable.
ستان a place,	قبر a grave,	قبرستان kabr-istán , a burying-ground.
شن a place,	گل a rose,	گلشن gul-shan , a rose-bower.
گاہ a place,	آرام rest,	آرامگاہ arám-gáh , a resting-place.
نگر city,	کشن Kishn,	کشن نگر Kishn-nagar , the town of Krishna.

ABSTRACTS.

54 Abstract nouns are formed chiefly from adjectives, by affixing some termination, of which the following are of common occurrence :

to گرم warm,	گرمی garmá , warm weather
کم little,	کمی kamtí , deficiency.
لڑکا a child,	لڑکپن larak-pan , childhood.
میتھا sweet,	میتھاس mithás , sweetness.
تازہ fresh,	تازگی tázagí , freshness.

ن to	اَوْچَا high,	اَوْچَان úchán , height.
نِي —	بُرَا bad,	بُرَائِي burá,í , badness.
هَت —	كَزْرَا bitter,	كَزْرَاهَت karwáhat , bitterness.

To Arabic nouns ت is generally added to form abstracts; as, حُكْم hukm, 'a command,' حُكُومَت hukumat, 'dominion;' so حَجَّام hajjám, 'a barber,' hajjámát, 'shaving.' A few abstracts are formed by a repetition of the word, with a slight alteration in the last, as جُھُوثُہ جُھُوتُہ jhúth-múth, 'falsehood.'

VERBALS.

55. The verbal noun denoting the action (in progress) is generally expressed by the infinitive. The action, in the abstract, is frequently expressed by the mere root; as, بول bol, 'speech,' چاہ cháh, 'desire,' etc. Others are formed from the root by adding certain terminations; as,

ا to	کہہ speak,	کہا kahá , a saying.
اِئِي —	بو sow,	بُوَائِي bo,á,í , a sowing.
آپ —	مِل mix,	مِلَآپ miláp , a mixing or union.
اس —	پی drink,	پیَاس piyás , desire to drink, thirst.
ش —	دان know (Pers.)	دَانِش dánish , knowledge.
ن —	جل burn,	جَلَن jalan , a burning.
وا —	بھلا deceive,	بھُلَاوا bhuláwá , a deception.
وٹ —	سجا prepare,	سجَاوٹ sajáwat , preparation.
اِئِي —	کھل feed,	کھِلَائِي khilá,í , a feeding.
هت —	بلا call,	بُلَاہٹ buláhat , a calling.

DIMINUTIVES.

56. These are formed from other nouns, by adding to them various terminations; as,

ا	to	بیتِی	a daughter,	بیتِیا	bitiyá , a little daughter.
چی or چہ	—	دیگ	a cauldron,	دیگچی	degchi , a kettle.
ڑی	—	پلنگ	a bedstead,	پلنگڑی	palangrî , a small bedstead.
ک	—	توپ	a cannon,	توپک	topak , a musket.
وا	—	مرد	a man,	مردوا	mardû,á , a little man.
یتا	—	برہمن	a brahman,	برہمنیتا	brahmanetá , a young brahman.
وتا	—	ہرن	a deer,	ہرنوتا	hiranotá , a fawn.
یلا or یل	—	مور	a peacock,	مورِیلا	morelá , a pea-chicken.
یچہ	—	باغ	a garden,	باغیچہ	baghicha , a kitchen-garden.

FEMININES FORMED FROM MASCULINES.

57. Names of males ending in á or a, of the third class, have the corresponding females in î; as بیتا betá, 'a son;' بیٹی betî, 'a daughter;' گھوڑا ghorá, 'a horse;' گھوڑی ghorî, 'a mare.' In a similar manner names of lifeless objects of the third class have sometimes a feminine form, generally significant of diminution, as گولا golá, 'a bullet;' گولی golî, 'a pill.' Substantives of the first and second classes form the corresponding feminine by adding either ی î, نی nî, or ن in, as follows:—

مُلا	mullá , a teacher,	مُلائی	mullání .
شیر	sher , a lion,	شیرِنی	shernî .
مہتر	mihtar , a sweeper,	مہترِانی	mihtarání .

براهمن bráhman , a Brahman,	براهمنی bráhmaní .
سُنار sunár , a goldsmith,	{ سُنارِن sunárin , or سُنارِنِی sunární .

a. A few are irregular in their formation; thus, from بھائی bháí, 'brother,' بہن bahin, 'sister;' بیگت beg or خان khán, 'lord,' بیگم begam or خانم khánam, 'lady;' راجا rájá, 'king,' رانی rání, 'queen;' ہاتھی háthí, m. 'an elephant,' ہاتھنی hathní, f. In other cases, as باپ báp, 'father,' ما má, 'mother,' the words are totally different, as in our own language, and often taken from different tongues, as مرد mard, 'man' (Persian), عورت 'aurat, 'woman' (Arabic).

ADJECTIVES.

58. Adjectives are formed from substantives by the addition of certain terminations, most of which will be found in the following alphabetical list: their ordinary meaning will be obvious from the various examples; thus, by adding

ا to	بھوکہ bhúkhá , hunger,	بھوکھا bhúkhá , hungry.
انہ —	طفل a child ,	طفلانہ tiflána , childish.
اور —	زور strength ,	زوراور zor-áwar , strong.
بند —	ہتھیار arms ,	ہتھیاربند hathyár-band . armed.
دار —	وفا fidelity ,	وفادار wafá-dár , faithful.
زا —	ولایت foreign country ,	ولایتزا wiláyat-zá , foreign-born
سار —	کود a mountain ,	کودسار koh-sár , mountainous.
گیر —	دل the heart ,	دلگیر dil-gir , grieved.
گین —	غم sorrow ,	غمگین gham-g'in , sorrowful
لا or لو —	پچھا behind ,	پچھلا pichhlá , hindermost.
مند —	دولت wealth ,	دولتمند daulat-mand , wealthy.

نا to	دو two,	دونا duná , double.
ناک —	هول terror,	هولناک haul-nák , terrible.
و —	دیدار view,	دیدارو didáru , slightly.
وار —	سوگ grief,	سوگوار sog-wár , grievous.
ور —	نام name,	نامور nám-war , renowned.
ه —	دو سال two years,	دو ساله do-sála , biennial.
ي —	بازار a market,	بازاری bázári , of the market.
یل or یلا —	دانت tooth,	دنتیل dāntel , tusked.
بین or یانه —	چوب wood,	چوبین chobín , wooden.

fám and gún are added to words to denote colour; as, زعفران فام za'farán-fám, 'saffron-coloured,' نیل گون níl-gún, 'blue-coloured.' کونا koná and گوشه gosha are added to numerals to express the figure of things; as, چوکونا chau-koná, 'quadrangular, شش گوشه shash-gosha, 'hexagonal,' etc. وش wash and وار wár are added to express likeness; as, برق وش bark-wash, 'like lightning,' مردانه وار mardána-wár, 'like a brave man.'

a. Many adjectives are formed by prefixing certain words; as follows:—

ان to	دیکھا seen,	اندیکھا an-dekhá , unseen.
با —	وفا trust,	باوفا bá-wafá , trusty.
بی —	صبر patience,	بیصبر be-sabr , impatient.
بد —	نام a name,	بدنام bad-nám , infamous.
غیر —	حاضر present,	غیرحاضر ghair-házir , absent.
خلاف —	عقل wisdom,	خلاف عقل khiláf-'aql , foolish.
کم —	بخت fortune,	کم بخت kam-bakht , unfortunate.
لا —	چاره help,	لاچاره lá-chára , helpless.

نا to خوش pleased, ناخوش ná-khush, displeased.
 هم — عمر age, هم عمر ham-'umr, coeval.

59. In concluding our remarks on the derivation of words, we would particularly direct the student's attention to the various uses of the termination ی. 1. It may be added to almost every adjective of the language, simple or compound, which then becomes the corresponding abstract substantive. 2. It may be added to all substantives denoting country, city, sect, tribe, physical substances, etc., which then become adjectives, signifying of or belonging to, or formed from, etc., the primary substantive. Lastly. It is used in forming feminines from masculines; and it is the characteristic of the feminine gender in all present and past participles, as well as in all adjectives purely Indian ending in ا.

COMPOUND WORDS.

60. In all works written in the Urdu or mixed dialect of Hindústání, a vast number of compound words from the Persian may be met with in almost every page. These are generally formed by the union of two substantives, or of an adjective with a substantive. Many of them are given in dictionaries, but as there is no limit to their number, the student must not place much reliance on that source. A few weeks' study of Persian will make the matter clearer than any body of rules we could lay down on the subject; we shall therefore notice here only the more important compounds, referring the student for further information to our Persian Grammar, last edition.

SUBSTANTIVES.

a. A Persian or Arabic substantive with its regimen is of frequent occurrence in Hindústání; as, آب حیات áb-i-haiyát, 'water of immortality;' دیدۀ دانش dida, i-dánish, 'the eye of discernment;' روی زمین rú-e-zamín, 'the face of the earth.' In a similar form a Persian substantive with its adjective occasionally occurs; as, مرد نیکو mard-i-nikú, 'a good man;' عالم فانی 'álam-i-fání, 'the perishable world.' These, when introduced into Hindústání, are viewed as single words, and form their various cases by adding the post-positions like nouns of the first or second classes; as, áb-i-haiyát ká, áb-i-haiyát se, etc.

b. A numerous class of Compound Substantives is formed by the mere juxta-position of two nouns; as, باورچی خانه báwar-chí-khána, 'cook-house, or kitchen,' from باورچی 'cook,' and خانه 'a house;' so, رزم گاه razm-gáh, 'the battle-field,' from رزم 'contest,' and گاد 'a place;' in like manner, جهان پناه jahán-panáh, 'the asylum of the world,' i. e. 'your majesty,' from جهان 'the world,' and پناه 'refuge;' so, روز نامه roz-náma, 'a day-book,' khirad-náma, 'the book of wisdom,' etc. In compounds of this kind, the two words are generally written separate, though they may also be united into one. These are upon the whole like our own compounds, book-stall, coffee house, newspaper, etc., of which it is customary to write some with a hyphen between, others quite separate, and a few united into one word.

c. There is a class of verbal Nouns, not very numerous, consisting, 1st. Of two contracted infinitives, connected with the conjunction و; as, گفت و شنود guft o shanúd, 'conversation,' literally, 'speaking and hearing;' آمد و رفت ámad o raft or ámad o shud, 'coming and going,' 'intercourse.' 2ndly. A contracted infinitive, with the corresponding root; as جُست و جُو just o jû, 'searching;' گُفت و گُو guft o gû, 'conversation.' The conjunction و in such cases is occasionally omitted; as, گُفت گُو, guft gû, the same as گُفت و گُو, guft o gû, etc.

d. There are a few compounds similar to the preceding, consisting of two substantives, sometimes of the same, and sometimes of different signification; as, مرز و کشور or مرز و بوم marz o búm or marz o kishwar, 'an empire' or 'kingdom,' literally, 'boundary and region;' آب و هوا áb o hawá, 'climate,' literally, 'water and air;' نشو و نما nashv o namá, 'rearing or bringing up' (a plant or animal). In these, also, the conjunction و may be omitted, as نشو نما, nashv o namá, etc.

e. Compounds purely Hindústání or Hindí are not nearly so numerous as those borrowed from the Persian; the following are occasionally met with: 1st. A masculine and feminine past participle, generally the same verb, though sometimes different; as, كها كهي kahá-kahí, 'altercation,' كها سني kahá-suní, 'disputation.' 2nd. Two nouns of the same, or nearly the same signification; as, نوكر چاكر 'servants,' رسم ريت 'a custom or mode,' etc. Such expressions are very common in the 'Bágh o Bahár,' which is the standard work of the language. 3rd. Two words having something of alliteration about them, or a similarity of rhyme; as, شور زور shur zor, 'hurly-burly,' مكر چكر 'trickery,' etc., all of which we should of course vote to be vulgarisms, only that they occur in the very best writers. Lastly, the Hindústání is particularly rich in imitative sounds, such as سن سن 'jingling,' جهن جهن 'simmering.'

f. Arabic phrases, such as we described in p. 19 (No. 18), are occasionally met with, such as مُسَبَّبُ الْاَسْبَابِ, 'the Causer of causes,' 'God,' etc.; but we believe that all such are explained in good dictionaries.

ADJECTIVES.

a. A very numerous class of epithets is formed by the union of two substantives; as, لاله رخ lāla rukh, 'having cheeks like the tulip;' پری روی pāri-rū,^e or pari-rū, 'having the face of a fairy;' سنگ دل sang-dil, 'having a heart like stone;' شکر لب shakar-lab, 'having lips (sweet) as sugar.' In English we have many instances, in the more familiar style, of this kind of compound; as, 'iron-hearted,' 'bull-headed,' 'lynx-eyed,' etc.

b. Another numerous class, similar to the preceding, is formed by prefixing an adjective to a substantive; as, خوب روی khūb-rū,^e, 'having a fair face;' پاک رایی pāk-rā,^e, 'of pure intention;' تنگ دل tang-dil, 'distressed in heart.' We make use of many such compounds in familiar conversation and newspaper style, such as 'clear-sighted,' 'long-headed,' 'sharp-witted,' 'hard-hearted,' etc.

c. Perhaps the most numerous class of the epithets is that composed of verbal roots, joined to substantives or adjectives; as, عالم گیر ālām-gīr, 'world-subduing;' فتنه انگیز fitna-angez, 'strife-exciting;' جان آسا jān-dsā, 'giving rest to the soul;' دل ستان dil-sitān, 'ravishing the heart;' سبک رو subuk-raw, 'moving lightly.' Our best English poets frequently indulge in compounds of this class; thus, 'the night-tripping fairy,' 'the temple-haunting martlet,' 'the cloud-compelling Jove,' etc.

d. A knowledge of these Persian compounds will be absolutely necessary, in order to peruse with any advantage the finest productions of the Hindústānī language. The poets in general freely use such terms; nor are they of less frequent occurrence in the best prose works. such as the 'Bāgh o Bahār,' the 'Ikhwānu-ṣ-ṣafā,' the 'Khirad

Afroz,' etc., for the thorough understanding of which, a slight knowledge of the Persian is absolutely requisite. In proof of this, we could point out many compounds which occur in our own selections from the 'Khirad Afroz,' not to be found in any dictionary, the meaning at the same time being quite obvious to any one who knows Persian. Such, for example, are مرهم بها marham-bahá, 'medicine-money;' نفس کشی nafas-kushí, 'mortifying of the passions;' مزاج صوفی súfi-mizáj, 'of philosophic disposition,'

e. We may reckon among the compounds such expressions as ما باپ má-báp, 'parents,' لاڑ کپور lár-kapúr, 'Lár and Kapúr,' names of two brother minstrels who lived at the court of Akbar. It is barely possible that this may be an imitation of the Sanskrit compound called Dwandwa; though the probability is in favour of its being an idiomatic omission of the conjunction اور 'and,' between two such words as are usually considered to be associated together. In works purely Hindí, translated from the Sanskrit, such as the 'Prem Ságar,' it is most likely that such phrases as نند جسودا nánda-jasodá, 'Nanda and Jasodá;' کرشن بلرام krishna-balarám, 'Krishna and Balarám,' are bonâ-fide Dwandwas; but it would savour of pedantry to apply the term to such homely expressions as روٹی مکین 'bread and butter,' or the very un-classical beverage commonly called برنڈی پانی, videlicet, 'brandy and water.'

SECTION V.

SYNTAX, OR THE CONSTRUCTION OF SENTENCES.

61. IN all languages a simple sentence must necessarily consist of three parts, expressed or understood: 1st, a nominative or subject; 2nd, a verb; and 3rd, a predicate or attribute; as, 'fire is hot,' 'ice is cold.' In many instances the verb and attribute are included in one word; as, 'the man sleeps,' 'the horse runs,' 'the snow falls,' in which case the verb is said to be neuter or intransitive. When the verb is expressive of an action, and at the same time the sense is incomplete without stating the object acted upon, it is called an active or transitive verb, as, 'the carpenter made a table,' 'the masons built a church.' In each of these sentences it is evident that something is required beyond the verb to complete the sense, for if we merely said 'the carpenter made,' 'the masons built,' the hearer would instantly ask, 'made what?' 'built what?' In Hindústání and several of its kindred dialects, it is of the utmost importance that the learner should discriminate the active or transitive from the neuter or intransitive verb, in order that he may adopt that mode of construction peculiar to each. In a sentence whose verb is active or transitive, we shall designate the three parts as agent, verb, and object; thus, the carpenter is the agent; made, the verb; and a table, the object.

a. In the arrangement of the three parts of a sentence, different languages follow rules peculiar to themselves; for instance, in the sentence, 'the elephant killed the tiger,' then, Greek, and Sanskrit languages have the option of arranging words in any order. The Arabic and the Gaelic put the verb then the nominative, and lastly the object. The English and such follow the logical order as we have given it, and the Hindí and Persian have also an arrangement of their own, which we now proceed to explain, as our first rule of Syntax or construction.

62. The general rule for the arrangement of the parts of a sentence in Hindústání is, first, the nominative or agent; secondly, the predicate or object; last of all, the verb; thus, آگ گرم ہے ág garm hai 'fire is hot,' پَرہیز اچھی دوا ہے parhez achchhi dawá hai 'astinence is good physic,' ہاتھی نے شیر کو مار ڈالا ہے hi-ne sher-ko mār-dālā hai, 'the elephant has killed the deer.'

a. Though the above rule holds in short sentences such as those we have just given, yet it is by no means of strict application. In the first place, poets are freely allowed the poetical license of the genus; that is, to adopt that arrangement of the words which best pleases the ear, or suits the metre. In prose, also, they sometimes be more emphatic to put the object first; as, اُن بتوں کو برا لایا 'thou hast stolen those images.' Sometimes the object, for the sake of contrast or emphasis, put last, in the place usually occupied by the verb; as follows, جاہل طلبا کی مال کو۔ اور عاقل کمال کو 'the fool seeks for wealth, and the sage for excellence' here māl-ko and kamāl-ko are put last.

b. The Hindústání makes no difference in the arrangement of a sentence, whether it be interrogative or affirmative. In conversation, the tone of the voice, or the look, suffices to indicate whether or not a question is asked, and in reading it must be inferred from the context; thus, تُوں جاؤگی may signify 'you will go,' or 'will you?' There are, however, several words which are used only in a question, such as those given in the middle column of p. 68 above, when used, come immediately before the verb, as تُوں جاؤگی 'where will you go?' word کیا is sometimes employed at the beginning of a sentence to interrogate, like the Latin num or an; as, 'have you not heard this proverb?' شل نهين سني

CONCORD OF ADJECTIVES WITH SUBSTANTIVES.

63. The adjective, as in English, generally precedes its substanti If the adjective be capable of inflection, that is, if it is a purely Indian word ending in ā, the following rules: The termination ā is used before all masculine nouns in the nominative (or first accusative) case singular; the termination e is used before masculine noun any other case singular, or in the plural number; the termination -ī is used before all feminine nouns in any case, singular or plural; thus, ruh bhalā mard hai, 'he is a good man,' le mard-se, 'from a good man,' bhale mard, 'good men,' bhale mardon-se, 'from good men,' bhalī aurat, 'a good woman,' ali auraton-kā, 'of good women.'

a. The same applies to such adjectives in ān and śa, as admit of inflection; as, dśwan mard, 'the tenth man,' dświn rat, 'the tenth night;' so, biچارہ مسافر, 'the helpless traveller,' biچارہ کو, 'to the helpless traveller,' biچارہ راني, 'helpless queen.'

b. If adjectives, capable of inflection, be separated by means of the particle ka from the noun which they qualify, and united with the verb, they undergo no change; as, uski mūh ko kālā kro, 'blacken his face;' in this sentence kālā-karnā is to be reckoned a compound verb (66, b). Adjectives, ending with any letter except ā, śa and restricted as above, do not undergo any change as, پاک آدمی 'a pure man, پاک عورت 'a pure woman,' پاک چیز 'an unclean thing.'

c. As a general rule, adjectives, when followed by their substantives, never receive the nasal terminations (ān, en, or on) of the plural; and the same rule applies to such tenses as are formed of participles with or without an auxiliary verb, it being deemed sufficient to add the nasal n to the last word only; as اچھی کتابیں achchhi (not achchhi,ān) kitāben, 'good books;'
 بھلی آدمیوں نے bhale (not bhalon) ādmiyon-ne, 'by good men;'
 وہ چلی جاتی رہتی تھیں we chali jāti rahti thīn, 'they (females) continued going along.' Sometimes, however, the participle takes the plural termination; as پھرتیاں ہیں and کرتیاں ہیں. When the adjective comes last (which may happen in verse), it sometimes receives the plural termination; as, راتیں بھاریاں 'heavy (tedious) nights.' (Yates's Grammar).

d. If an adjective qualify two or more nouns, some of which are masculine, and others feminine, the adjective is used in the masculine form, and the same rule applies to the participles and future tenses of verbs; as, اُسکی ماں باپ مُوئے ہیں 'his mother and father are dead;'
 اُسنی اپنی بیٹی بیٹی کو مُوا دیکھ کر کہا 'he seeing his son and daughter dead, said,' etc. If, however, the substantives be names of inanimate things, the adjective generally agrees with that to which it stands nearest; thus, کپڑے باسن اور کتابیں بہت اچھی ہیں 'the clothes, plates, and books are very good.'

CONCORD OF THE GENITIVE WITH ITS REGIMEN; ETC.

64. We have seen (p. 27, etc.,) that the genitive case has three distinct terminations, kā, ke, and kī, and the rule which determines the choice of these is exactly similar to that which regulates the termination of the adjective; in fact, all genitives in Hindústání are possessive adjectives, subject to inflection, and, like adjectives, they are generally placed before the substantive which governs them. If the governing word be masculine and in the nominative case (or first form of the accusative) singular, کا ká is used, as, مرد کا گھر mard-ká ghar, 'the man's house,' or 'the house of the man,' مرد کا کُتا وفادار ہے mard-ká kuttá wafádár hai, 'the man's dog is faithful,' مرد کا کُتا مت مارو mard-ká kuttá mat máro, 'do not beat the man's dog.' If the governing word be masculine, and in an oblique case singular, or in any case plural, کی ke is used, as, مرد کی گھر سے mard-ke ghar-se, 'from the man's house,' مرد کی گھروں کو mard-ke gharon-ko, 'to the man's houses.' Lastly, if the governing word be feminine, in whatever case or number, کی kí is used; as, مرد کی بیٹی mard-kí betí, 'the man's daughter,' مرد کی کتابیں mard-kí kitáben, 'the man's books.'

a. Although the general rule is to put the genitive case before its regimen, yet the reverse is of frequent occurrence, particularly in such works as have been translated or imitated from the Persian; as فید بدن کی 'the thralldom of the body,' سجده شکر کا 'the worship of thanksgiving.' We may here state that the Persian genitive is formed by placing the governing word first, having its last letter marked with the vowel kasra; as, گنج دانش ganj-i dánish, 'the treasury of wisdom,' where the short vowel i is the sign of the genitive, similar in its use to our particle of in English. Persian words ending with s and ی take '؛' and those ending with ا or و take ی for the sign of the genitive; as, بندد خدا 'a servant of God,' هواي بحر 'air of the sea.'

b. The genitive sign is employed idiomatically in such expressions as as sab-ká sab, 'one and all,' khet-ká khet, 'the whole (field) of the field,' bát-kí bát, 'mere talk;' and adjectively to convert a substantive into an attributive; thus, sone-ká takhta, 'a golden plate,' or 'plate of gold;' beti sár-ká chhokra, 'a boy with a large head.'

c. In some cases it is idiomatically omitted; as daryá kanári, 'on the river bank,' for daryá-ke kanári, 'on the bank of the river.' It is also omitted in many expressions in which the governing words denote weight or measure; as, ek bighá zemín, 'one pound of flesh,' 'a bighá of ground,' where the words are used merely in apposition, the same as in German.

d. The genitive is also used to signify possession, value, etc.; as, pádsháh-ke ek betá thá, 'the king had a son,' in like manner, us-ke ek beti thá, 'he had also a daughter,' ek rūpi, e-ká chánval, 'one rupee's (worth of) rice.'

e. Compounds formed of two common substantives in English will in Hindústání be expressed by the genitive case; as likhne-kí mez, 'a writing-table;' kháne ká wakt, 'dinner time;' and sometimes the genitive sign is used in Hindústání when in English it is inadmissible, as fíkr ká lafz, 'the word FIKR.'

f. Instances sometimes occur in which a genitive case is used in consequence of a noun or preposition understood; such as tem us-ke súnó, 'hear ye him,' i. e. us-ke bát, 'his word;' so in the tale of the First Darwesh ('Bágh o Bahár,' p. 34,) we have ab hamári tumhári (where the word bech or dermian is understood), 'between you and me there has arisen a sincere friendship.' The editors of a recent Calcutta edition have made an amendment here, by adding hamári tumhári !

GOVERNMENT OF PREPOSITIONS, ETC.

65. The list of prepositions, page 71, beginning with آگي áge, etc., govern the genitive with كي ke; as گھر کی آگي ghar-ke áge, 'before (in front of) the house;' دریا کی پار daryá-ke pár, 'over (on the other side of) the river,' etc. The less numerous list, beginning with بابت bábat, etc., page 72, govern the genitive with کی kí; as شہر کی طرف shahr-kí taraf, 'towards (in the direction of) the city.' All the prepositions may be optionally put before or after the word which they govern, their effect on the substantive, with few exceptions, remaining the same.

a. The prepositions being all substantives in an oblique case whose termination is (No. 64, c) idiomatically omitted, it is easy to see from what we have just stated why they should govern the genitive in ke or kí, but never in ká. There is however one peculiarity attending some of the feminine prepositions which custom seems to have established; though the rationale of it be not at all evident. We have excellent authority for saying that the words بمدد bimadad, طرف taraf, and مانند manind, when they precede the substantive, require the genitive in كي ke; and when they follow, they require کی kí. In the second volume of the 'Khirad Afroz,' p. 277, we have بمدد عقل کی bamadad 'aql-ke, 'by aid of the understanding.' In the 'Bágh o Bahár,'¹ p. 40, we have بی مریضی حضور کی te-marzī huzūr-ke, 'without consent of her highness the princess;' and in page 188 of the same work, we have ایک طرف شہر کی ek taraf shahr-ke, 'on one side of the city;' all of them with ke in every edition and copy, printed or manuscript. The wonder is, how it escaped the critical amendments of the Calcutta editors already alluded to; but so it has, for even they have here followed the established reading.

b. The preposition مانند mānand or mānind has been amply discussed by Dr. Gilchrist in several of his works, but it must be confessed that the learned doctor does not in this instance appear as a sound and fair critic. He assumes that one of the Munshis used ke instead of kī by mistake, and that he had sufficient influence with all the other learned natives of the country to make them take his part, and sanction the error. This argument is so very ridiculous that refutation is superfluous. Use is everything in language, and if in Hindústānī custom has ordained that several of the prepositions when they precede the word which they govern, require the genitive with ke, and when they follow require kī, then it is the duty of the grammarian fairly to state the fact. It is quite probable that many instances of this mode of construction, in addition to those which we have shown above, may yet be detected.

c. The adverbs یہاں 'here,' and وہاں 'there,' govern the genitive with ke, like nouns or prepositions. When thus used, they convey idiomatically the signification of 'at, to, or in the house of,' or 'in the possession of.' صاحب کی یہاں جاؤ 'go to the gentleman's house,' which is not unlike the use of the French particle chez. The prepositions پاس and نزدیک are used in the same general sense as اُسکی پاس 'near or with him,' and more generally 'in his possession,' 'chez lui.' The word نزدیک denotes idiomatically 'in the opinion of,' as عقلمندوں کی نزدیک 'in the opinion of the wise;' 'apud sapientes.'

d. Several of the prepositions, when they follow their substantives, may dispense entirely with the genitive signs ke and ki, thus shewing a tendency to become real postpositions; as, قاضی پاس 'near or before the judge.' If the word they govern be a noun of the third class, or a pronoun, the inflected form remains the same as if ke or ki had been expressed; as, لڑکی پاس 'near the boy;' اُس بنا 'without him or her;' and if the word governed be the first or second personal pronoun, when the genitive is thus dispensed with, the oblique forms mujh and tujh are used; as, مجھے پاس 'near me;' تجھے پاس 'near thee.'

DATIVE CASE.

66. The use and application of this case is very nearly the same as in most European languages. As a general rule, an English noun, governed by the prepositions to or for, will be expressed in Hindústání by means of the dative case.

a. The Hindústání dative sometimes corresponds with the Latin accusative, expressive of motion to a place; for instance, مَیْنِ گِہر کو 'I will go home,' 'ibo domum.' In this last sense also, the sign ko is often omitted, which brings it still nearer the Latin; as, چلُونگا 'I will go home,' 'ibo domum.' The dative case is also used to express time when; as, مَیْنِ گِہر جاتا کُون 'I am going home,' 'eo domum.' The dative case is also used to express time when; as, دِن کو 'by day;' رات کو 'by night;' شام کو 'at evening.' In such expressions the post-position ko is frequently and even elegantly omitted; as, ایک دِن 'one day;' and if the word expressive of time be accompanied by an adjective or pronoun subject to inflection, the inflected form of the latter remains the same as if ko had been expressed: as, اُس دِن 'on that day;' کِس وقت 'at what time?'

ACCUSATIVE CASE.

67. The accusative in Hindústání, as in English, is generally like the nominative, but when it is desirable to render the object of an active verb very definite or specific, then the termination ko (of the dative) is added to the object.

a. We believe this rule to be quite sound as a general principle, though by no means of rigid application. Many words are sufficiently definite from accompanying circumstances, such as an adjective, a genitive case, a pronoun, etc., so as not to require any discriminative mark. Others again, though sufficiently definite in themselves, generally require the particle ko; such are proper names, names of offices, professions, etc.; as, مانِكُ كو بَلَاوُ 'call Mánik;' سَرْدَارُ كو بَلَاوُ 'call the Sardár.' In these instances, however, the Hindústání assimilates with the Greek, which would employ the definite article in like cases.

b. The use of the particle ko to denote the object of an active verb forms one of the niceties of the Hindústání, which can only be arrived at by practice. A well-educated native, and many Europeans who have studied the language and associated much with natives, will without effort supply the particle ko in its proper place, and nowhere else. It follows then that there must be some principle to regulate all this, though it may be difficult to lay hold of, or to express within a short compass. The rule given by Muḥammad Ibráhím of Bombay, and we assuredly know of no better authority, is in substance the same as we have just stated.—Vide 'Tuhfæ Elphinstone,' page 80.

c. When a verb governs an accusative and also a dative, both being substantives, the first or nominative form of the accusative is generally used, as the repetition of ko in both cases would not only sound ill, but in many instances lead to ambiguity; thus, مَرْدُ كو گُھُورَا دو 'give the horse to the man.' If, however, it be deemed essential to add ko to the accusative, even this rule must give way; as in the following sentence : اُسَ نِي اِپَنِي بَہائِي کِي حَقِّي کُو اُسکِي بِيبي کُو دِيا 'he gave his brother's share to his (brother's) wife.' When the dative is a pronoun, the repetition of ko is easily avoided by using the termination e or en for the latter ; as, قاضِي نِي لَرکِي کُو اُسي سِپَرَدِ کِيا 'the judge gave up to her the child.'

ABLATIVE AND LOCATIVE.

68. The ablative denotes the source from which any thing proceeds; the locative, as its name imports, denotes situation. In their use and application, they generally correspond with the Latin ablative.

a. The ablative sign se سِي signifies 'from' and 'with.' It is applied to the instrument with which, but very seldom to the agent by whom, any act is done, unless in connection with a neuter verb. Example: جَلادِ نِي قَيدِي کُو تلوارِ سِي مارا 'the executioner smote the prisoner with a sword.' In Dr. Gilchrist's Story-Teller (No. 97), we have an instance of se denoting the agent, the only one we have ever met with in our reading ; اُچھِ سِي رُوکِجِي روٹِي کِيونکر کَہائِي گِي تَہِي 'how is it that stale bread was eaten by thee?' With a neuter verb se may be used to denote the source or origin of the event described ; as follows, کِسي شاعرِ سِي کُچھِ قُصُورِ سَرزدِ هُوا 'by some poet (or through some poet) a fault took place.'

b. With the verb کَہنا kahna, 'to say' or 'tell,' the particle se سِي seems to be used idiomatically, and must often be translated in English by 'to;' as, مَين اُسَ سِي سچَ کَہتا هُون 'I am saying to him,' or 'telling him, truth;' because the sentence مَين اُسَ کُو سچَ کَہتا هُون will mean, 'I declare him (or her, or it) to be true,' or 'I call that truth;' so اُسکو لوگ مَرَد نہيں کَہتِي means 'people do not call him a man.' The use of se سِي with کَہنا therefore is obvious.

c. The locative sign مَين men generally denotes in, sometimes to or into ; as, شہر مین ھی 'he is in the city;' 'وہ شہر مین گیا 'he is gone to (into) the city.' The locative signs مین and پر have frequently the post-position سی joined to them; as, شہر مین سی تلوار لایا 'he brought a sword from in the city;' 'وہ اپنی گھوڑی پر سی گر پڑا 'he fell down from on his horse.' Here the English idiom is 'from off' his horse, which is less logical.

CASE OF THE AGENT.

69. The case of the agent, characterized by the particle ni نِ, is never used except with transitive verbs, and when used it is confined to those tenses only which are formed of the past participle (No. 40, page 55). The verb then agrees with the object in gender and number, unless it be deemed requisite to render the object definite by the addition of the particle ko کو (No. 67), in which case the verb remains in the simple form of the third person singular masculine.

a. In further illustration of this very simple rule, we here subjoin a sufficient number of examples; اُس نی ایک کُتا دیکھا 'he saw a dog,' or, literally, 'by him a dog (was) seen;' likewise, اُس نی تین گھوڑی دیکھی 'he saw three horses,' or, 'by him,' etc.; اُس نی ایک لومڑی دیکھی 'he saw a fox;' اُس نی بہت لومڑیاں دیکھیں 'he saw many foxes;' in all which phrases the construction agrees precisely with the Latin passive voice. Again, if it be deemed necessary or elegant to add ko to the object, then the verb will be always the same, that is, the masculine singular form; thus, ہم نی کُتی کو دیکھا 'we have seen the dog;' اُس نی گھوڑوں کو دیکھا 'have you seen the horses?'; جب اُس مرْد نی لومڑی کو دیکھا 'when that man saw the fox;' ہم نی لومڑیوں کو دیکھا 'we have seen the foxes.'

The same rule applies to all the tenses into which دیکھا enters (page 55); as, اُسَ نِي اِيکُ کُتَا دیکھا هِي 'he has seen a dog;' so, اُسَ نِي تِنِ گِوَرِي دیکهي تهي 'he had seen three horses.' As this is a subject of great importance in the language, we would advise the student to repeat each of the above phrases in all the tenses given in page 55.

b. It must be remembered that the case denoting the agent in the personal pronouns I and thou, are مَينَ نِي main-ne and تُو نِي tū-ne or تَينَ نِي tain-ne; as مَينَ نِي اُسکو دیکھا 'I saw him (her or it);' تُو نِي يِهہ مِثَلِ نَہِينَ سُنِي 'hast thou not heard this proverb?' If, however, the pronouns be followed by a qualifying word (substantive or adjective), the inflected forms مُجھہ mujh and تُجھہ tujh are used; thus, in the 'Bāgh o Bahār,' page 20, مُجھہ فقيرَ نِي ما باپ کي سائي مَينَ پُرورشِ پائي 'I poor (or wretched) obtained nourishment under the shelter of my parents.'

c. The student should endeavour to remember the limited and restricted use of this case of the agent. 1st. It is never used before a neuter or intransitive verb. 2nd. It is never used before any of the tenses formed from the root or from the present participle of any verb whatever. 3rd. It is never used before the verb بولنا bolnā, 'to speak or say,' nor before لانا lānā, 'to bring,' although they both seem according to our notion to be intransitive. Bolnā appears to differ very little from کھنا khnā, which last requires the use of the agent with ne. The verb lānā is a compound of le-ānā, the last member of which is neuter or intransitive, and this leads us to a general rule, which is, that 'compound verbs, such as Intensives, of which the last member is neuter, though really transitive in signification, do not require the agent with ne;' thus, وي مُسافرِ کپائي کو کپا گئي هيَن 'those travellers have eaten up the dinner.'

d. When two sentences having the same nominative or agent are coupled by the conjunction اور aur, 'and,' the first of which has a neuter verb, and the following a verb transitive, it is not necessary to express the agent with ne in the second sentence, but the construction goes on the same as if ne had been expressed; thus, وہ جہت پھر آئی اور کہا wuh jhat phir á,í aur (us-ne) kahá, 'she quickly returned and said.'

e. This very peculiar use of the particle ne to denote the agent prevails, with slight modifications, throughout an extensive group of dialects spoken in Hindústán Proper. It is found in the Maráthí, the Guzeráti, and the Panjábi, in the West. In the Nepalese it assumes the form لي le; and it may be inferred that it prevails in most of the intermediate dialects of Hindí origin, amounting to nearly twenty in number. It does not exist in the group of dialects connected with the Bengálí, nor in those of the Deccan. In the grammars of the Maráthí language, it is called the Instrumental case, a term inapplicable in Hindí, as it never is used with the instrument, but solely with the agent. What is called the instrumental case in Sanskrit, is applied indifferently to the agent or instrument; but in the modern dialects above alluded to, particularly the Hindústání, ne is restricted to the agent only.

f. Our great grammarians have succeeded wonderfully well in mystifying the very simple (though singular) use and application of this particle ne. Dr.*Gilchrist, in the first edition of his grammar, seems to have felt greatly embarrassed by it, without exactly knowing what to make of it. Those who have merely followed the learned doctor, with very few ideas of their own, have contented themselves by calling it an expletive, which luminous explanation has stood for years in one of the books hitherto read by beginners. Now, the term 'expletive' in philology is as convenient, in its way, as that of the humours in the jargon of quack doctors; it solves every difficulty, and forms a ready answer to all questions: it may mean anything or nothing. To account philosophically for the mode in which this particle is applied does not fall within our province; suffice it merely to say, that it is a form of construction very common in Sanskrit. With regard, however, to its practical use and application, we trust that all difficulty has been removed. The fact is, that the only real difficulty likely to arrest the progress of the learner consists, not in the use of ne to express the agent, but in that of ko to define the object of a transitive verb.

NUMERALS.

70. When a noun is accompanied by a numeral adjective, the plural termination on of the oblique cases is generally dispensed with. If the noun be of the third class, the inflected form in e is generally used.

a. Thus, تین سپاہی نی چار مرد کو مارا 'three soldiers beat four men.' We have reason to believe that the addition of the termination on would render the substantives more pointed or definite; thus, tin sipáhiyon-ne would signify 'the three soldiers (aforesaid).' In the grammar prefixed to Dr. Gilchrist's Dictionary (London ed.), we have سو گھوڑا نواب کی یہاں تھا 'a hundred horses were at the Nawwáb's,' which ought to be translated 'a hundred horse,' i. e. 'a troop or collective body of one hundred,' whereas, 'a hundred horses,' or 'a hundred boys,' would be سو لڑکی and سو گھوڑی.

b. Collective numbers add on to denote multiplication or repetition; as, ہزاروں شہر 'hundreds of cities;' سیکڑوں لڑائیوں 'thousands of battles.' Any numeral by adding on becomes more emphatic or definite; as, وہ چاروں شخص 'those four persons.' Words expressive of time, as year, month, day, etc., add on in the nominative plural; as, برسوں گزری 'years have passed away.'

c. In Hindústání the conjunction, etc., is idiomatically omitted in such phrases as دس بیس دو تین 'two (or) three, (from) ten (to) twenty.' A doubtful number is expressed by adding ایک to the numeral; as, سو ایک برس 'about ten men;' آدھی دس ایک 'about a hundred years.' To signify 'fold,' چند or گنا is added to numerals; as دو چند 'two-fold;' دس گنا 'ten-fold.' Distributives are formed by doubling the number; as, دو دو 'two by two,' or 'two apiece.' Thus, suppose we wish to say, 'give these men three rupees each,' or 'three rupees apiece,' the Hindústání will be 'to these men, three three rupees give.'

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

71. We have already observed that adjectives in Hindústání do not admit of comparison by any regular or systematic terminations. The comparative degree is indicated by merely putting the standard of comparison in the ablative, and the superlative by prefixing to that the word sab, 'all.'

a. The comparative and superlative are to be inferred in general from the context, as the adjective has only one form, that of the positive or simple word, thus سَخِي سِي سُوم بِيلا جو تُرَّت دي جواب 'the miser is better than the liberal man if he (the miser) give an answer quickly.' It is obvious that if the standard of comparison should include the whole class spoken of, the adjective will express the superlative degree. Ex. سب كُنُون مِين سِي دو خُوب كِين 'of all accomplishments two are best' (viz. learning and the art of war).

b. To express the comparative degree, the particles اور aur, and زیاده ziyáda, 'more,' may also be employed exactly as in French and English; as, وي لوگ كُتون سِي زياده خراب كِين 'those people are worse than dogs.' The adjective is sometimes doubled to express the superlative degree; as, اچھا اچھا 'very good;' but the words most commonly used and prefixed for this purpose are بڑا bड़ा 'great, very;' بہت 'much;' حد 'beyond bounds;' نہایت 'extremely;' سخت 'very' (generally in a bad or disagreeable sense); and سا 'most, very,' which last is added. It is to be further observed that بِئْرَا, though thus used apparently as an adverb, agrees in gender and number with the substantive; as, وَهُ بَئْرَا خَرَاب لُڑْكَا هِي 'he is a very wicked boy;' and again, وَهُ بَئْرِي خَرَاب لُڑْكِ هِي 'she is a very wicked girl.'

c. The particle سا sá (se, si), when added to a substantive, converts such substantive into an adjective denoting similitude; as, كُتَا سا نَپَاكُ جَانُور 'a dog-like unclean animal.' When added to an adjective, it seems to render the same more intensive, though frequently it is difficult to find for it an equivalent English expression; as, بِهٖت سِي هَتْمِيَار وَهَان تَبِي 'bring a little water;' تَبُوٲَا سا پَانِي لِي آو 'there were many weapons there.' When the comparison made by سا alludes to one thing out of many, it governs the genitive case; as in the sentence تُمْهَارَا بِيي اُنْهِي كَا سا جِسْم هِي 'you also have a body exactly like theirs;' شِيرْكِ سِي صُورَت 'a form like that of a tiger.'

USE OF THE PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

72. The personal pronouns, as in Latin, are very often merely understood, particularly before such tenses of the verb as possess distinct personal terminations; and as a general rule, the pronouns need not be expressed when the sense is quite clear without them, except it be by way of contrast or emphasis.

a. When the third personal pronouns become the object of an active verb, they are generally used in the second (or dative) form of the accusative; as, اُسْكَو مارو 'beat him;' اُنْكَو لَآو 'call them;' اِسِي لَڪَا 'take this away.' If, however, they are employed as adjectives, along with their substantives, they may be used in the nominative form: as, تُمْ يَه بَات سُنْتِي هُو 'you hear this word.' With the conjunctive participle, they are elegantly used in the nominative form ; as, یہ کہہ کر 'having said this.' Sometimes, though rarely, the nominative form may be used when a dative follows ; as, میں وہ تجھے دُون 'I will give that to thee.' When the first or second personal pronouns are governed by an active verb, the dative form is always used ; as, وہ مجھکو مارتا ہے or وہ مجھے مارتا ہے 'he is beating me ;' میں تجھے دیکھتا ہوں 'I see thee.'

b. It may be observed that the personal, relative, and interrogative pronouns have two distinct terminations for the dative and accusative cases, viz. ko or e for the singular, and ko or en for the plural. Hence, when an active verb governs an accusative (second form) and dative at the same time, it will be easy to avoid a repetition of the termination ko by employing e or en in the one case, and ko in the other ; thus, قاضی نے لڑکی کو اُسی سپرد کیا میں اُسی تمکو دُونگا 'the judge gave up the child to her.' In sentences of this kind, the accusative is generally put before the dative, but not always ; thus, in the 'Baitál Pachísí,' a very sagacious young lady says to her father, پتا جو سب کُن جانتا ہو مجھے اُسی دیجو 'O father, whosoever may be acquainted with all the sciences, give me to him,' or 'bestow me upon him in marriage,' but then, in another part of the same work, we have a similar expression differently arranged, as پتا اُسی مجھے دینا where the dative is placed first.

c. When the first and second personal pronouns are accompanied by a qualifying word, the genitive of the whole expression is made by ká, ké, kí, not rá, re, ri, and the pronouns are used in the inflected forms mujh and tujh ; as, مجھ فقیر کا 'of me wretched ;' تجھ دانا کا 'of thee wise.' This oblique form is also used when the particle sá, se, sí is added to denote similitude ; as, تجھ سا عاقلَمند 'a sensible man like thee.'

d. In Hindústání, as in English, it is customary to address an individual generally in the second person plural, the singular being used in prayer to a deity, or to express familiarity or contempt; but in the vulgar tongue they go a step further, and the speaker uses the plural هم 'we,' when it really refers to no more than himself. This abuse has led to the necessity of adding the word لوگ 'people,' to denote a genuine plural, as ham log, 'we (people),' tum log, 'you (people).' Thus, ہم جانتی دین 'I know' (literally 'we know'); and if a real plural is meant, then they say ham log jānte haiñ; so, کتاب ہم کو دو 'give me (us) the book.' To testify great respect, the third person must also be used in the plural when speaking of a king, saint, or any illustrious or respected man in general; as, وی سچ فرماتی دین 'he is speaking truth' (literally, 'they,' etc.). When the plural is thus used for the singular, it is generally uninflected; but when a still higher degree of respect, or a more decided plural is intended, it receives the inflection; as, انہوں نے کہا 'they or he (his honour, majesty, etc.) said.'

e. This confusion of numbers may have given rise to the following idioms: ہماری تمہاری ہاتھ 'into our and your hands,' that is, 'into the hands of us two;' ہم تم چلیں گے ham tum chalenge, 'we and you (i.e. I and thou) will go,' meaning, 'we shall go.' The speaker politely assumes precedence to himself; and when two different persons thus occur in a sentence, the verb agrees with the first person in preference to the second, and with the second in preference to the third; as, ہم تم جاویں گے 'we and you will go;' تم وی جاؤ گے 'you and they will go.'

f. We here subjoin the rules laid down by Muḥammad Ibrāhīm of Bombay respecting the etiquette to be observed in the use of the pronouns. "1. When the speaker and the person whom he addresses are of the same rank, each should speak of himself in the singular number, and address the other in the second person plural. 2. A person of superior rank may speak of himself in the plural number, but this is not considered to be polite, nor is it thought correct to address even the lowest rank in the singular number. 3. The pronouns of the third person may be used in the singular when speak.

ing of any person in their presence, unless they be of superior rank, when they ought to be spoken of in the plural. 4. When one person of rank addresses another of the same or superior rank, or speaks of him in his presence, it is most correct to make use of the respectful pronoun آپ, or the great man's title, or some respectful phrase, as خُداوند 'your honour,' حضرت 'honour, highness,' etc., and the like, with the third person plural (of the pronouns and verbs); and when an inferior addresses a superior, he ought at all times to use similar expressions of respect, suitable to the rank of the person addressed." We may further add, that an inferior at the same time speaks of himself in the third person singular, under the appellation of غلام 'your servant' or 'slave;' فِدَوِي 'your devoted;' بند 'your bondsman;' مُخْلِص 'your sincere friend,' etc.

g. When a person relates the speech of another, he makes use of the identical words which the person whose speech is reported is supposed to have used. Example, He said he should go next day, اُس ني ڪها ڪه مَين ڪل جاؤنگا (lit. 'he said, I will go to-morrow.') So in the sentence, He told me to go home, اُس ني ڪها ڪه گهر جاو (lit. 'he said, go home.') This idiomatic use of the pronouns, and consequently of the persons and tenses of the verb, is well worthy of the student's attention. It is perhaps that point in which the Hindústání differs most widely from the English, as will be seen in the following sentence, which to save room we shall give in the Roman character. Kal main-ne ap-ke bete-ko shahr-men dekhá, wuh yahán dyá-cháhtá thá tum-se milne-ko, par kahá ki ghorá merá mar-gayá, aur hamen ishára kiyá ki ap-se zâhir karná ki apní páلكی mere wáste bhej-dená; fi-l-hál jo tumhári páلكی maujud na ho, to mukhlis apní páلكی us-ke wáste bhej-degá. 'I saw your son yesterday in the city, he wished to come here to see you, but mentioned that his horse was dead, and desired me to tell you to send your páلكی for him; if your páلكی be not now at hand, I shall despatch mine for him.' From the preceding sentence it will appear that considerable attention and experience will be necessary before the student can readily apply the pronouns agreeably to the rules of grammar, idiom, and etiquette, which last is a point of great importance among the Orientals.

USE OF THE POSSESSIVE 'APNÁ.'

73. When there occurs in the complement of a sentence a possessive pronoun belonging to the nominative or agent, such possessive is expressed in Hindústání by اپنا apná (-ne or -ní).

a. We may define the complement of a sentence in general, as that portion of it which in English follows the verb; thus, in the sentences, 'he returned to his house,' 'he was transacting his business,' the phrases 'to his house,' and 'his business,' form the complement. Again, in each of these, the possessive pronoun his, if it refers solely to the nominative he, will be expressed by apná in Hindústání; as, وَد اپنا كام كرتا تيا and وَد اپني گهر پير آيا; but if the pronoun his refers to another person, then it will be expressed by us-ká (-ke, -kí); for instance, وَد اُسكي گهر آيا 'he came to his house,' meaning not his own house, but the house of some other third person.

b. When the nominative of a sentence consists of the first or second personal pronoun, and its possessive occurs in the complement, the matter admits of no hesitation; as, 'I am going to see my father;' 'we have seen our new house;' 'you are destroying your health;' in all of which apná would be used for 'my,' 'our,' and 'your,' respectively. In the use of the third person, however, the English language is liable to an ambiguity, for example, the sentence 'he was beating his slave' has two meanings; it might be his own slave, or another man's. The Hindústání is much more explicit; 'his own slave' would be expressed by apne ghulám-ko, and 'another man's slave' by us-ke ghulám-ko; hence, as a practical rule, if the possessive in the complement of a sentence denotes own, it will be expressed in Hindústání by apná (-ne, -ní). Sometimes, apná is elegantly repeated, to denote separation or distinction; as follows, وَب دونون اپني اپني گهر گئي 'they both went, each to his own house,' whereas apne ghar would merely denote 'their own house,' as common to both.

c. It is needless to add, that if a possessive pronoun occurs in the nominative part of a sentence, the use of apná is inadmissible; as, مَیْن اُور مَیْرَا باپ اُپنی مُلک مَیْن جائیَنگی 'I and my father will go to our own country.' Here main aur mera báp is the nominative of the sentence, and apne mulk men is the complement; in the former, the regular possessive mera is used, and in the latter, apná, according to our rule above stated.

d. When in the first clause of a sentence there occurs the conjunctive participle, the possessive in it will be apná; as, مَیْن اُپنی باپ کو ساتھ لیکر اُپنی مُلک مَیْن جاؤنگا 'I, having taken my father with me, will go to my own country.' Here, the use of apná is strictly according to rule, for the sentence is equivalent to 'I will take my father with me; and I will go to my own country.'

e. We occasionally meet with apná used irregularly instead of the other possessives; as, اُپنا بی بی مزاج بھک گیا 'my own disposition even was led astray.' ('Bágh o Bahár,' p. 21.) In ordinary discourse, according to Dr. Gilchrist, we may hear such expressions as the following, namely, جو اُپنا بیٹا ایسا کرتا 'if my son had done so.' Lastly, apná is used substantively in the general sense of 'one's people, friends,' etc., like the Latin expression 'apud suos;' thus, اُپنوں کی پاس آیا - پر اُپنوں نے اُسی قبول نہ کیا 'he came to his own, but his own received him not.'

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

74. The demonstratives یہ yih, 'this,' and وہ wuh, 'that,' together with their plurals, are sometimes used in the same sense as our definite article 'the.' They are applicable to both genders, and agree with their substantives in case, and generally in number.

a. We have seen it stated in some grammar, 'that a demonstrative pronoun in the singular may be used with an Arabic plural,' etc., from which the reader is left to infer that it is not used with any other plural. Now, the fact is, that yih and wuh are frequently used with any plural, and represent the plural even without the substantive; as, يہ دونوں بھائی جاگم کی پاس گئی, 'these two brothers went to the magistrate;' and again, وُد بہ طریق خیرات کی کچھ دیتی کین, 'they by way of alms give something.'¹ It would be needless to multiply examples, as they may be met with in any author. We have reason to believe, however, that when the singular is thus used, it is either to denote a collective group, or in a disrespectful sense; on a principle analogous to that of applying the plural to one person in order to denote respect or reverence.

INTERROGATIVES.

75. The interrogative کون kaun, when used by itself, generally applies to persons, and کیا kyā to irrational or lifeless beings; but if the substantive be expressed, kaun will agree with it adjectively in case and number, whereas the inflection of kyā is never used adjectively.

a. For example, in the phrase کون ہے 'who is there?' the inference is, 'what person?' so, کیا ہے signifies 'what (thing) is it?' At the same time we may not only say کون مرَد 'what man?' but also کس مرَد کو 'to what man?' but also کون چیز 'what thing?' کس چیز کا 'of what thing?' We can also say, کیا چیز 'what thing?' but we cannot say کاہی چیز to denote 'of what thing.' The oblique form káhe is used only as a substantive; as, کاهي کي گيتري 'a watch of what (substance, etc.)?' the answer to which may be سوڻي کي 'of gold,' etc. Sometimes kyá is applied to a person or thing by way of exclamation; as, کیا حرام زادہ 'what a rogue!' کیا بات 'what an affair.' When kyá is repeated, it seems to convey the idea of 'what various?' as, کیا کیا عجائب 'what various wonders?' Sometimes, kyá is used as a conjunction, meaning 'whether,' 'or,' like the Latin 'sive;' as, کیا باغ کھیت میں 'whether in the garden or in the field.'

b. The interrogative is used for the relative in such sentences as مَیں جانتا ڏون ڪہ کون هي 'I know who it is.' Also adverbs derived from the interrogative (vide page 68) are in a similar manner substituted for those from the relative; for instance, مَیں نہین جانتا ڏون ڪہ وہ ڪ جائيگا 'I do not know when he will go.'

c. Sometimes a question is used to denote negation or surprise; as, اٽنا ملڪ جو ليا تيري کس ڪام آويگا 'all the territory which thou hast taken will be of no use to thee;' literally, 'of what use will it be to thee?' and again, ڪہان راجا ڪا بيتا ڪہان ڀہ شہرہ 'where is the king's son? and where this report?' meaning 'the king's son has nothing to do with this report.'

RELATIVE AND CORRELATIVE.

76. Strictly speaking, the Hindústání does not possess a relative pronoun corresponding with our 'who,' 'which,' and 'that,' and as this want is a source of much perplexity to the learner, we shall endeavour in the following paragraphs to explain fully how the place of the relative is supplied.

a In page 38 we have given the declension of جو and سو which from want of a better term we called relative and correlative, respectively. The word جو signifies 'he who,' 'she who,' or 'that which,' and refers, not to an antecedent, like our relative 'who,' but to a noun following, like our words 'whosoever,' 'whatsoever,' 'whoso.' Hence جو usually begins the sentence, and is followed in a second clause by سو and the use of the two together generally forms a substitute for our relative pronouns 'who,' 'which,' and 'that,' as will be seen by the following examples; جو گهوڙي تُم ني بياجي ٿي - سو راجا ني بهت پسند ڪئي 'the king much approved of the horses which you sent,' literally, 'what horses you sent, the king much approved of the same;' جو تُم ني ڪها هي - سو سب سمجھي هي 'that is all true which you have said,' literally, 'whatever you have said, that is all true.' In like manner, the relative and correlative adverbs usually accompany each other; جڏهن تهن مار - جڏهن پئول تهن خار 'where the treasure is, there is the snake; and where there is a flower there is a thorn.'

b. Sometimes, the remote demonstrative may be used instead of the correlative, both pronominally and adverbially; as follows, جسڪي ڍيڻ اُنڪي ٿيڻ 'he who has the pot has the sword' (he who pays best, is best served); جيسا ڏوگي ويسا پاڻوگي 'as you shall give, so shall you get.' In the following sentence, the demonstrative adverb وهان is used; whereas in a few sentences before, the author uses the correlative تهن for the same expression (vide Selections in Devanágari, page 8, lines 3 and 10); جڏهن ننانوي گهڙي ڏوڏ ڪي هونگي - وهان ايڪ گهڙا پاني ڪا ڪيا 'where there shall be ninety-nine pitchers of milk, how will a single pitcher of water be there discovered?' We may here at the same time see the negative effect of the question, as the speaker means that 'there is no chance of detecting one pitcher full of water among ninety-nine of milk.'

c. The conjunction کہ frequently accompanies the relative, and sometimes occupies its place entirely; as in the phrases, جو اذیت کہ ہم کو پہنچی ہے خاطر مین نہ لویں 'let us not bring into mind the trouble which has come upon us;' so also, دانا وہ ہے کہ کام سی پہلی انجام کار کو سوچی 'he is a wise man, who, before the commencement, thinks of the end of his work;' وہ شخص کہ جس نے خط لکھا 'the man who wrote the letter.' Sometimes, the demonstrative is substituted, in imitation of the Persian; thus, بٹخانہ ہے کہ اُس مین کئی بُت سونی کی ہین 'there is a temple in which there are several idols of gold.'

d. In many instances the relative جو corresponds with our 'who,' 'which,' or 'that,' but the student must be careful not to consider this as a rule, for it is only the exception; as follows, دو روٹی جو بیٹی کھاتی ہین 'the two loaves which my children eat.' Here the word جو is not put first, because there is another word دو already used to define rotī; but suppose the sentence were 'the bread which I ate was very good,' we should have to say in Hindústānī, 'jo rotī main-ne khā, i, so (or wuh) bahut achchhi thī.'

INDEFINITES.

77. The indefinite کوئی ko, i, 'somebody' or 'anybody,' when used alone, refers to a person, whereas کچھ kuchh, 'something,' 'anything,' refers to matter in general. As an adjective, however, کوئی ko, i may agree with any substantive, as, کوئی آدمی 'any or some man,' کوئی چیز 'any or some thing.' کچھ is seldom applied to persons in the nominative, but in the oblique cases; kisî or kisû seems to be equally applicable to persons or things.

a. The indefinites ko,î, and kuchh, as well as the numeral ایک ek, 'one,' frequently supply the place of our articles 'a,' 'an,' or 'a certain;' as, ایک دانشمند کسی شہر مین وارد کُوا 'a sage arrived in a certain city;' کسی وُت ایک شیر بیمار پڑا 'on a certain time a tiger fell sick.' The indefinite article frequently occurs more than once at the beginning of a story, and it is a point of good taste to use ko,î and ek alternately, as in the preceding examples, so as to avoid the clumsy repetition of the same word. The emphatic particle اِی-ی hi or هی hi may be affixed to many of the pronouns; as, اِی-ی آپ 'my (your, etc.) own self;' اِی-ی 'this same;' اِی-ی 'that same.' Also in the oblique cases اِسی isi etc., as in اِسی کو 'to this or that self-same person or thing.' Sometimes اِی-ی hi is added with the same effect.

CONCORD OF THE VERB WITH THE NOMINATIVE.

78. As a general rule, the Hindústání verb agrees with its nominative in number, person, and gender, subject, however, to the following exceptions: 1. To mark respect, a singular nominative has a verb in the plural; 2. If the nominative consist of different irrational objects in the singular number, they may take a singular verb; 3. If the nominatives be of various genders, the verb takes the masculine form, or agrees with that next to it; Lastly. If the verb be transitive, and in any tense formed of the past participle, the nominative assumes the case of the agent, and the verb follows a special rule already illustrated, p. 103, No. 69, etc.

a. V⁹ shall here add a few examples in illustration of the preceding rule, embracing, as it does, the whole subject of verbal concord, which differs in some respects from that of the European languages. Thus, وَه لَكَيْتَا هِي 'he is writing;' وَه نَاجَتِي هِي 'she is dancing;' وَي بولتي هَيْن 'they (males) are talking;' and وَي گاتي هَيْن 'they (females) are singing.' The following examples refer to the exceptions: 1. بادشاه دیکر آبدیده هُوِي 'the king having seen (this), became tearful,' or 'wept;' where the verb هُوِي is plural, expressive of respect to 'the king,' which is in the singular nominative. In like manner we have مُناسِب نِهِن كِه جهان پناه عاجزي كَرِن 'it is not proper that your majesty should submit.' 2. In the following sentences we have two nouns in the singular number, coupled by a conjunction, whilst the verb is in the singular, agreeing with the nearest noun; as, ابيي بيل اور گهوڑا پهچا هي 'the bullock and horse have just now arrived;' جن ذهن اور راج میرا کیون نه سب گیا آج 'my people, my wealth, and my kingdom, why are they not all gone (from me) this day?' 3. Several nouns of different genders occur in the next two sentences, but the verb takes the masculine plural in preference to the feminine; as, اُسکي ما باپ بيائي تينون اُسکي شادي کي فکر مين تبي 'her father, mother, and brother, were all three meditating the accomplishment of her marriage;' اُسکي هاتيبي اوٹ گاري لادي جاتي هين 'his elephant, camel, and carriage are being loaded.'

GOVERNMENT OF VERBS.

79. In this department the Hindústání differs very little from the English. Actives or transitives naturally govern the accusative case, which, as we have shewn, is generally like the nominative, and sometimes like the dative (vide p. 101, No. 67.)

a. Causal verbs, verbs of clothing, giving, etc., may be considered as governing two accusative cases, or the accusative and the dative; as, لڙڪي کي ڪٿا ڏيکارڻ ڄاڻو, 'having given the child food, go home;' اُسکي ڏي ڪپڙا پُهنا, 'put on him these clothes;' and اُسکي ڏي ڏيو, 'give him a rupee.'

b. Some neuter verbs, as آڻا 'to come,' بڻا 'to become,' پئنا 'to suit,' پڙنا 'to fall,' پهچنا 'to arrive,' پئبڻا 'to become,' چاهڻا 'to be desirable,' رهڻا 'to remain,' سوجھڻا 'to appear,' لڳنا 'to unite,' ملڻا 'to meet, to occur,' and هونا 'to be,' govern the dative case, and are frequently used impersonally; as follows, مڃي رحم آڻا ٿي, 'I feel compassion;' مڃي اس بات مين شُبھه هي, 'I have some doubt in this matter;' همکو چاهڻي ڪه وهان جاوین, 'it is desirable that we should go there.' We may here observe that the form چاهڻي from chāhnā, is frequently used impersonally in the sense of 'it is proper,' 'it is fit;' like the Latin 'debet,' 'oportet.' When thus employed, governs the dative of the person, and either the past participle or the aorist of the accompanying verb, as in the preceding example, which might also be expressed هم کو جايا چاهڻي, 'we must go.' Sometimes, it may be used personally; as, تُم کو ڪيا چاهڻي, which may mean 'what is proper for you,' or 'what do you require,' etc. We could in this way say تُمکو وهان جانا چاهڻي, 'you must go there,' or 'to go there behoveth you.'

c. Verbs meaning 'to sell,' or implying 'gain,' have هاتيه 'hand,' connected with them; as تُمني ڪسکي هاتيه بيچا ڪي, 'to whom have you sold it?'; وَ ڪام بهت مَحنت سي هاتيه آيا, 'that business was accomplished with great difficulty;' in like manner, اُسکا ايڪ پُڄول تَحَقّه هاتيه آيا, 'he gained a flower as his prize.' In such expressions the word هاتيه is used in the sense of 'possession.'

d. Verbs which in English require 'with,' 'from,' or 'by' after them, govern the ablative, and those which require 'in,'

'within,' 'into,' the locative case; as in the following sentence: بہتر یہ ہے کہ اُسکی دوستی کی وسیلی سی دشمنوں کی ہاتھ سے چھوٹوں 'this is better, that by means of his friendship I should escape from the hand of my enemies;' in like manner وہ اپنی گھر میں جا کر دل میں سوچنے لگا 'going into his house, he began to think within himself.' Verbs of fear and caution require the ablative case; as, شاید وہ تم سے ڈرتا ہے 'perhaps he is afraid of you;' عاقِل حرامزادوں سے خبردار رہتا ہے 'the sage keeps on his guard against reprobates.'

TENSES OF THE ROOT.

80. We have already given the general signification of each tense, in the various paradigms of the verb, pp. 44 to 59. We shall now, following the same order, briefly notice such peculiarities as some of them present. The reader will recollect that they are three in number—the aorist, future, and imperative, of which the aorist is the most important, on account of its extensive use and application.

a. The Aorist generally corresponds with the present subjunctive of the Latin, or what in English grammar goes under the name of 'present potential'; hence the conjunctions کہ and تا کہ 'that,' اگر and جو 'if,' اگرچہ 'although,' جب تک 'until,' and مبادا 'lest,' generally require the use of this tense after them; as, اگر میں چاہوں کہ جب یک مہینہ آؤں وہ تھہری تو تجھے کیا 'if I desire that he should stay till I come, what is it to thee?' It further implies possibility or obligation; as in the sentences, آج جو کچھ ہو سکی وہی کرو 'whatever it may be possible to do to-day, that do;' ہمیں اُمید ہے کہ یہ کام سرانجام ہووی 'our hope is that this business may be brought to a conclusion;'

جو بادشاہ ایلچی کسی جگہ بھیجی - چاہئی کہ وہ اپنی قوم میں
 'if a king sends an ambassador to any place, it is desirable that he should be the wisest and the most eloquent man of his tribe.' When the power of doing a thing is designed to be expressed, the verb سکتا 'to be able,' is used in all its parts, with the root (or sometimes the inflected infinitive) of the principal verb; as, وہ جا نہیں سکتا ہی or less frequently, وہ جانی نہیں سکتا ہی 'he cannot go.'

b. The aorist is very frequently employed to denote present time when general and unrestricted, hence it is used much in proverbial expressions, with which the language abounds; as, پاپی کا مال اکارتہ جائی 'the wealth of the wicked goes for nought.' It also expresses time future or past, conditionally; as, اگر ہاوی گلی تیری تو بُلبل گِلستان بیولی 'if the nightingale find thy abode, then will the rose-garden be forgotten;' or, 'if the nightingale found thy abode, then would the rose-garden be forgotten.' On the subject of this tense, Muhammad Ibráhím has given several sound remarks in his grammar, already alluded to; p. 59, etc.
 He gives it the name of 'future of the subjunctive or potential mood.'
 We have discarded the term mood altogether, as utterly inapplicable to the Hindústání language, and infinitely more perplexing than useful. Lastly, the aorist is sometimes accompanied by the present auxiliary tense ہوں, etc., page 43, the precise effect of which it is difficult to determine; as, مَیں کُوں ہوں 'I may speak;'
 جسودا کہی ہی 'Jasodá is or may be saying.'

c. The Future presents few peculiarities, save that in respectful language it is often employed for the imperative, and occasionally for the aorist; as, صاحبِ عنایت دُکھی ایک کتاب دینگی 'have the kindness, Sir, to give me a book;' so, likewise, ‘مَينَ سَمجھتا هُون کَہ جو کُچھ وي کھتي هَين سو حسد سي هوگا’ I am thinking that whatever they say may be from envy.’ Our Second Future or Future Perfect is formed by the future of چکنا ‘to finish,’ to the root of the verb; as, مَينَ کيا چکونگا ‘I shall have eaten,’ وَد کيا چکيگا ‘he will have eaten,’ etc.

d. The Imperative is confined in its application, strictly speaking, to the second person, singular and plural. The honorific form addresses itself as to a third person by way of respect; as, چپ رهو ‘be silent;’ اَدھر آو ‘come hither;’ هَکُو مُعاف کيچئي ‘pardon me,’ or ‘may he pardon me.’ It is not considered polite to use the second person singular of the imperative to any one, however low his condition. The adverb مت is applicable to the imperative mood alone, نه is applied to it in common with the other modes, نہين is never used with it; as, مت بُوليو or مت بُوليو ‘don’t forget;’ ايسا نکر ‘don’t do so.’ The imperative mood is sometimes used idiomatically, as in the following expressions: هو تو هو ‘perhaps it is,’ or ‘it may be;’ آو تو آو ‘come, if you mean to come.’

TENSES OF THE PRESENT PARTICIPLE.

81. Of these, the Indefinite claims most attention. The name and signification given to it in most grammars, is ‘Present Indefinite Tense.’ The epithet of present is misapplied, as the tense generally refers to the past.

a. Among the tenses of the present participle, the Indefinite holds the same rank that the aorist does in those derived from the root. Its most ordinary significations are, first, to denote conditional past time, in which case it is generally preceded by اگر or جو ‘if,’ and followed by تو ‘then;’ as in the sentences, اگ وَد آتا تو کُچھ نقصان نہ هوتا ‘if he had come, then there would have been no loss; 'جو مین کہتا تو میری بات نہ سنتا' 'if I had spoken, he would not have regarded what I said,' or 'if I should speak, he would not regard.' So in the 'Bāgh o Bahār,' p. 71 :

 بُرہیا بولی کہ اگر ہمارے دن کچھ بھلی آتی - تو حاتم کو کہیں ہم
 دیکھ پاتی - اور اُسکو پکڑ کر نوافل کی پاس لیجاتی - تو وہ پانچ سو
 اشرفی دیتا - اور ہم آرام سی کھاتی - اس دُکھ دھندھی سی چھوٹ جاتی 'If our days were at all lucky, then we should have somewhere found Hátim, and having seized him, we should have carried him to Nauful, then he would have given five hundred ashrafis,' etc. The conjunction is frequently omitted in the former or latter part of the sentence, and sometimes in both; as, اگر مین جاتا اُسی خوب مارتا or مین جاتا تو اُسی خوب مارتا
 'had I gone, I should have beaten him soundly;' in like manner, مین ہوتا گھوڑا چھوٹنی نہ پاتا 'had I been present, the horse should not have been allowed to escape.'

b. In the second place, the indefinite is employed to denote N continuative past time, or to express an act or event that was habitual; as the reader may observe in the following passage:
 جب جُواری جیتتا تب ایسا غافل ہو جاتا کہ کوئی اُسکی کپڑی
 اُتار لیتا تو یہی اُسی نہ معلوم ہوتا 'When the gamester used to win (jittá) he used to become (ho-játá) so careless, that any one might take off (utár-letá) his clothes; then even it would not be (na hotá) known to him.' In like manner, 'Bāgh o Bahār,' p. 9 :
 ساری رات دروازی گھروں کی بند نہ ہوتی - اور دُکانیں بازار کی
 کُلی رہتیں - راہی مُسافر جنگل میدان مین سونا اُچھالتی چلی جاتی 'All night the doors of the houses used not to be fastened, and the shops of the market used to remain open; the travellers used to go along,' etc.

c. The indefinite is occasionally used for the present by omitting the auxiliary; as, وَهُ كَيَا كَرَتَا 'what is he doing?' The student must be careful, however, not to fancy that this tense corresponds with our present indefinite, as some of our grammars inculcate. Its use as a present tense is the exception, not the rule.

d. The Present Tense is used both to express the precise point of time when the action takes place, and also to denote a continuous or habitual state of action; hence it corresponds with both our forms of the present tense; as, وَهُ گهر جاتا هِي 'he is (now) going home;' but in the sentence وَهُ رات کو هميشه گهر جاتا هِي it must be translated, 'he always goes home at night.' The present is frequently used for the future, when it is meant that the action will be done quickly; as, مَينَ جلدَ کھانا لاتا هُون 'I am bringing (shall bring) the dinner quickly.'

e. In vivid descriptions, when the narrator represents a past occurrence in the same manner as he or the person of whom he speaks originally saw it, and as if it were still apparent to the view, the present is frequently used; as in the following passage: جب اُس درخت کي پاس پہنچا دیکھا کہ ہر ایک ڈالی مین اُسکي سیکڑون سر آدھيون کي لٹکتی هين - اور اُسکي نیچي ايک تالاب نہایت خوش قطعہ ملتب هِي - اور اُسي کا پاني جنگل کي طرف چلا جاتا هِي 'When he arrived at the tree, he saw that on every branch of it are hanging hundreds of human heads; and under it is a beautiful tank full of water, and the stream of it is flowing towards the desert.' In such instances the past tense may be used, but it is less animated and impressive; as وَهُ اُس درخت کي نزدیک گيا تو کيا دیکھتا هِي کہ اُسکي تلي ايک نيل سنگ مرمر کي دھري هِي 'he went near the tree, and what does he see but a marble slab was placed at the bottom of it.'

f. The Imperfect denotes a past action in progress, and corresponds with our own compound tense formed in a similar manner; as, وَهُ لَكِهْتَا تَهَا 'he was writing.' In most of our English grammars, the Indefinite Past Tense, such as 'he wrote,' 'he spoke,' is very improperly called the Imperfect. It is needless to state that these expressions in Hindústání must be rendered by اُسْنِي لَكِهَا and اُسْنِي كَهَا that is, the simple past, of which we shall say more immediately.

g. The tense called the Present Dubious (page 51) is generally employed to denote a future action of uncertain occurrence; as, مَيِن مَارَتَا هَوُون or هَوُونَكَا '(perhaps) I may beat,' or 'be beating;' so in 'Bágh o Bahár, p. 38 : وَهُ اَيْنِي جِي مَيِن كِيَا كِهْتَا هَوَا 'What will he (or may he) saying in his own mind?'

TENSES OF THE PAST PARTICIPLE.

82. The main peculiarity in the use of these is, that when the verb is transitive, the nominative must be put in the case of the agent, as explained p. 103, etc.

The Past Tense corresponds with what is improperly called the imperfect in most English grammars; as, وَهُ چَلَا گِيَا 'he went away;' تُم نِي لَكِهَا 'you wrote;' which expressions, though indefinite as to time, convey the idea of a complete or perfect action; hence the absurdity of calling it the imperfect tense. In addition to its common acceptation, it is sometimes used with a present, and sometimes with a future meaning; as in the following : حَو وَهُ مِلِي تَو هَمَارِي جَان رِهِي نِهِيَن تَو گَمِي 'if she is found, then my life remains; if not, it is gone;' جَو بُوِيَا سَو كَاتَا 'what he sows, that he reaps.' We have already stated that the present is sometimes used for the future to denote speed; the past is employed for the same purpose. Thus a man says to his servant, بَانِي لَو

'bring water,' and the answer will probably be لایا خُداوُند 'I have brought it, Sir,' meaning, 'I will bring it immediately.' It is sometimes applied in an idiomatical manner, ; as, خُوا تو خُوا 'if it be so, why be it so.'

b. The verb 'to be' has, in Hindústání, two tenses expressive of the past, viz. تہا 'was,' and ہوا 'was' (or became'), which may often be translated by the same word in English. In many cases these appear to be synonymous in their application; the student, however, must pay particular attention to the following rule. تہا is used in reference to simple existence at a distant time or particular place, while ہوا is applied to time or circumstances less remote, in the sense of 'became;' as follows: اُس مُلک میں ایک پادشاہ تہا 'there was a king in that country;' وہ حیران ہوا 'he was (became) confounded.' In short, تہا denotes permanent existence, and ہوا that which was, or became existing, through circumstances generally stated in, or easily inferred from the context.

c. The Perfect answers to the Perfect tense in English, being used to denote an action newly past and finished; as follows, میں نے پھل کھا لیا ہے 'my brother has arrived;' 'I have eaten the fruit.' Sometimes it is used with adverbs of time, in a manner that cannot literally be rendered in English; as میں کل وہاں گیا ہوں 'I have gone there yesterday,' for 'I went there yesterday.' In this case, the usage of the French 'je suis allé,' would have come nearer the Hindústání.

d. The Pluperfect in English will generally be expressed by the Pluperfect in Hindústání, representing a thing not only as past, but as prior to some other event; as in the sentence, اُسکی پہنچنے کی آگے میں نے خط لکھا تھا 'I had written the letter previous to his arrival.' But the converse of this rule does not hold, the pluperfect being frequently used in Hindústání where in English we employ the simple past; thus in Story 16, a learned Káyath orders his slave to get up during the night, and see if it rains. The slave, feeling himself very comfortable where he is, concludes, without getting up, that it does rain; and gives the following ingenious process of reasoning: بِلَيَّ آي تَجِي - مَينَ نِي اُسكو تَتولا تَيا - بَهِيگِي تَبي the cat came in, I put my hand upon her, she was wet' (ergo, it rains); but the literal meaning is, 'the cat had come in, I had put my hand upon her, she had got wet.' The general rule is, that when one definite past even precedes another past event in point of time, the former is expressed in the pluperfect. It may happen that the latter of the two events is not expressed, but merely passing in the speaker's mind; as in the above example, where the slave might have added, as he no doubt meant, 'thence, I have ascertained that it is raining,' which would have completed the chain of reasoning.

e. The tense called the Past Dubious (p. 51), formed of the past participle and the aorist or future of هونا is used to express remote probability past or future; as in the following examples: مَينَ نَه جَانَتَا هُون كِه وَد كِهَان گِيا هُوگا 'I know not where he may (or will) have gone;' پَنَتَه مَينَ تُم نِي بُهت كَشَت پايا هُوگا 'on the way, you must have met with much difficulty.' The Past Conditional (p. 51.) is of very rare occurrence, and is understood to express the event in a more remote manner than the Indefinite (p. 45); thus, اِگر مَينَ نِي پَنجِزَا كَبولا هوتا تو وَد اُتر جاتا 'if I had opened the cage, then it would have flown.' A kind of expression like the Paulo-post-futurum, is expressed by چاهُنا 'to desire,' with the past participle of another verb; as, وَد مَرَا چاهُنا هَي 'he is about to die,' 'is dying,' or 'will soon die.' There are also other ways of expressing the same idea: وَه مَرَيِ كا هَي or وَد مَرَيِ والا هَي or وَد مَرَيِ پَر هَي.

INFINITIVE.

83. The infinitive is used as a substantive to denote the state or action of the verb; it is frequently used for the imperative, and occasionally it is employed adjectively in connection with another substantive.

a. All Infinitives used as substantives or adjectives are subject to inflection like nouns of the third class; thus, اُسکا جانا مُناسب هِي 'his departure is proper;' اِنتقام ليني کا يِهي وقت هِي 'this is the very time for taking revenge;' وَد گهر دِيکھَنِي کو آيا or وَد گهر دِيکھَنِي کي واسطي آيا 'he has come to see the house.' The infinitive is often used as an imperative, and as such it may even have the negative mat before it; as, هرگز قسم نڪيانا 'swear not at all;' وَهان مت جانا 'don't go there,' or 'you must not go there.' Sometimes it is used with the verb هونا, instead of the regular tenses of the verb which it represents; as follows, کس مُلڪ سي آنا هُوا 'from what country are you come?' instead of کس مُلڪ سي آئي هُو. It is also used with the verb 'to be,' like the Latin gerund, to denote necessity or obligation; as, تُم کو وَهان جانا هُوگا 'you must go there;' so, likewise, آخِر اِيک روز مَرنا هِي - اُور سب کُچھ چھوڑ جانا هِي 'one must die (moriendum est) some day at last, and must give up every thing.'

b. Sometimes the infinitive, together with its complement (that is, the noun which it governs, along with its circumstances), may form the subject or predicate of a proposition; as follows, پادشاهون کي حُضور مين بي سبب دانٹ کھولني ادبسي باهرهين 'to laugh (lit. to display the teeth) in the presence of kings is unmannerly.' In the following sentence from the 'Khiraḍ Afroz,' both the subject and the predicate are of this description: ٻُڙگون کو کَمِينوئِي صُحبت مين رکھنا خراب کَرنا هِي 'to keep children in the society of the vile, is to effect their ruin.' When an infinitive thus used has a feminine noun for its complement, it generally agrees adjectively with the substantive (like the Latin participle in dus) by changing نا into نِي or نِينَ; thus, 'مَينَ نِي تُمبَارِي زَبَان بُولَنِي نِهين سِيکِي' 'I have not learned to speak your language;' 'نَشْتَر پَر اُنْگَلِي رِکَنِي مُشْکَل دِي' 'it is hard to put one's finger on a lancet.' So, in the 'Bāgh o Bāhār,' p. 32: 'اي صَاحِب ! اگَر تُم کو ايسِي هِي نا آشنائي کَرَنِي تِي - تو پَهلي دُوستِي اِنِي گَرَمِي سِي کَرَنِي کيا ضرور تِي ?' 'O Sir, if it was your attention thus to act the stranger, then where was the necessity of previously tendering your friendship with such ardour?' Here the infinitive karni agrees with nā-āshnā'i and dostī in the feminine gender; so, p. 35, 'تکليف مَهْمَان کو دِينِي خُوب نِهين' 'to give trouble to one's guest is not proper.' Sometimes (though rarely) the infinitive does not agree with the feminine noun which it governs; as may be seen in the following sentence: 'دُنْيَا کي واسطِي بَهْت مِخْنَت کَرْنَا فِي آلَوَاقِعِ زِيَادَه دَوڑْنَا هِي ناچِر پَر' 'to toil much for this world is in fact much-ado about nothing.' If the infinitive, with the feminine noun which it governs, be not the subject or predicate of a sentence, this concord does not hold between the infinitive and the word which it governs; as 'ايک بُوڑھا اور اُسکي بُوڑھيا لکڑيان توڑني کي واسطِي آئي - اور لکڑيان لگي' 'an old man and his wife came to cut wood (sticks), and began to gather sticks.' Here the infinitives tornā and chunnā do not agree with lakriyān, because they are neither subject nor predicate to a sentence. We have been rather diffuse in explaining this peculiarity of the infinitive, because the rule respecting it, as given in most grammars, is, to say the least of it, unsound. It runs thus: "The termination نِي is used with certain verbs or with post-positions;

نِي (ni), نِين (nin), or نِيَان (niyān), when a feminine noun singular or plural is the 'object of the verb; and نَا in all other cases.'" We have just shewn from the best authority that ne is used when there is neither 'a certain verb' nor 'post-position' in the case, and that nī is not necessarily used at all times when a 'feminine noun is the object of the verb.'

c. The inflected infinitive with ká (ke or kī) is also used adjectively in a sense somewhat like the Latin participles in iturus; as, اب مَينَ عِجَم نِهين جاني کا 'this cannot be;' 'now I do not mean to go to Persia' (non sum iturus); so, مَينَ نِهين ماتي کا 'I am not the man to believe, or submit.' Lastly, the inflected infinitive is used with لَگَنا when it means 'to begin;' with دينا 'to grant leave;' and with پانا 'to get leave;' as, وُد کِهني لگا 'he began to say;' 'هم کو جاني دو' 'allow us to go;' 'وي آي پاتي هين' 'they are allowed to come.' The verb جانا 'to go,' may also govern the inflected infinitive of another verb (ko being understood); as, وي کِهيني گئي 'they went to play.' The verb سکتا 'to be able,' generally governs the root of another verb, but it is often used with the inflected infinitive, particularly when accompanied by a negative particle; as, مَينَ چل سکوَنگا 'I shall be able to move;' 'د چلني نه سکتا تپا' 'he was not able to move;' 'مَينَ بولني نِهين سکتا' 'I cannot say.' Lastly, the verb honá, denoting obligation, may govern the inflected infinitive; as, 'تَمکو لَکَني هوگا' 'you must write.' 'تَمکو جاني هوگا' 'you must go.'

PARTICIPLES.

84. The present and past participles, when used participially and not forming a tense, generally add هُوا (p. 46), and agree, like adjectives, with the noun which they qualify. In many instances they are used adverbially in the masculine inflection, or, more strictly speaking, they are verbal nouns in an oblique case.

a. The following examples will illustrate what we have just stated regarding the participles when accompanied by hú,á; هَي كَوِي بَرَج مِين جَو چَلْتِي هُوِي گوپال كَو رَكِي 'is there any one in Braj who will stop the departing Gopál?' So likewise, هَوِي هُوِي شِير كِي هَدِيَار 'the bones of a dead tiger;' and, اُسْنِي اِيك نَنَارِي كَو كِسِي دَرخْت مِين لَتَا هُوَا دِيكَا 'he saw a kettledrum suspended in a tree.' Sometimes the past participle is used like a mere adjective; as, اِيك پَهولا پَهلا باغ تَهَا 'there was a flowery and fruitful garden' (not 'flowered and fructified'); but the words phúlá and phalá here may be real adjectives (not participles) derived from phúl, 'a flower,' and phal, 'fruit,' by adding á, which is agreeable to analogy. In expressions like the following, they are used adverbially; as, شام هَوِي سَبَح هَوِي 'when it was morning;' جَنَكِي دِيكِي مِيرِي رَهْتِي 'when it was evening;' بِنَا سَمَجِي 'while I remain;' دِيكِي دِيكِي 'at the sight of whom;' بِنَا سَمَجِي 'without understanding;' دِيكِي دِيكِي 'at the time of giving.' The present participle is doubled, to express the continuation or frequency of the act; as, هَمَارَا كَام هَوِي هَوِي نَه هُوَا 'our work being and being, was not,' i.e. 'continuing to be done, was not completed.'

b. From the present participle is formed the compound verb called statistical (p. 65), by using the masculine inflection of the participle together with some verb of motion; as, وَه گَاتِي آتِي كِي 'she comes singing.' The present participle in this case is employed precisely like the ablative of the Latin gerund. Dr. Gilchrist has suggested that kí hálát men should be considered to be understood: thus, wuh gáté kí hálát men átí haí, 'she comes in the state or condition of (a person) singing;' but a moment's consideration will shew that this theory is more ingenious than sound. For instance, 'وَد گاتي (کي حالت مين) آتا هي' he comes (in the state of) one singing,' is all very well, but, on the other hand, when the nominative is feminine, as, 'وَد گاتي (کي حالت مين) آتي هي' she comes (in the state of) one singing,' the expression is absurd; because she is a female, and the one singing is a male; and we leave the authors of the theory to account for the curious fact of her coming in the state of (a male) singing, at that particular juncture. We believe that in these instances the present participle is a verbal noun in the locative case, similar to those Sanskrit verbals in ti, etc. (corresponding to the tio of the Latin), which denote the abstract action or condition of the verb. In fact we could add many instances where the participle is clearly used like a mere substantive, as 'سوتي سي' 'from sleep,' evidently the same as 'سوئي سي'.

c. From the past participle are formed the compound verbs called frequentative and desiderative, by adding karná and cháhna respectively to the simple masculine form of the participle. The only peculiarity about these is, that the verbs 'مرنا' 'to die,' and 'جانا' 'to go,' employ the regular forms of the participle mará and jáyá, in preference to the usual forms mú,a and gayá; as, wuh mará cháhna hai, 'he is about to die,' or 'will die,' or 'wishes to die;' so, wuh jáyá kartá thá, 'he was in the habit of going.' The past participle with hú,a in the inflected state is sometimes used like the conjunctive participle, or, indeed, it may be a compound form of the latter, for ought we can say; thus, 'ایک جوگی دھونی لگانی ہوئی بیتھا ہی' a Jogí having applied the smoke (by way of penance) is seated; so likewise, 'وي رنگ برنگ کي پوشاکين پھني ہوئی ناچتي تھين' they having put on various coloured garments, were dancing.' Sometimes the past participle of a neuter verb is used adjectively (that as, agreeing with the nominative), along with another verb; as, چلا جانا; thus, وي چلي جاتي ڪمين 'they go along;' so, اڪٽ لوڙي پڙي پڙي ٿئي 'a fox was roaming about.'

d. The conjunctive participle, by connecting the similar numbers of a sentence, saves the use of verbs and conjunctions; it commonly refers to the agent, sometimes to the object of the verb; as, آڃ وهان جاکر هماري ڪتاب ليکڻ پڙ آو 'having gone there to-day, and having taken my book, return;' and again, اس ڪام مين جلدي ڪر ڪي مڃي ٻي پشيماني هون ڪي 'this regret has come upon me (through) making haste in this business.' The student will recollect that this participle has several forms, the first of them the same as the root; the second, the same as the masculine inflection of the past participle, or the second and third persons singular of the aorist; but the context generally suffices to prevent any ambiguity.

e. The masculine inflection of the present participle with the addition of the particle هي hi, forms what may be called the adverbial participle. Its signification is very nearly the same as that of the conjunctive participle above described; the adverbial form conveying perhaps the idea of more speed or precision; as, ٻي بات سُن ٿي هي '(immediately) on hearing this statement. This participle may be applied in three ways, all of them tending to prove what we have stated above, that it is merely a verbal noun. Thus we may say, ٻي بات سُن ٿي هي where yih bát is the first form of the accusative; we may also say, اس بات کو سُن ٿي هي where is bát-ko is the second form of the accusative; lastly, we may say, اس بات ڪي سُن ٿي هي 'on the hearing of this statement.' Here, we see sunte in the first two expressions acting the part of a transitive verb, and in the last that of a substantive.

85. We have little more now to add on the syntax of the Hindústání language, which, we believe, we have discussed more fully, and we would fain hope, more intelligibly, than has yet been done. The following few remarks may be still added, as belonging to no particular department of the subject.

a. Sometimes a verb plural is used without a nominative case, some such word as 'they' or 'people' being understood; as in the following examples: يُون كَهْتِي كَيْن 'thus they say;' and ايك تلواري سيكترون كو مارتِي كَيْن 'men kill thousands with one sword.' In negative sentences, the verb 'to be' is generally understood; as, ظلم تيري شان كي لائق بهين 'oppression (is) not becoming your dignity.' The particle كه ki is frequently used after verbs of speaking, asking, etc., in the sense of 'thus,' 'as follows,' etc.; as, اس ني کہا كه مَين ني نه کیا 'he said he had not done it;' lit. 'he said thus, I have not done it.' This is very like the use of the particle οτι as it frequently occurs in the Greek text of the New Testament. In a sentence consisting of two or more clauses, it is not necessary to repeat the auxiliary verb in each; as بیماری قید بدن کی هي - اور غم قید روح کی 'sickness is the thralldom of the body, and sorrow that of the spirit.'

b. We may here state in conclusion, that throughout this long section on Syntax, it has been our principal aim to illustrate those peculiarities in which the Hindústání language differs from our own. Such rules and principles as completely accord with those of the languages supposed to be familiar to the reader, we have either passed over unnoticed, or handled very briefly. It may further be stated that there remains a difficult department of the language which must be overcome by practice, viz., the use of idiomatical expressions. These do not constitute the subject of grammar, and a knowledge of them is to be acquired by reading the best authors, and by free intercourse with the natives of the country.

SECTION VI.

THE NÁGARÍ OR DEVANÁGARÍ ALPHABET.

86. This is the character generally used by the Hindús. It is read and written from left to right, like our own. The alphabet, as used for the Hindústání, consists of eleven vowel sounds, and thirty-three consonants, all arranged as follows:—

Vowels.

अ	आ	इ	ई	उ	ऊ	ऋ	ए	ऐ	ओ	औ
ä	á	í	î	ũ	ú	rĩ	é	ai	ó	au

Consonants.

क	ख	ग	घ	ङ	च	छ	ज	झ	ञ	ट
k	kh	g	gh	ñ	ch	chh	j	jh	n	t
ठ	ड	ढ	ण	त	थ	द	ध	न	प	फ
th	d	dh	n̄	t	th	d	dh	n	p	ph
ब	भ	म	य	र	ल	व	श	ष	स	ह
b	bh	m	y	r	l	w, v	sh	sh	s	h

a. To the above letters may be added the symbol ' , called anuswāra, which represents the nasal ñ (page 6), and the visarga : , which corresponds with the final weak s (p. 6) of the Persian character. We would at the same time draw the student's attention to two compound characters, of which the elements are so disguised as to have the semblance of single letters; viz. क्ष ksh, compounded of क and ष, sounded like our x in fluxion, or et in faction: and ज्ञ jñ, sounded like our gn in bagnio, or the French gn in ligne, champagne, etc. The mark | is used in poetry to indicate the first member of a sloka or couplet; and at the end of a sloka it is generally doubled || .

In prose the same marks serve to denote stops. In many books lately published in India, in the Devanāgarī character, the English stops have been very properly and successfully introduced.

b. In naming the consonants, the short vowel ă (the fatha of the Persi-Arabic alphabet, p. 8) is inherent in each; thus kă, khă, gă, etc.: and in reading, this vowel is to be supplied after every letter (except the final letter of a word), provided it be not accompanied by any other symbol; thus, कनक kăṇăk, 'gold,' नगर nagar, 'a city.' If a word terminates with a compound consonant, the short ă may be frequently supplied at the end, as in पुत्र putra, 'a son.' Whenever a consonant in the middle of a word is not to be uttered with the short ă, the consonant is marked underneath with the symbol (゚) called virāma or 'rest' (the same as the jazm of the Persi-Arabic, p. 10), as बोल्ना bolnā 'to speak;' or the ln may be combined into one compound character, as ल्न; but in works circulated among the natives this nicety is not attended to.

c. The first of the vowels, अ ă, is never written except it begin a word or syllable. With regard to the remaining vowels, they have each two forms: that given above, which may be called their primary form, is used only when they begin a word or syllable; but when they follow a consonant, they assume a totally different shape, which may be called secondary forms; thus, ऀ ă, ि i, ि î, उ u, उ û, र ri, ॆ e, ॆ ai, ॆ o, ॆ au, as may be seen in the following exemplification of them with the letter ग ga: thus, ga, gă, gi, gî, gu, gû, gri, ge, gai, go, gau.

ग, गा, गि, गो, गु, गू, गृ, गे, गै, गो, गौ.

And the same rule applies to the rest of the consonants.

d. It will be seen that the secondary form of इ, viz, ि is written before its consonant ग, though sounded after it; and the student will do well to bear in mind this apparent anomaly. The ण and ॠ take their place after the consonant; the ञ and ॡ are fixed to the letter beneath; the ण and ॠ above; and the ण and ॠ are merely the ण surmounted by the ण and ॠ. The vowels ञ and ॡ in combination with the letter र r, are written रु ru, and रु or रु ru; and the vowel ॡ joined to ह h, is written ह hri.

87. The strict rule in Devanāgarī writing is, that when two or more consonants come together, without the intervention of a vowel, such consonants unite into one compound group; thus, in the word मत्स्य matsya, 'a fish,' the त स and य are blended as it were into one character. For the formation of the compound letters no general rule holds, except that the last of the group remains entire, and the rest are more or less contracted by omitting the perpendicular stroke, and sometimes by changing their primitive form.

a. The letter र, being of frequent occurrence in compounds, is subject to two special rules of its own; 1st. It is written over a letter, or group of letters, in the form of a crescent (ॠ) when it is to be sounded first, as in the words तर्क tarka, 'reasoning,' and पार्श्व pārshva, 'a side'; 2nd. When the र follows another letter, or group of letters, it is represented by an oblique stroke (ॡ) underneath, as in सूत्र sūtra, 'rule,' and चन्द्र chandra, 'the moon.'

b. In books recently printed at Calcutta, such as the Prem Sāgar, the Baitāl Pachisi, the Adventures of Hātīm Tūi, etc., all in the Devanāgarī character, very few compound letters occur; and as a general rule they are very little used in any of the spoken languages of India, being chiefly confined to manuscripts and printed works in the Sanskrit language. The following, however, occur in our Selections, and a perusal of these will suggest the method by which others may be formed. Compounds of which the letter र forms the first or last element, are purposely omitted, that letter, as we have just seen, having special rules applicable to itself.

क्	क्त	क्य	ग्र	ग्व	च्छ	ज्ज	त्त	त्थ
kk	kt	ky	gn	gb	chchh	jj	tt	tth
न	न्म	त्य	त्व	द्	द्ध	द्म	द्य	द्व	न्त
tn	tm	ty	tw	dd	ddh	dm	dy	dvw	nt
न्थ	न्ध	न्ध	न्न	न्म	न्य	न्ह	प्त	प्न	प्य
nth	nd	ndh	nn	nm	ny	nh	pt	pn	py
प्स	ब्द	भ्य	ल्ल	ष्ट	ष्ठ	ष्ण	स्त	स्य	स्न
ps	bd	bhy	ll	shṭ	shṭh	shn	st	sth	sn स्म	स्य	स्स	ह्म	ह्य
			sm	sy	ss	hm	hy

c. Compounds of three letters are very rare, and when they do occur, it will be found that they generally consist of one of the semi vowels य र ल or व combined with a compound of two letters, thus: क्त ktw, न्त ntr, प्त pty, स्य sty. As for compounds of four letters, they are merely matters of curiosity, as लस्म lpsm, त्स्य tsny.

88. The best dictionaries of the Hindústání language are printed in the Persian character; hence it will be necessary for the student to know exactly how he may convert the Devanāgarī letters into the former. This he will be able to do efficiently by a reference to the following tables:—

I. Initial Vowels.

अ	आ	इ	ई	उ	ऊ	ऋ	ए	ऐ	ओ	औ
ا	آ	اِ	اِي	اُ	اُو	ر	اَ	اِی	او	اَو

II. Consonants.

ک	کھ	گ	گھ	ن	چ	چھ	ج	جھ	ن	ت
ठ	ड	ढ	ण	त	थ	द	ध	न	प	फ
ٲ	ड	ढ	ن	ت	تھ	د	دھ	ن	پ	پھ
ब	भ	म	य	र	ल	व	श	ष	स	ह
ب	بھ	م	ی	ر	ل	و	ش	ش or کھ	س	د

III. Secondary Vowels.

बद	बाद	बिद	बीद	बुद	बूद
بد	باد	بد	بيد	بد	بود
वद	वेद	वैद	वोद	वौद	वः
वद	बिद	बिद	बुद	बुद	बः

a. In the preceding table it will be observed that the ten aspirated letters of the Devanāgarī alphabet are uniformly represented by the corresponding unaspirated letter, together with the round or butterfly form of the letter ह, ह h; thus, घर ghar, 'a house,' گھر; धर dhar, 'a place,' دھر. The real h ह of the Devanāgarī is represented in the middle of the word by ह; as, कहा 'he said,' کھا: if, however, the letter preceding the ह be र, र, or व, then the form ह must be used, and the preceding letter marked with the appropriate vowel; as, दहान dahān, 'the mouth,' دهان. The cerebral letters ट and ड are represented by ت and ड, or ت and د. Sometimes the ड and ढ have the sound of a cerebral r and rh respectively; in which case they are generally marked with a dot beneath, thus ड़ and ढ़, and with ڑ or ر in the Persian character; as, बड़ा barā, 'great,' بڑا. The various nasals of the Devanāgarī are represented by the Persian ن, which will be found sufficient for all useful purposes.

b. The letter च is sometimes represented by چ : the letter झ generally by ش, sometimes by س; and the letter ष is more frequently ک than ش. The compound च is generally represented by چ or ک, seldom by کش, its proper sound. The compound झ is represented by گي; as, आज्ञा ágyá (ájná), آگيا; its real sound, as already stated, is that of gn in the French words champagne, ligne, etc.

89. It appears, then, that the Devanágari alphabet may be represented with tolerable exactness in the Persian character; but the converse does not hold, as the Persi-Arabic alphabet has fourteen letters which have no exact counterpart in the Devanágari. The plan adopted in this case is to represent the letters in question with such Nágari letters as approximate them in sound, which in some printed books are distinguished with a dot underneath; thus,

ط	ض	ص	ژ	ز	د	خ	ح	ث
ت.	ज.	स.	ज.	ज.	ज.	ख.	ह.	स.
		ق	ف	غ	ع	ظ

a. In a few printed books, attempts have been made to invent distinct letters for the various forms of the Persian and Arabic z, which, it will be observed, are all represented by ज; but in reality the subject is not worth the labour. In the first place, the Hindús, who alone use the Devanágari character, are sparing in the use of Persian or Arabic words, to one or other of which the various forms of the letter z belong; and, secondly, such words as they have in the course of centuries adopted have become naturalized, or, if the critic will have it, corrupted, so as to suit the elements of the Nágari:

thus, حَاضِرِي is written and sounded हाजिरी hājirī. In a new edition, in the Devanāgarī character, of the 'Adventures of Hātīm Ṭā'ī,' which we have lately received from India, almost all dots and double letters are discarded, as a useless incumbrance.

b. The letter ع is generally represented in Nāgarī by employing the vowel with which it is connected, in the initial form, with a dot under it; as, بَعْد ba'd; عِلْم 'ilm; عُمْر 'umr. This method is sufficient for practical use; but it is by no means satisfactory, as may be seen in the monosyllable بَعْد, which in Persian and Arabic is sounded ba'd (the a uttered from the bottom of the throat); but, according to the rules of the Devanāgarī alphabet, it makes bā'ād, unless we use the virāma (◌̣) under the ع, as بَعْد, which would amount to something like an absurdity.

c. When, in a word, two vowels follow each other, the rule is, to write the second vowel in the initial form; for though not at the beginning of a word, it is the beginning of a syllable; thus, हूआ hū'ā; होओ ho'o. This is precisely the same in principle as the use of the mark hamza (p. 17) in the Persi-Arabic alphabet.

d. The best mode of learning the Devanāgarī character is to write out several times the whole of the single letters in Plate II. The various elements of each letter will be found in Plate I. fronting the title page; the small dot accompanying each shews where the pen starts from in their formation. When the student has made himself tolerably familiar with the letters, he may commence with the first story, which is the same as the third story of the Extracts in the Persian character. In like manner he will find that the Devanāgarī Stories, from 2 to 7 inclusive, are old acquaintances. Stories 8, 9, and 10 also occur in the other Extracts, but some of the words differ, viz., those of Persian or Arabic origin are displaced in the Devanāgarī for words purely Indian and Sanskrit. The rest of the Extracts in this character are taken from the scarce and valuable 'Hindústání and Hindí Selections,' edited by Táríní Charan Mitr, head Munshi in the College of Fort William, Calcutta, 1827, in two vols. 4to. In their style and grammatical construction they offer no peculiarity differing from those of our Hindústání Extracts in the Persian character.

OF MANUSCRIPTS.

90. We briefly alluded, at page 21, to the three most prevalent handwritings in use among the Arabs, Persians, and Musalmáns of India. Of these, the Naskhí, being like the type used in this country, requires no explanation; and the Shikasta, from its extreme irregularity, scarcely admits of any. We shall therefore confine ourselves at present to the description of the Ta'lik, of which we have given fourteen plates of engraved specimens at the end of this work.

a. Plate I. Division 1st presents all the simple elements of this character, the small cross mark shewing the commencement of each. The 2nd elementary form, here marked ب, with one dot subscribed, so as to be equivalent to be, may, by a mere change of its dots, become پ ت ث (p, t, s). The third form, now a ج j, becomes in the same manner چ خ ح (ch, kh, h). The 4th makes two letters, د ذ. The 5th, ز ر and ژ. The 6th is represented as consisting of two forms; one an indented, the other a protracted line, may in either shape form the sin and shin (s and sh), as the only distinction between them is that the sin (s) wants, and the shin (sh) has, three dots superscribed, whether short or protracted. The 7th form, ص and ض. The 8th, ط and ظ (t, z). The 9th, ع and غ. The next letters are ف ق ك ل م ن و and د. Then follow the initial, medial, and final forms of the ه or he linked together

Lastly, the ي ' لا (lá, hamza, and ye), the latter under two varieties of form, the last of which is now conventionally used by the natives to denote the yáe majhúl (p. 13).

b. Division 2nd exhibits the second elementary form (viz. that of ب ت ث), and likewise that of ن and ي, as they appear initially, when combined with each of the others following them. Division 3rd shews the ج (i.e. ج ح or خ), prefixed in the same manner to each of the others. Division 4th (Pl. II.), the ش س. Division 5th, the ص. Division 6th, the ط. Division 7th (Pl. III.), the ع. Division 8th, ف and ق. Division 9th, the ك, and by leaving off the top part we shall in most instances have the initial ل. Division 10th (Pl. IV.), the م. Division 11th, the ه combined initially with the rest of the elementary forms. The tail of the he is given only in há, hd, hk, hl, and hlá, but omitted in all the rest, according to the practice of Oriental writers. Hence the initial form of this letter is often too apt to be mistaken for the mím. The 12th Division contains the combination of the characters as arranged in alphabetical notation, noticed in p. 20, forming the fanciful words, 'Abjad, hawaz, hutth, kaliman, sa'fas, karashat, sakhas, zazagh,' and the last line may be read thus, indicating the name of the chirographer: Al'abd ul muznib, al fakir 'ubaid ulláhi husaini shir'in rakam ghaffara zunúbaku.

c. Plates V. to XIV. inclusive, consist of a series of words in alphabetical order containing combinations of three or more letters. The student should endeavour to transcribe these into the Roman character, and after some time retranscribe them, as an exercise, into their original state. Thus, the first line of Plate V. forms the combinations bkht, bhjt, bhsht, pnj, blkh, and blind, and so on with regard to the rest. Coming now to complete words, we may premise, as a general remark, that when these contain of the letters ي ن ث ت پ ب in the middle of a combination, it is usual to give the middle one a bold dash upwards, terminating in a sharp point vertically, like the n in تنبو tnbw (Plate V. line 8), or like the y in سيب syb (Plate VII. line 1).

d. Concluding remarks.—In manuscripts the short vowels and other marks seldom make their appearance; and even the diacritical dots are often either altogether omitted or irregularly placed. It may be useful to observe, then, that when from the ambiguous position of a dot, it may apply to more letters than one, it should of course be assigned rather to the letter, which is not complete without a point, than to one which may dispense with it. Thus the third combination Plate I. No. 2, should be read bh, and the eighth ns, though the dot be over the last letter as if it intended to be a ض. But in many cases the sense alone can determine the point. Thus the last word of No. 2 may be either be or pe; and the dot over the ninth word of No. 3 is so equivocally placed between that and the word above it, that it may be read either حفص or حف, according as the dot is conceived to belong to one or the other, above or below. The grand key, however, to the reading of manuscripts, is to know the language; at the same time many useful hints may be gleaned from Ouseley's 'Persian Miscellanies,' 4to. London, 1795; Stewart's 'Persian Letters,' 4to. London, 1825; and 'Essai de Calligraphie Orientale,' in the Appendix to Herbin's 'Développments des Principes de la Langue Arabe,' 4to. Paris, 1803. See also a work entitled 'Oriental Penmanship; an Essay for facilitating the Reading and Writing of the Ta'lik Character,' by the author of this Grammar. London: Wm. H. Allen & Co. 1849.

MUHAMMADAN CALENDAR.

91. The Musalmáns reckon by lunar time, their æra called the Hijra, commencing from the day on which Muhammad departed, or rather retreated, from Mecca to Medina; which, according to the best accounts, took place on Friday, the 16th of July (18th, new style), A.D. 622. Their year consists of 12 lunations, amounting to 354 days and 9 hours, very nearly; and hence their New-year's Day will happen every year about eleven days earlier than in the preceding year.

a. To find the Christian year corresponding to that of the Hijra, apply the following rule:—From the given number of Musalmán years, deduct three per cent., and to the remainder add the number 621.54, the sum is the period of the Christian æra at which the given current Musalmán year ends. For example, we mentioned (p. 20), that the death of the poet Ahlí happened, A.H. 942; from this number deduct three per cent. or 28.26, and the remainder is 913.74. To this last add 621.54, and the sum = 1535.28, which shows that the Musalmán year 942 ended in the spring of 1536. This very simple rule is founded on the fact that 100 lunar years are very nearly equal to 97 solar years, there being only about eight days of difference. A more accurate proportion would be 101 lunar to 98 solar years, but this would lead to a less convenient rule for practical use.

b. When great accuracy is required, and when the year, month, and day of the Muḥammadan æra are given, the precise period of the Christian æra may be found very nearly, as follows:—Rule. Express the Musalmán date in years and decimals of a year; multiply by .97; to the product add 621.54, and the sum will be the period of the Christian æra. This rule is exact to within a few days, and if in the Musalmán date the day of the week be given, as is generally the case, the very day is easily determined.

c. The Muḥammadan or lunar months are made to consist of thirty and twenty-nine days alternately, but in a period of thirty years, it is found necessary to intercalate the last month eleven times so as to be reckoned thirty days instead of twenty-nine. The months retain their Arabic names in all Muḥammadan countries, as follows:—

92. The Hindús reckon by solar years, and luni-solar months. Their principal æra is that of the Kali-Yug, of which the year 4956 expired about the 11th of April, A.D. 1855, at which period their new year generally commences.

a. The Hindú year is divided into twelve equal portions, which may be called solar months; but all festivals and dates are reckoned, not by these simple months, but by the duration of the moon which terminates in each. Hence, although the month baisákh begins de jure about the 11th of April, it may have commenced de facto from one day to twenty-eight days sooner. When two new moons occur during one solar month, which happens once in three years, there is an intercalary month, and the month so intercalated receives the name of the one which preceded it, that is, of the solar month within which the two new moons may happen.

b. Beside the æra of the Kali-Yug, the Hindús in the northern half of India reckon from the time of a renowned prince, by name Vikramáditya, who lived (or died) about 57 years before the commencement of our æra. Another common æra is that of a prince named Sálaváhana, which commences 78 years after the birth of Christ. The former of these æras is called the Samvat, and the latter the Sáká æra. Several other æras are in use in certain parts of the country, for a full account of which the reader may consult a profound work devoted entirely to the subject, entitled 'Kála Sankalita,' 4to. Madras, 1825.

मनोहर कहानियाँ

सुगम वाली में

१ किसी मोची का घर जाड़े के मौसम में जलने लगा एक गरीब पड़ोसी वरां आकर मेंकने लगा. यह हालत देखके एक ठठोल ने कहा, क्या ख़ूब ! किसीका घर जले कोई तापे.

२ एक कमीने और भले आदमी से इफ़लास में दोस्ती हुई. कमीनः दौलतमन्द होते ही नजीबज़ादे से आंखें लगा चुराने. तब वह ख़फ़ा होकर बोला, यह सच है, कमीने की दोस्ती जैसी बालू की भीत.

३ अक़बर ने बीर्बल से पूछा, कि लड़ाई के वक्त क्या काम आता है ? बीर्बल ने अर्ज किया, कि जहान पनाह ! औसान. बादशाह ने कहा, हथियार और जोर क्यूं नहीं कहता ? बीर्बल ने कहा, जहान पनाह ! अगर औसान ख़ता हो जावे, तो हथियार और जोर किस काम आवे ?

४ एक ऊंट और गधे से निहायत दोस्ती थी. इत्तिफ़ाक़नू दोनों को सफ़र दर्पेश हुआ. दर्मियान राह के एक नदी

मिली. पहले जंट पानी में पैठा. उसके पेट तक पानी हल्ला. कहने लगा, ऐ यार! इधर आओ, पानी थोड़ा है. गधा बोला, सच है, तेरे शिकम तक है, तुझे थोड़ा मअलूम होता है; लेकिन मेरी पीठ तक होगा, मैं डूब जाऊंगा.

५ एक शख्स बादशाह के ऐन किल्ले के नीचे लूटा गया. उसने बादशाह की खिन्नत में अर्ज की, कि जहान पनाह! मुझे कज़ाकों ने ज़ज़ूर के किल्ले की दीवार के नीचे लूट लिया. बादशाह ने फ़र्माया कि तू ऊश्रार क्यूं नरहा? बोला कि गुलाम को मअलूम नथा कि हज़ूरत के ज़ेर झरोखे मुसाफ़िर लूटे जाते हैं. बादशाह ने कहा, क्या तूने यह मसल नहीं सुनी? चिराग़ के नीचे अन्धेरा

६ एक कायथ और उस का गुलाम दोनों एक घर में सोते थे. लाला ने कहा, राम चेरा! देख ता पानी बरस्ता है या खुल गया. उस ने कहा, बरस्ता है. पूछा तू किस तरह जानता है? तैं तो पड़ा सोता है. कहा बिल्ली आई थी, उस को मैं ने टटोला था, भोगी थी. कहा, चिराग़ बुझा दे. कहा, मुंह ढांप के सो रहो, अन्धेरा हो जाएगा. फिर कहा, दर्वाज़: बन्द कर दे. कहा, भया जी! दो काम हमने किये, एक काम तुम करो. गरज ऐसा सुस्त था, आखिर न उठा; पड़ा पड़ा जवाब देता रहा.

जी इस्वक्त घर में नहोवें. कहा, होंगे, जा. तब उसने कहा अगर मुलाकात भी होवे, लेकिन दवा नदें. तब कहा रुक्मिणी: हमारा लेजा, अलवक्त: देंगे. फिर कहा, कि जो उन्होंने ने दवा भी दी, अगर फाड़द: नकरे. कहा, ऐ कम बख्त! यहीं बैठा तन्हीदें बान्धा करेगा या जाएगा? कहा, माहिब! फर्ज किया कि अगर फाड़द: भी करे, तो हामिल क्या? आखिर एक दिन मर्ना बर हक्क है; जैसा अब मरे तैसा तब मरे.

८ कोई मनुष कहीं को चिठी लिखता था; एक पर्देशी उस के पास आ बैठा, और उस के लिखे को देखने लगा. तो उस ने चिठी में लिखा, जो बज्जत सी बातें लिखनी थीं, सो नहीं लिखी गईं क्यूं कि मेरे कने एक निपट चिबिल्ला बैठा है, और इस चिठी को देखता है. वुह बोला, अपने भेद की बात चीत जो लिखनी हो, सो लिखते क्यूं नहीं? मैं ने तो कुछ तुम्हारा लिखा हूँआ नहीं देखा. तब लेखक ने उत्तर दिया, भला, जो तुम ने मेरा लिखा हूँआ नहीं देखा; कहो तो, यह क्यूंकर जाना जो मैं ने यूं लिखा है? इस बात से बज्जत लजाया; और चुप हो रहा.

रोता है. एक ने इस से पूछा, कि भाई! सच कह, तू जो इतना रोता है, तेरे मन में क्या आया है? सिचक को उंगली से बता बोला, कि इन मियां की डाढ़ी हिलती देख मुझे अपना मुआ हूआ प्यारा बका सरन आया, कि जब न तब उस की भी इसी भांत डाढ़ी हिलती थी, इस लिये मैं रोता हूं. यह सुन सब खिलखिला उठे, और सिचक लज्जित हो चुप रहा.

१० एक राजा ने अपना लड्का किसी जोतकी को सौंपा, जो इसे जोतिक सिखाओ; जब उस में यह पूरा हो, तो मेरे पास लाओ. पांडे ने बड़े प्यार और दुख से जितनी बातें उसकी थी, सो उसे अच्छे ढब से सिखाई. जब देखा वह लड्का बड़ा गुनी हूआ, तब राजा के साम्हने जाकर कहा, महाराज! आप का बेटा अब जातिक में चौकस हूआ; जब चाहिये उसे जांच लीजिये. राजा ने यह सुन्ते ही कहा, अब्ही बुलाओ. लड्का आया और हाथ जोड़के खड़ा रहा. राजा ने अपने हाथ की अंगूठी मुट्ठी में लेकर पूछा, कहो बेटा! हमारे हाथ में क्या है? उस ने कहा, कुछ गोल गोल सा है, जिस में छेद और पत्थर भी है. महाराज ने कहा, उसका नांव क्या है? बोला चक्की का पाट. तब राजा जोतकी क मुंह की और ताकने लगा. वही वही हाथ जोड़ कर बोला, महाबली! गुन का कुछ दोश नहीं, यह मत की चुक है.

११ कोई पोस्ती जंगल में बैठा कटोरी में पोस्त घोल रहा था. देवी किसी झाड़ूझूड़ से एक खरहा जो निकलके दौड़ा, तो उस के धक्के से इस की कटोरी लुढ़क पड़ी. यह रिसाय के बोला, कि तुझ से क्या कहें ! भला, तेरे बाप ही से जा कर कहेंगे. इतना कह, कूंडी सोंटा कांख में दबा, नगर में जा, हर एक चौपाये को देखता चला ; निदान एक गधे को जो उस के बरन के समान था, पाया. तो गधेवाले से जाकर कहा, कि तेरे इस पशु के बेटे ने मेरी पोस्त की कटोरी भरी हई लुढ़ा दी. उस ने कहा, कि जिसके बेटे ने लुढ़ाई है विसी से जाके कहो. यह सुन, वह गधे के पास जा, उस की पीठ पर हाथ रख, चाहे कि कुछ कहे, वोंहीं उस ने फिरकर एक ऐसी दुलत्ती मारी, कि यह विचारा हाथ कर बैठ गया, और हंसकर बोला, कि क्यों न हो, जिसका बाप ऐसा हो, तिस का लड़का वैसा ह्मआ ही चाहे. इतना कह चला आया.

लो. उस ने कहा, अभी देते अबेर भी नहीं हई, लेखा कैसा ? निदान दोनों से विवाद होने लगा, और सौ पचास लोग घिर आये. उन में से एक ने रूपयेवाले से कहा, कि अजी ! क्यों झगड़ते हो, लेखा किस लिये नहीं सुन लेते ? हार मान उस ने कहा, अच्छा कह. वह बोला, जिस काल आप ने डुब्की मारी, मैं ने जाना डूब गये ; पांच रूपये दे तुम्हारे घर संदेसा भेजा ; और निकले तब भी और पांच रूपये आनंद के दान में दिये ; रहे दश, सो मैं ने अपने घर भेजे हैं, विन की कुछ चिंता हो तो मुझ से टीप लिखवा लो. यह धांधलपने की बात सुन, वह विचारा बोला, भला भाई ! भर पाये.

१३ एक कच्छुए और कौवे से बड़ी प्रीत थी, काम पड़ने से एक एक का सहारा करता. एक दिन किसी चिड़ीमार ने कौवे को पकड़ा, तब कच्छुए ने चिड़ीमार से कहा, कि तुझे इस के लेजाने से हाट में क्या मिलेगा ? बोला, दो पैसे. कहा, जो तू इसे छोड़ दे, तो मैं तुझे एक मोती दूं. कहा अच्छा. उस ने डुब्की मार के मोती ला दिया ; पर इस ने कौवे को न छोड़ा. तब कच्छुए ने कहा, कि मैं ने मोती तो तुझे ला दिया, अब इसे क्यों नहीं छोड़ता ; बोला, एक मोती और ला दे, तो छोड़ दूं, नहीं तो नहीं छोड़ूंगा. इस ने कहा, अच्छा. तू इसे छोड़ दे, मैं ला देता हूं. वह बोला, मैं तेरी बात को कैसे प्रतीत करूं ? कहा इस ने, मैं झूठ नहीं

१४ एक दिन अक्बर बादशाह ने बीरबल से कोई बात कहके उस का उत्तर पूछा. बीरबल ने वह उत्तर दिया, कि जो बादशाह के मन में ठहरा था. सुनकर शाह ने कहा, कि यही बात मेरे भी जी में आई है. बीरबल बोला, कि महाराज! यह वही बात है, जो सौ सियाने एक मत. शाह ने कहा कि, यह कहावत भी प्रगट है, जो सिर सिर अक्ल, गुर गुर विद्या. फिर बीरबल ने कहा कि, महाराज! जो मन में आवे तो इस बात को जांच लीजे. कहा बज्रत अच्चा. इतनी बात के सुन्ते ही बीरबल ने नगर में से सौ बुद्धिवान बुला भेजे, और दो पहर रात के समय बादशाह के सोहीं उन्हें एक सूना कुंड बताकर कहा, महाराज की आज्ञा है कि इसी

विरियां हर एक लोग एक एक घड़ा दूध का भरकर इस कुंड में ला डाले. बादशाह की आज्ञा को सुन्ते ही हर एक ने अपने जी में यह बात समझके, कि जहां निनानवे घड़े दूध के होंगे, तहां मेरा एक घड़ा पानी का क्या जाना जायगा ? पानी ही ला डाला. बीरबल ने शाह को दिखाया ; शाह ने उन सब से कहा, तुम ने क्या समझके मेरी आज्ञा को न माना ? सच कहो, नहीं तो भला न होगा. विन में ये हर किसी ने हाथ बांध बांध कर कहा, कि महाराज ! चाहो मारिये, चाहो छोड़िये, हमारे जी में यह बात आई, कि जहां निनानवे घड़े दूध के होंगे, वहां एक घड़ा पानी का क्या जाना जायगा ? यह बात सब के मुख से सुनकर बादशाह ने बीरबल से कहा, जो कानों सुन्ते थे सो आंखों देखा, कि सौ सियाने एक मता.

इतना सुन, रोटी ले, अभीस दे, आगे बढ़े, तो देखा कि कोई रंडी रो रो चक्की पीस रही है। उसी भांति उस से भी पूछा। उन्ने कहा, मेरा स्वामी चोरी को गया है, उसे तीन दिन हूए, न जानूं जीता है कै मारा गया, इस दुख से रोती हूं। यह सुन वहां से भी चल निकले। फिर देखा, कि एक स्त्री नवयौवना खिड़की में बैठी डाढ़ें मार मार रोती है। उस से पूछा, तू क्यों रोती है? उन्ने कहा, मेरा स्वामी अल्प वयस्क है। इस बात के सुनके ही बादशाह उदास हो घर आये, और दूसरे दिन राजमंदिर में बैठ, बीरबल की ओर देख बोले, बीरबल ! वे तीनों बिल्लाये। बीरबल ने कुछ उत्तर न दिया। फिर बादशाह ने कहा, बीरबल ! वे तीनों बिल्लाये। बोला, हां महाराज ! इतनी बात के सुनते ही, बादशाह ने लीली पीली आंखें कर कहा, बीरबल इस का बखान कर, नहीं तो अभी मार डालता हूं। तू ने क्या समझके मेरी बात का उत्तर न दिया? बोला, एक समंदर बनज करे, और नित उठ चोरी जायं; बालक ही से नेह लगावे, वे तीनों बिल्लाये। इस बात के सुनते ही प्रसन्न हो बादशाह ने बीरबल को निहाल कर दिया।

१६ शाहजहां बादशाह ने दीवानिख्वास से ले गढ़ के पौर तक एक रस्सा बंध्वा दिया था, और उस में घंटालियां गुंथ्वा, क्लोर उस का बीच बाजार में डलवा दिया था, इस लिये कि जो कोई बादी आवे, सो उस रस्से को खैचे,

घंटालियां बाजें, और बादी की पुकार महाराज के निकट बिन बीचबिचाव के पड़ें। एक दिन किसी भिस्ती का बैल भरी पखाल समेत उस रस्से के पास आकर खड़ा हुआ, भिस्ती किसी के यहां मशक डालने गया था; बैल ने रस्से से सिर खुजलाया; उस के सींग का झटका जो लगा, एकी दांव सब घंटालियां बाज उठीं; सुनते ही बादशाह ने कहा, देखो, कौन है? लोगों ने झट समाचार दिया, धर्मावतार! और तो कोई नहीं, एक भिस्ती का बैल है। आज्ञा की, कि उसे उस के स्वामी समेत ले आओ। लोग वोंहीं ले गये। बादशाह ने आज्ञा की, कि इस की पखाल का पानी तोलो कि कितना है? तोलकर निवेदन किया, कि पृथ्वीनाथ साढ़े पांच मन है। सुनते ही बादशाह ने आज्ञा की, कि आज से साढ़े तीन मन पानी से अधिक नगर में कोई पखाल न बनावे। उसी घड़ी डोंडी फिर गई, तभी से साढ़े तीन मन पानी से अधिक पखाल नहीं बनती।

१७ लाड़ कपूर एक दिन अकबर बादशाह के वोंहीं अच्छा गाये; शाह ने रीझकर हाथी दिया, ये ले आये। वरस एक पीछे इन दोनों भाइयों के जी में आया कि आज हाथी का आहार चलकर देखें कितना खाता है, और किस प्रकार खाता है? निदान आहार के समय मूंडा बिक्रा बिक्रा हाथी के पास जा बैठे, और उसका खाना देख निपट चकित और सोच में हो आपस में कहने लगे, कि भाई जी! बादशाह

ने यह हमारे पीछे कोई बड़ी बिपत लगा दी, न इसे बेच सकें; न किसी को दे सकें; जो यह कई दिन यहां रहा, तो इसके खाने के आगे हमारा गाना बजाना सब मिट्टी में मिल जायगा. इतना कह, कुछ मन में समझ, ढोलक तंबूरा उसके गले में डाल छोड़ दिया. उसने नगर में जा धूम की. और नगर के लोगों ने जा बादशाह के यहां पुकारा की. शाह ने कहा, देखो किस का हाथी है? किसी ने आ कहा, महाराज! लाड़ कपूर का. आज्ञा की कि उन्हें बुलाओ. कहने के साथ ही वे आन उपस्थित हुए. देखते ही क्रोध कर महाराज ने कहा. कि क्यों वे! तुम ने हाथी क्यों छोड़ दिया? उन्होंने हाथ बांधकर कहा, महाराज! हम को जो बिद्या आती थी सो बरस दिन में सब सिखला, ढोलक तंबूरा उस के हाथ दिया, इस लिये कि बादशाही नगर है, इस में जाकर कमावे, और कुछ विस में से आप खा हमें खिलावे. इस रहस के सुनते ही प्रसन्न हो बादशाह ने उनका अपराध क्षमा किया, और हाथी के लिये एक गांव दिया.

१८ कोई कायथ सदा अपने बेटे को समझाता, और यह कहता, कि बाबा! संसार बुरी ठौर है, कर तो डर, न कर तो मी डर. उस का बेटा सुनकर यह उत्तर देता, लाला जी! बुरी बुरे के लिये है, कर तो डर, न कर तो न डर. निदान जब न तब उन दोनों में यही बातचीत होती. एक दिन उस ने अपना वह घोड़ा असवारी को मंगवाया, कि जिस

पर कभी न चढ़ा था. घोड़े के आते ही, बाप ने बेटे से कहा, बाबा ! इस पर तुम चढ़ो, हम देखें. बेटे ने भी यही कहा. निदान बज्जत सी कहा सुनी के पीछे उस का बाप ही असवार ह्वा, और बेटा पीछे पीछे देखता चला. इस में कई एक जनों ने देखकर कहा, यह क्या अभागी है ? कि गोर में पांव लटका चुका, और तौ भी इस की चोप नहीं गई ; जुबा घेटा पीछे जूती चटकाता आता है, और आप घोड़े पर चढ़ा जाता है. यह सुन वह उतर पड़ा, और बेटे को चढ़ा, आप पीछे पीछे देखता चला. फिर कई लोग देखके बोले, कि देखो, यह क्या निकम्मा और कपूत है, जो आप आरूढ़ हो बाप को जलेब में दौड़ाता है. यह सुन, आगे बढ़, वे दोनों चढ़ लिये. तब कोई बोल उठा, कि ये क्या निलज्ज हैं जो एक घोड़े पर दो लद लिये हैं. यों सुन, वे दोनों उतर पड़े, और साईस ने घोड़ा डुरिया लिया, ये पीछे पीछे देखते चले ; तब इन्हें देख एक ने एक से कहा, कि भाई ! देखो, हराम का माल मुफ्त जाता है, और किसी के काम नहीं आता. इस बात के सुनते ही कायथ ने बेटे से कहा, क्यों बाबा ! लोगों के मुख से वचने का कोई और उपाय हो तो करो, मुझ से तो अब कुछ नहीं बन आती. निरुत्तर हो बेता बोला, लाला जी ! तुम सच कहते थे, संसार बुरी ठौर है, कर तो डर, न कर तौ भी डर. इस का कुछ उपाय नहीं.

१६ किसी ठौर पर कोई मुल्ला बैठा लड़के पढ़ाता था

कि एक लड़के के बाप ने आकर उसे उलहना दिया, मियां साहिब ! मेरे बेटे को आप ने कुछ न सिखाया पढ़ाया ; देखो, अबतक छोकरी के साथ वह खेलता फिरता है, और मेरा कहा नहीं मानता. इतनी बात के सुनते ही मियां जी रोसकर बोला, कि हां जी, नेकी बरवाद गुनह लाजिम. मैं ने एक बरस परिश्रम कर, लिखा पढ़ा गधे से मनुष बनाया, और तुम ने यह बात कही, अब मुझे तुम से कुछ लेने पाने की आस न रही. यह निरास की बात सुनकर लड़के का बाप तो मियां जी को बज्रत सा भरसा देके चला गया ; पर एक धोबी और धोबिन बड़े धनी, जिन्होंने मियां जी के मुंह यह बात गैल में खड़े होके सुनी थी, कि मैं ने तुम्हारे लड़के को बरस दिन में लिखा पढ़ा गधे से मनुष किया, वे दोनों स्त्री पुरुष आ उपस्थित हुए, और हाथ जोड़कर बोले, कि मियां जी ! जितने रुपये चाहिये लीजे, और मेरे भी गधे को मनुष बना दीजे. मुझा ने उन दोनों की बात सुनके मन में विचारा कि ये हिये के अंधे, मत के हीन, गांठ के पूरे, मेरे भाग से आन मिले हैं, इन से रुपये क्यों नहीं लेता ? यह ममझ, इन्ने उन से कहा, सहस्र रुपये दो, और गधे को बांध जाओ. इस बात के सुनते ही, वे झट तोड़ा दे गधा बांध गये ; और एक बरस पीछे फिर आन उपस्थित हुए. उन के देखते ही मियां जी ने कहा, कि दो दिन पहले आते तो उसे पाते ; अब तो वह जाके जौनपुर का काजी हुआ. उन्होंने पूछा.

कि अब हम उसे क्योंकर पावें? मियां जी ने कहा, कि तुम उस के बांधने की रस्सी और दाना खाने का नंदोला ले जाके सोहीं खड़े हो दिखलाओ; जब वह पहचानके तुम्हें पास बुलावे, तब तुम निराले ले जाके सब वृत्तांत कहियो, अपना ब्योरा सुनकर वह तुम्हें बड़तेरा डरावेगा, पर तुम न डरियो, और कहियो, जो तुम हमारी बात न मानो, तो चलकर मियां जी से पूछ लो. निदान वे दोनों जौनपुर गये, और उसी भांति करने लगे; तब काजी ने दून दोनों को पास बुलाकर पूछा, कि तुम यह क्या करते हो? बोले, निराले चलो तो इस का वृत्तांत कहें. काजी उन्हें निराले ले गये; फिर उन्होंने ने सब वृत्तांत कह सुनाया. काजी समझा, किसी ने इन्हें बहकाया है, इस से दून की बात बिन माने किसी भांति मेरा पीछा न छोड़ेंगे. यों समझ, काजी ने कहा, जो तुम ने कहा सो सब सच; पर अब तुम हम से क्या चाहते हो? ये बोले, हम अपुत्रक हैं, हमारा धन संपत का मीरा होके मरने से मिट्टी दीजो, यही हम चाहते हैं. निदान मारे लाज के काजी ने उन की बात मान ली इस लिये कि कोई और न सुने.

२० अकबर बादशाह के सान्हेने एक दिन मियां तानसेन ने सूरदास का यह विसनपद गाया; जसुदा बार बार यह भाषै, है कोई ब्रज में हित्तर हमारौ चलत गोपालहि राखै. बादशाह ने इस के अर्थ पूछे; मियां ने कहा, जसुदा घड़ी

षड़ी यह कहे है, है कोई ब्रज में मित्र हमारा जो चलते हुए
 गोपाल को रखे ? मियां तो गाय समझाय चले गये ; इस में
 आये बीरबल ; महाराज ने उन ने भी उस का अर्थ पूछा ;
 बीरबल बोले, धर्मावतार ! बार कहते हैं पौर को, सो
 जसुदा पौर पौर यह कहती है कि है कोई ब्रज में मित्र
 हमारा जो गोपाल को न जाने दे ? इतने में राजा टोड़लमल
 आये ; महाराज ने उस से भी अर्थ पूछा ; कहा पृथ्वीनाथ !
 जसुदा कृष्ण की मा, बार कहते हैं पानी को, और द्वार
 को ; सो पानी का द्वार कृष्ण घाट ; इस से अर्थ यह कृष्ण, कि जसुदा घाट घाट यह कहती है, कि है कोई ब्रज में मित्र
 हमारा कि गोपाल को चलने से फेर रखे ? इस बीच आये
 मुल्ला फैजी ; बादशाह ने उन से भी विस का अर्थ पूछा ; उत्तर
 दिया, कि बार व मन्नी आव ओ दर ; यहां आव से मुराद
 है आंसू, और दर से मुराद है आंख ; इस से मन्ने ये
 निकले, कि जसुदा रोककर यह बात कहती है, कि है कोई ब्रज
 में दोस्त हमारा जो गोपाल को न जाने दे ? इस बीच आये
 नवाब खानखानान ; बादशाह ने उन से भी उस का अर्थ
 पूछा ; तब नवाब ने कहा, कि धर्मावतार ! इस विसनपद
 का अर्थ किसी और ने भी कहा है ? इस बात के सुनते ही, जिस जिस ने जो जो अर्थ कहे थे, महाराज ने कह सुनाये.
 तब नवाब ने कहा, महाराज ! ये तो उस विसनपद के अर्थ
 नहीं, पर हां, हर किसी ने अपने मन का अनुभाव बखान

किया. बादशाह ने पूछा, सो क्या? बोला, वह विचारा कलावंत जैसे एक नौम तौम शब्दों को घड़ी घड़ी कहता है, उस के मन में यही ध्यान बंधा, कि जसुदा घड़ी घड़ी कहती है. और वीरबल जात का ब्राह्मण, पौर पौर का फिरनेवाला; उस के भी मन में यही ध्यान बंधा, कि जसुदा पौर पौर कहती है. और टोड़लमल मुतसद्दी, उस के ध्यान में यह बूझ पड़ा, कि जसुदा घाट घाट कहती है. और फ़ैजी कवि, बिन रोने के और अर्थ न सूझा, इस से उस के ध्यान में आया, कि जसुदा रो रो कहती है. यह बात सुनकर बादशाह ने कहा, भला अब तुम कहो, उस का क्या अर्थ है. निवेदन किया, कि पृथ्वीनाथ! बार कहते हैं बाल को, सो जसुदा का बाल बाल यह कहता है, कि है कोई ब्रज में मित्र हमारा जो गोपाल को न जाने दे. अर्थ के सुनते ही, बादशाह ने प्रसन्न हो सब को प्रशंसा की, और ब्रज भाषा के विस्तार को बड़त सराहा.

VOCABULARY.

B. -The letter m. signifies masculine, f. feminine, a. active n. neuter. It has not been deemed necessary to give the names of the different parts of speech, except when a word belongs to more than one division. In the Hindústání words and phrases, k. stands for karná; h. for honá; d. for dená; j. for jáná; and l. for lená. The letters a, p, s, and h, at the end of each definition, denote respectively the Arabic, Persian, Sanskrit, or Indian origin of the word explained.]

In the same way as the above, let the student endeavour to transcribe neatly into the Roman character the first two or three pages of the Extracts. Let him be careful to write every letter with its appropriate mark; and, in the course of a week or two, let him restore the same into the Persian character. This is one of the best and speediest methods of making himself familiar with the elements of the language. Let me not be misunderstood here, as if I recommended the bare-faced quack system of the so-called "Hamiltonians." No, what I recommend is, that "every man should be his own Hamiltonian," in which case he will be the gainer. It is utterly absurd to expect that a language can be learned without labour and thought on the part of the student. The Hamiltonians would persuade us that it can; but their system is a mere deception, which flatters the vanity of the student with a show of progress utterly unreal, and which admirably conceals the ignorance and incapacity of the teacher; hence its popularity.

NOTES, ETC., ON THE FIRST FIFTY STORIES IN THE PERSIAN CHARACTER.

THE following few notes and observations are intended to illustrate such parts of the Reading Lessons as may appear least obvious to a beginner. The figures refer to the particular page and paragraph in the Grammar, in which the subject is fully explained.

N.B. In this work, the final nún ن when it has the nasal sound (vide page 6), is marked with an extra dot over it, as in the words مَیْنِ main, and تَیْنِ tain. This should have been stated in its proper place, but the author was not aware at the time these sheets were sent to press that the printer had the ن in his fount.

Extract 1.—Jaldi-ká phal, ‘the fruit of rashness;’ the genitive placed first, 95. 64. It will be observed that these sentences are arranged according to the rule, 93. 62, each sentence finishing with the verb hai, ‘is.’—Gūngi zabán, etc., ‘a speechless tongue is better than a lying tongue:’ in this sentence there are two clauses; the verb hai is expressed at the end of the first clause, and is consequently unnecessary at the end of the second. 135. a.

Ex. 2.—Thorá khándá, ‘little eating;’ the infinitive used substantively, 129. a.—ṭalab kar ‘ilm-ko, ‘seek for knowledge’: ṭalab karná, a nominal verb, 65, last line; here the verb, contrary to the general usage, comes first. There are in this Extract a few more exceptions to the general rule as to arrangement, agreeably to what we have stated. 93. a.

Ex. 3.—Jalne lagá, ‘began to burn’—senkne lagá, ‘began to warm himself,’ 131. c.—ṭhaṭhol-ne kahá, ‘a jester said,’ or, ‘by a jester was said.’—jale, ‘burns,’ tápe, ‘warms himself,’ the aorist for the present, 122. b.

Ex. 4.—The sentences in this extract follow the general rule as to arrangement, which is, to commence with the nominative or agent, and end with the verb, the remainder or complement of the sentence being between these.—bar-pá, literally, ‘on foot.’—ziyáda kharáb haiñ, ‘are more wicked,’ the comparative degree, 71. b.

Ex. 5.—Bahut kám, ‘many uses;’ the nominative plural of masculine nouns of the second class (29), can be distinguished from the singular only by the context, such as a plural verb, etc.—bajā,e, ‘in place of,’ preposition requiring the genitive in ke, 98.—kám áte haiñ, ‘become useful.’—banáyá jātá hai, passive voice of banáná, 57, 42.—Vide p. 47, note to ‘Extracts from the Árá,ish-i Mahfil.’

Ex. 6.—Ek únt aur gadhe-se, ‘between a camel and an ass.’—safar dar pesh hú,á, lit. ‘a journey came in front,’ i.e., ‘they both had occasion to travel;’—ma’lúm hotá hai, ‘it appears;’—ḍúb-já,ungá, ‘I shall be drowned,’ intens. verb, 64.

Ex. 7.—Jo dánd, etc. 116. a.—be kahe, ‘without being told,’ 132.—ḍál-rakhtá hai, ‘tosses away,’ intensive verb;—ki jis-ke wáste, ‘on whose account,’ 117. c.

Ex. 8.—Ek kamíne aur bhale ádmí-se, ‘between a base man and a gentleman.’—hote-hí, ‘on becoming,’ adverbial particip. 134. e.

Ex. 9.—Ek shakhṣ-ne, etc., ‘by a certain person it was asked of Plato;’ respecting the use of the proposition ne, read carefully, 102, etc.—bahut barson, ‘many years,’ 106. b.—kyá kyá ’ajá,íb, ‘what various wonders,’ 114. a.—dekhe, ‘were seen’ (tú-ne, ‘by thee,’ understood).—yihí ’ajúba, ‘this wonder merely.’

Ex. 10.—Kyá kám átá hai, ‘what quality is most useful?’—ho-jáwe, ‘should become.’

Ex. 11.—Chashme-pás ‘to (or near) a fountain’ (ke understood), 99. d.—charḥ na saká, ‘he was not able to descend.’—utarne-se pahle, ‘previous to descending.’—dekh na liyá, ‘you did not thoroughly look at,’ intensive verb.

Ex. 12.—Sher-se kahá, ‘said to the tiger;’ the verbs ‘to say or speak’ and ‘to ask,’ construed with the ablative, 102. b.—agar sher mu.áuwir hotá, ‘if a tiger had been the painter,’ 81. a.

Ex. 13.—Kuchh sawál kiyá, ‘asked something in charity.’—ek bát merí, ‘one request of mine.’—mat máng, ‘ask not,’ the negative particle mat, ‘don’t,’ used with the imperat., 123. d.—uske siwá, ‘with the exception of that.’

Ex. 14.—Ek-ne un-men-se, ‘one of them.’—já,iye and baiṭhiye, respectful forms of the imperative, 123. d.

Ex. 15.—Apní angúṭhí, ‘thine own ring,’ 112.—yád karná (tujh ko understood), the infinitive used imperatively, like the Latin gerund, 129. a.

Ex. 16.—Billi á, i thí, pluperfect tense, 127. d.—bughá de, ‘extinguish,’ intensive verb.—pará pará, etc., ‘all the time lying down, he continued giving answers.’

Ex. 17.—Agar main bázi na jitún, ‘if I do not win the game.’—ser bhar gosht, ‘an exact pound of flesh;’ the ser is nearly two English pounds.—tardash-le, ‘cut off.’—us-ne na-mánd, ‘he did not (or would not) agree.’—kāzi-pás (for kāzi-ke pás), ‘near the judge.’—ek ser-se ek rati ziyáda, ‘a single grain more than one ser.’

Ex. 18.—‘Ain kíl’e-ke niche, ‘close under the very palace.’—lútá gayá, ‘was plundered,’ passive voice.—khidmat-men, ‘in the presence.’—‘arz kí, ‘made representation,’ kí, fem. of kiyá, agrees with ‘arz, but ‘arz kiyá is also used as a nominal verb.—chirágh, etc., ‘under the lamp is darkness,’ a proverb analogous to our own saying, ‘the nearer the church, the farther from God.’

Ex. 19.—Anján hokar, ‘as a stranger.’—kyá mujhe, etc., ‘do you not recognize me?’ kyá, here used as a sign of interrogation, 93. b.

Ex. 20.—Us-ke; yahán is here understood; mar-gayá and bánt-lí and urá-dí, all intensive verbs, 65. 44. 1.

Ex. 21.—‘Admiyon-ko istabal-men jáne detá, ‘he allowed the people to go into the stable,’ 131. c.—phirtá and kartá, continuative past tenses, 124. b.—apná kám kar-liyá, ‘gained his own object.’

Ex. 22.—Aşnde ráh-men, ‘in the midst of the way.’—chirágh ghar-ká, etc., ‘I did not put out the lamp of the house before I came away,’ literally, ‘I have not come (after) having put out,’ etc.—á, e ga, e, ‘you have come and gone.’—jútá na ghisá hogá, ‘must not your shoes have been worn?’

Ex. 23.—Is waqt, ‘at present;’ ko, understood, 100. a.—honge and na-deñ, etc., the plural used out of respect, 118. 78.—jo unhoñ-ne, etc., ‘even should his worship have given the medicine.’—bándhú-karegá, frequentative verb, 66. III. 1.—marná bar haḡḡ hai, ‘death is certain.’

Ex. 24.—Tabáh hokar, ‘being in distress.’—parháne, ‘to make read,’ ‘to teach;’ casual form of parhná, 62. 43.—lete lete hí, ‘even when lying down;’ the repetition of the conjunctive participle denotes a continuation of the state, or repetition of the action, denoted by the verb.—be háth páñw-ke hildé, ‘without the moving of his hands and feet.’—hiḡáyá, the preterite participle, used as a substantive.

Ex. 25.—Sab-ke hawále kí ‘he gave into the charge of each.’ kát-dáli, ‘cut off;’ the intensive of kátná.

Ex. 26.—Donon kázt-ke pás ga,ñ, aur inşáf cháhá, 104. d.—ek ek ‘one to each,’ 106. c.—larke-ko use supurd kiyá, 101, c.

Ex. 27.—Chha roti-se, ‘with six loaves;’ the termination on denoting the plural omitted, 107. 70.—wuh dál-dene-men dákhil hai, ‘that amounts to throwing it away.’

Ex. 28.—‘Arz kiyá, (a nominal verb), ‘he represented;’ ‘arz kí is also used in the same sense, vide Ex. 19.—dar-khwašt karná, ‘to make request.’—do sawdl bejá (properly do sawdl-i-bejá), ‘two improper requests.’

Ex. 29.—Likhni thín, ‘were to be written,’ 83.—dam khá rahá, an idiomatic expression, denoting, ‘he remained quite silent,’ lit., ‘continued devouring his breath.’

Ex. 30.—Dekhne-wále, ‘the spectators,’ 66.—dusre-ke ghar (ko understood), ‘to the house of the other.’—samjhá, etc., ‘he perceived that it was not a screen.’—fareb kháyá, ‘were deceived,’ lit., ‘experienced deception.’

Ex. 31.—Sikhne-ká, etc., ‘why then mention the learning of it?’—itne-men, ‘in the meantime.’—bar bád kí, ‘have cast away,’ lit., ‘placed upon the wind.’

Ex. 32.—Dushnám dí thí, pluperfect tense, 127. d.—áth áth áne, etc., ‘you share between you, each eight ánás;’ observe that sixteen ánás make a rupi.

Ex. 33.—Gardan márná, ‘to decapitate.’—mere rú-ba-rú, ‘in my presence.’—mardána-wár, ‘like a man or hero.’—terá bará kalíja hai, ‘thou hast great courage.’—jawán-mardí, ‘heroism’ or ‘courage.’—dar-guzrá, ‘he passed over (or passed by) his fault.’

Ex. 34.—Ek bará sakhlí, ‘a very generous man,’ 107. b.

Ex. 35.—Khabar karná, the infinitive used as an imperative.

Ex. 36.—Karte húe, vide 131, 84.—wájib-tar, Persian comparative, by adding tar to the positive.

Ex. 37.—Báithá diyá, intensive of baithándá.—bara, in the last line means ‘greater,’ ‘more important.’

Ex. 38.—Bará mom-díl, ‘very soft-hearted.’—in miyán-kí, ‘of this reverend gentleman;’ plural used out of respect.—apná is here used for merá, 113. e.

Ex. 39.—Kuchh gol gol sá, ‘something quite round.’

Ex. 40.—Subh hote hí, ‘immediately it was dawn of day.’—kauní s: jins, ‘what sort of commodity.’—itní dándí par, ‘notwithstanding so much wisdom.’—yihí faḡat, ‘this only and no more.’—main báz áyá, etc., ‘I will have nothing to do with such wisdom;’ past used for the future, 126, a.

Ex. 41.—Jo wuh ber mile, ‘if that (lost) sheep should be found.’—khudá-kí ráh-par, ‘in charity,’ ‘pour l’amour de Dieu.’—khudá-kí kasam (khátá hún) ‘I swear by God.’

Ex. 42.—Admí-ke, etc., ‘taller than a man’s stature.’—khatt pahunchne tak, etc., ‘by (the time of) the letter’s arrival, the (wheat) season had expired.’—itibár kí jáwe, ‘can be credited.’

Ex. 43.—Mahmúd of Ghazní died, A.D. 1030. Ayyáz was one of his favourite slaves. Mahmúd is famous both for his patronage of learned men, and for his success as a warrior. He made several incursions into India, in the last of which, A.D. 1026, he is supposed to have carried away in triumph the gates of Somnáth, of which we heard so much some years ago.—Jauhar-kháne men, ‘into the jewel-house or treasury.’

Ex. 44.—Jude jude makánón-men, ‘in places quite apart,’ or ‘each in a separate place.’—salámat, ‘in safety.’

Ex. 45.—Súḡaul, ‘well-shaped,’ ‘elegant.’—bad kho-wále-ke, ‘of the man of a bad disposition.’—jo jaisá, etc., ‘whatever sort (of seed) a man may sow, the same will he reap.’

Ex. 46.—Kasam kháí, ‘swore an oath.’—ímándár, ‘faithful’ or honest.’—rutba, e a’lá, ‘very high rank.’—is baháne-se, ‘by this pretext.’

Ex. 47.—Nau-jawán, ‘quite young:’ the same phrase occurs in the Devanágari Extracts under the Sanskrit form, nava-yauvaná.—der kar, ‘though late.’

Ex. 48.—Likhá húa, ‘written:’ the participle with húa, agreeably to 131.—likhá hai; here the agent kisí-ne is understood.

Ex. 49.—Saláhan, ‘by way of advice.’—bát kahte h, ‘immediately.’—us-ke kahne ba-mújib, ‘in conformity with what he said.’

Ex. 50.—Diýínat-dár, ‘conscientious.’—jis wakt, ‘when,’ or ‘at the time when.’—háṣil-i-kalám, ‘in short.’

2.—EXTRACTS FROM THE ‘KHIRAD AFROZ.’

These Extracts are selected as a specimen of genuine Urdú, the dialect spoken by the educated classes of the Musalmán population throughout India. The style is exceedingly easy and elegant, and presents no difficulty to those who have acquired an elementary knowledge of Persian. Before the student commences with these, he is requested to read with care from page 88 to page 100 of the Grammar, which portion treats of Persian compounds, etc. I may here add (what I am afraid has been omitted in its proper place in the Grammar) viz., that “in phrases from the Persian, the adjective follows the substantive, and the substantive is in that case marked with the izájat, as if it governed another substantive in the genitive.” Thus mard-i pársá, ‘a pious man;’ mard-i nek, ‘a good man.’ The reader will see in page 90, b. of the Grammar that when, in a Persian phrase, the adjective comes before the substantive, the two together form a compound epithet, as, tang-dil, ‘distressed in heart:’ whereas ‘a distressed heart’ would be written ‘dil-i tang.’

This extract from the ‘Árá,ish-i Maḥfil’ was for the first time correctly printed in the first edition of this work. In the Calcutta edition, the printers misplaced the letter-press of two pages, so that, while the paging appeared perfect, the text made nonsense. Several years ago I discovered this when endeavouring to make sense of the passage as it has all along stood in Mr. Shakespear’s ‘Selections,’ vol. i. p. 105. Mr. S. has endeavoured to cement the matter by throwing in a few connecting words of his own, which are certainly no improvement. A conscientious critic would have stated the fact of such an amendment, so that the original author might not incur blame for the sins of the Bengal printers, or of the English editor. I am glad to find that Mr. Shakespear in his more recent edition has adopted my amendment (without any acknowledgment, however), as preferable to his own.

The subject of the extract is a description of a kind of chariot drawn by bullocks common in the province of Gujerat, more especially in the city of Ahmadábád. An account of the same, accompanied by a beautiful engraving, will be found in the travels of Albert Mandelslo, who visited the spot in the reign of Sháh Jahán. The edition of his travels to which I allude is the folio, printed at Leyden, 1719, page 74. In pages 21 and 22, of the same work there is an engraving of the Great Indian Fig-tree, commonly called the Banyán Tree, alluded to in our 5th Extract, page 7. It is the same as that mentioned by Quintus Curtius, Lib. ix. cap. i. "Having thus vanquished Porus and crossed the river (Acesines), he marched further into the country. There he found forests of vast extent, in which were shady trees of prodigious height. Most of their branches (or arms) equalled in size the trunks of ordinary trees; for, bending down into the earth, they grew up again in the same place, and appeared rather like separate trees, than boughs springing from another stem."

4.—EXTRACTS IN THE DEVANÁGARÍ CHARACTER.

THE first seven anecdotes in the Devanágari character correspond respectively with stories 3, 8, 10, 6, 18, 16, and 23, in the Persian character. They are the same word for word, and, consequently, require no further notice here. Nos. 8, 9, and 10, in the Devanágari, correspond respectively with Nos. 29, 38, and 39, in the Persian character; with this difference, however, that in the Devanágari text, Arabic and Persian words are carefully excluded, and their places supplied with words purely Indian: and this exclusion of Arabic and Persian words, constitutes the main difference between the dialect of the Hindús, commonly called 'Hindí,' or 'Kharí Bolí,' and that of the Musalmáns, generally called 'Hindústání,' 'Urdú,' or 'Zabán-i Rekhta.' The style throughout is exceedingly easy, and there is only one peculiarity in the orthography to which it may be requisite to draw the student's attention in this place, viz., that in the Devanágari character the letter य (y) is sounded like the vowel ए (e) when following any of the long vowels आ á, or ओ o: thus जाय já,e, रिमाय risá,e, होय ho,e, etc., instead of जाए etc. I may mention, in conclusion, that in the last seven pages or so of these extracts, the symbol called the viráma is purposely discontinued, as the jazm is in the selections from the 'Khirad Afroz.' The student should always bear in mind that he must ultimately qualify himself to read correctly books and manuscripts utterly void of vowel-points and all other orthographical symbols, such as the jazm, the tashdíd, the viráma, etc.

APPENDIX.

It has been suggested to me that a more detailed explanation of the following fourteen engraved plates in the Ta'lik character would be very desirable for beginners. I have discussed the subject rather briefly in page 143, etc.; and now, at the risk of a few repetitions, I deem it advisable to enter upon it again more fully, by giving a literal transcript of each plate in the Roman character, together with a few additional explanatory notes and observations.

PLATE I.

TRANSCRIPT INTO THE ROMAN CHARACTER.

Div. 1.—a, b, j, d, z, r, z, s, sh, z, t, z, f, k, k, k, l, m, n, w, h, hhhs, lá, y, y.

„ 2.—bá, bt, bh, bd, br, bs, bsh, bz, bt, bz, bf, bk, lk, bl, bm, bn, bw, bs, bhs, blá, by, by.

„ 3.—já, jt, jh, jd. hr, hr, js, jsh, hz, ht, hz, jf, jk, jk, jl, hm, hn,

hw, js, jhs, jlá, hy, jy.

DIVISION 1.—The first division of this Plate shows the mere elements of the ta'lik alphabet; the small cross mark indicates the spot where the pen starts from in the formation of the letter, and a double cross denotes an additional formation. The first elementary form on the right hand is the alif, which differs very little from the printed character. The second form is the letter be (b), which by a mere change of its dots may become p, t, z. The third form, now a jím (j), becomes, in the same manner, ch, kh, h. The fourth makes two letters, d and z. The fifth, r, z, zh, and r. The sixth is represented as consisting of two forms—one an indented, the other a protracted line, and either may be used as sin and shin (s and sh), as the only distinction between them is, that the sin (s) wants. and the shin (sh) has, three dots superscribed, whether short or protracted. The seventh form, śād and zād. The eighth, t, z. The ninth, 'ain and ghain. The next letters are f, l, k, l, m, n, w, and h, which are nearly the same as the printed type. Then follow the initial, medial, and final forms of the he linked together; then the lá and hamza; and lastly, the letter ye under two varieties of form, the latter of which is now conventionally used by the natives to denote the yá,e majhúl.

a. The dál may at first sight appear to resemble the w; the distinction consists in this, that the dál has an angular top, whereas the w has it round.

b. As the letters 'ain and the imperceptible he have no exact representatives in the Roman character, they have been allowed to stand in the transcript of the plates in their proper form.

c. The fe and last form of yá are written above the line to show the mode they adopt where there are more words than the line will contain.

d. The bottom of the káf may be protracted, as in the second example, to fill up the line, a liberty frequently taken with letters by the Oriental penman. This letter is formed by two sweeps of the pen, the first commencing from the top of the vertical line at the angle—(marked in the plate with a single cross); the slanting top is put on afterwards. In old Nasikhí MSS. the slanting top is never used, but instead thereof the mark ε is written over the letter.

e. The yá (y) has two forms in the Plate. The former was appropriated by Dr. Gilchrist for the sound í, the latter for the e (or yá,e majhúl), a distinction still observed by the natives of India in writing Hindústání.

DIVISION 2 exhibits the second elementary form, viz., that of b, p, t, g, n, and y, as they appear initially, when combined with each of the others following them. Here are given all the combinations of the letter be, with each of the elementary forms of division first. It will be seen that many of the nuktas, or dots, are omitted; as, for example, those necessary to form bs, bṭ, bḥ, bf, bm, bn, bh, by, and without them the linear portion of the be, in these compounds, has no meaning. It may, of course, become b, p, t, g, n, or y, ad libitum, by the addition (above or below it) of one, two, or three dots.

DIVISION 3 shows the initial form of the j, ch, h, and kn, prefixed to each of the elements in their order. Here a similar irregularity of punctuation occurs, but as the form ṭ constitutes a perfect letter in itself, without any dots, it is transcribed into the Roman character by h. It may be observed once for all, that the object of these Plates is to exhibit the combinations of all letters of a certain form, independent of the adventitious dots which each form may necessarily require.

PLATE II.

DIV. 4.—sá, st, sj, shd, sr, ss, shs, sz, st, sḥ, sf, s, shk, sl, sm, sn, shw, ss, sḥs, slá, sy, sy.

„ 5.—sá, st, sj, sd, sr, ss, ssh, sz, st, sḥ, sf, sh, sk, zl, sm, sn, zw, s, zs, zlá, sy, sy.

„ 6.—tá, tt, tj, td, tr, ts, tsh, tz, tt, tḥ, tf, tk, tk, zl, tm, tn, tw, ts, zs, tlá, ty, ty.

DIVISION 4 represents the sin or shin in combination with the rest of the letters. It is needless to observe that the letters alif, dál, re, and waw, never join to the left—consequently they have no distinct initial form.

DIVISIONS 5 and 6 show the súd and ṭoe followed by each of the elementary forms.

PLATE III.

- DIV. 7.— εd , εt , εj , εd , εr , εs , εsh , εz , εt , $\varepsilon \varepsilon$, εf , εk , εk , εl , εm εn , εw , εs , εhs , $\varepsilon lá$, εy , εy .
- „ 8.— $fá$, ft , fj , fd , fr , fr , fs , fsh , fs , ft , fz , ff , fk , fk , fl , fm , jn , fw , fs , fhs , $flá$, fy , fy .
- „ 9.— $ká$, kt , kj , kd , kr , ks , ksh , kz , kt , kz , kf , kk , kk , kl , km , kn , kw , ks , khs , $klá$, ky , ky .

PLATE III. shows the letters 'ain, fe, and káf in combination with all the rest; and, with the exception of lá, the initial form of the lám is found by omitting the bent top stroke of the letter káf.

DIVISION 8.—The dots of the fe are again omitted in $fá$, fd , fr (2nd), fs , fz , ft , fz , etc., leaving the letter imperfect. It may become $káf$, by superscribing two dots.

DIVISION 9.—The formation of the $ká$ (made by two sweeps of the pen) commences from where the four lines meet; the pen stops at the top of the $alif$, made upwards, and then forms the slanting top. $Klá$ is made by three strokes of the pen, the $alif$, made downwards, being the second, the slanting top of the $káf$ the third.

PLATE IV.

- DIV. 10.— md , mt , mj , md , mr , ms , msh , mz , mt , mz , mf , mk , mz , ml , mm , mn , mw , mh , mhs , $mlá$, my , my .
- „ 11.— $há$, ht , hj , hd , hr , hr , hs , hsh , hz , ht , hz , hf , hk , hk , hl , hm , hn , hw , hh , $hhhhhs$, $hlá$, hy , hy .
- „ 12.— $abjd$, hwz , hty , $klmn$, sfs , $krsh$, shz , zgh , $lá$.
 $alcbd$, $almznb$, $alfkyr$, εbyd , $allh$ $hsyny$ $shyryn$ rkm $ghfr$ $znwbb$.

DIVISION 11.—The tail of the he is given only in $há$, hd , hk , hl , and $hlá$, but omitted in all the rest, according to the practice of Oriental writers. Hence the initial form of this letter is often too apt to be mistaken for the mim (m).

DIVISION 12 contains the combination of the characters as arranged in alphabetical notation, noticed in p. 20 of the Grammar, forming the fanciful words, ‘Abjad, hawaz, huttî, kaliman, sa’fas, karashat, sakhas, za’zagħ’; and the last line may be read thus, indicating the name of the chirographer: Al’ abd ul muznib, al fakir ’uḥaidu-l-lāhi ḥusaini shir’in rakm ghaffara zunūbahu.

PLATE V.

Consists of words beginning with letters of the be class; i.e., b, p, t, ḡ, in which might be included n and y.

- L. 1. bḡht, blyt, bhsht, pnj, blkḡ, blnd.
2. bḡyā, bstr, pyghmbr, blghys, bkḡshsh, bghz.
3. byz, bsyt, byḡ, bkḡk, plnk, bkḡyl.
4. blghm, bykm, bḡn, byn, bychw, byzḡ, bnkls, byshky.
5. tḡjb, tsbyḡ, tklyd, tlmzy, tkḡyr, tkḡyr.
6. tfyr, tjss, tftysh, tkḡsys, tkḡlys, tslḡ.
7. tjmḡ, tsnyf, tkḡyf, tkḡyk, tmsk, tḡjyl.
8. tfzl, tkḡym, tmkyn, tkḡyn, tnbw, thnt, tky.

PLATE V.—Coming now to complete words of more than two consonants; we may premise, as a general remark, that when these contain any of the letters b, p, t, ḡ, n, y, consisting of a horizontal or sloping line, with one or more dots, for each letter there should be an incurvation in the continued running line, and at least two bends for the short indented śin or shin. When several such letters come together, for the sake of distinction it is usual to give the middle one a bold dash upwards, terminating in a sharp point vertically.

L. 1.—The n of blnd is protracted to fill up the line, according to custom. The plnk of line 9, bykm of line 4, with a dash on kāf, here wanting, are intended for palang, ‘a tiger,’ and begam, ‘a princess,’ this being a very usual omission, especially where the word cannot be mistaken. In some works, indeed, the kāf is never distinguished from the gāf, neither is b from p, nor jīm from che.

PLATE VI.

Contains a list of words commencing with letters of the third form, viz. j, ch, ȳ or kh

- L. 1. jnt, hshmt, hkmt, hkykt, khkt, khsht.
 2. jlyj, jzd, hmyd, hmd, khld, jzfr, hkyr, hshr.
 3. khmyr, khnr, khnr, jlys, hbs, jhyz, jlt.
 4. khlt, hfz, jmyz, jyf, khfyf, jkyk, khik.
 5. chychk, khshk, jlyl, jmyl, jnkl, hnzl.
 6. jknm, hlym, hkm hkym, khshm, jbyn, jstn.
